IKE IN NEW MIDEAST CRISIS

Israel Squeeze Feared by Dulles

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new crisis over the Middle East sent President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles into a long distance telephone huddle Saturday.

Besides talking to Eisenhower, who is quail-shooting in Georgia, Dulles also conferred urgently with top advisers here.

Officials are intensely worried about the prospect that the President and Dulles will be caught in a bad squeeze some time next week over the issue of sanctions against Israel. This could happen unless Israel pulls its forces immediately out of the Gaza Strip and the Gulf of Aqaba region, as demanded by the United Nations.

• • • •

TIED INTO the problem are the questions of getting the Suez Canal reopened to world shipping, obtaining an arrangement with Egyptian President Nasser concerning the canal's operation, and the whole U. S. policy of wooing the Arab bloc.

Officials saw a possibility that some new blowup may result from the present tensions over Israel's refusal to withdraw its forces unconditionally.

If that happens, it could cut heavily into the gains which Eisenhower registered this week in his Middle East diplomacy by reaching successful agreement with King Saud of Saudi Arabia.

• • • •

MORE THAN 150,000 Israelis demonstrated in major Israel cities Saturday in a display of solidarity behind the government's refusal to withdraw from Egyptian soil.

Banners protested against the United Nations demands for removal of Israeli forces from the Gaza Strip and the southern Sinai desert. Only France, of all the world's powers, drew applause at rallies, because France supports Israel in the dispute.

• • • •

DULLES MET at his Washington home with Robert Murphy, deputy undersecretary of state, and William Rountree, assistant secretary of state. He presumably received a report from Murphy on the latter's meeting Friday night with Israeli Ambassador Abbra Eban.

Eban is reported to have told Murphy that Israel is ready to withdraw its forces provided essentially that it can get a firm assurance that Egypt considers its war with Israel at an end.

This is one way of summing up Israel's demands for assurances that Egyptians will mount no more raids on Israel from the Gaza Strip and will no longer deny Israeli shipping access to the Gulf of Aqaba.

Saud Planes Home With $50 Million

WASHINGTON (U.P.) — King Saud of Saudi Arabia will receive $50 million worth of U. S. arms in return for a new five-year lease on the Dhahran air base in his country, diplomatic sources told the United Press Saturday.

The Arab leader had hoped to obtain $250 million worth of military equipment during his glittering two-week state visit which ended Saturday. But he settled for the smaller amount with the understanding it would be over the five-year period of the lease and subject to possible changes—either increases or decreases.

• • • •

THE BASE IS VITAL to allied defense strategy. It is less than 1,000 air miles from the Soviet Union and forges a vital link in the ring of bases the United States has drawn around Russia to prevent an atomic attack on this country.

The State Department has kept the amount of the agreement secret.

Saud left some of his advisers behind for "further negotiations." The weapons will include jet planes and tanks.

Saud himself headed homeward Saturday morning to take up the role of super-salesman for President Eisenhower's doctrine for defending the Middle East against Communist aggression.

• • • •

HE ENPLANED in the blaze of pomp which marked his entire stay, and headed for a four-day state visit in Spain. From there he will go to Cairo for urgent talks with Egyptian, Jordanian, and Syrian leaders.

Saud expressed "full agreement" with Eisenhower on measures to keep Soviet Russia from getting a foothold in the strategic and oil-rich lands of the sprawling Arab world.

Stork Nest Kills 2

VALLADOLID, Spain (U.P.) — Two children were killed Saturday when a stork's nest fell on them while they were playing at the foot of a church tower.

Money Devalued

WARSAW (AP)—The finance ministry announced Saturday night the Polish zloty will be devalued in terms of western currencies Monday.

It will be calculated at 24 to the U. S. dollar instead of four to the dollar.

Bulganin Bids British Chief Visit Russia

Macmillan Invited to Suggest Date for Exchange of Views

LONDON (AP)—Premier Nikolai Bulganin has invited Prime Minister Harold Macmillan to visit Moscow and has asked the British leader to suggest a convenient date.

The text of letters between the two, broadcast Saturday night by Moscow radio, made it evident Bulganin did not intend to take "no" for an answer. Macmillan, in shunting aside an earlier invitation to his predecessor, Sir Anthony Eden, to visit Moscow in May, left open the possibility of some future visit.

• • • •

MOSCOW RADIO broadcast the letters a day after Washington sources said Macmillan and President Eisenhower were working on plans for a meeting in Bermuda, March 21.

In his letter last week, Macmillan expressed hope that a situation might develop when a visit to Moscow might be welcome to Bulganin "and timely from the world point of view."

• • • •

REPLYING, Bulganin said if Macmillan was unable to undertake the May visit "we would like to know your opinion about another more acceptable time of the visit for you, which could be additionally agreed upon." He added:

"We do not doubt that a meeting with you in Moscow could afford the possibility for a fruitful exchange of views on questions of direct Anglo-Soviet relations, as well as on other questions which are of interest to both sides."

First Vessel Dares Suez Since Block

CAIRO (U.P.) — An Egyptian-chartered Italian tanker started through the Suez Canal Saturday despite insistence by United Nations salvage crews that the waterway still is blocked.

The 1,000-ton tanker Planeta entered the north end of the canal from now-cleared Port Said Harbor, and was scheduled to steam all the way through the 101-mile waterway to the Red Sea.

It would be the first ship to travel the full length of the canal since the waterway was blocked during the Anglo-French invasion of Egypt.

However, a spokesman for the U.N. salvage team said the canal still is blocked in some sections. It was not clear how the crew of the Italian ship planned to by-pass some obstructions.

The Planeta apparently will have to wait at each blockaded section until it is cleared, the spokesman indicated.

Doctor Dies

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Dr. Edward Hicks Hume, 80, a pioneer in modern medicine in the Far East, died Saturday at the Gaylord Farms Sanitarium at nearby Wallingford.

L.A.C. Says:

3-Month Reprieve

The AFL-CIO executive council meeting in Miami, Fla., has given three of its unions a three-month deadline to clean themselves of "corrupt influences." The three unions represent Laundry, Distillery and Allied Industrial workers. The charges are improper use of welfare funds and general racketeering in these unions numbering some 170,000 members.

Failure of the unions to purge themselves will mean expulsion from the national AFL-CIO. But it is apparent there is something more needed than such action by the national organization. Where such expulsion has been occasioned the expelled unions seem to be as strong as ever.

One example is the East Coast Longshoremen's Union, which was expelled from the AFL because of widespread corruption. For years it had been shown how racketeers ruled the New York and other eastern

Car Falls in River; 7 Drown

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Seven persons, including six in one family, drowned Saturday night in an automobile that plunged into the Miami River.

The tragedy in Hialeah Gardens, an Everglades suburb of Miami, was one of the worst of its type in Florida history.

The dead were identified as Teresa Evans, 22; George Evans, 5; Henry Evans, 4; Raymond Evans, 2; Louis and Anthony Evans, six-months-old twins; and Charles Wright, 12.

Ralph Evans, 50, father of five of the children, and Edwin McDonnough, 50, a friend, struggled to safety from the submerged machine.

• • • •

POLICE WERE told the party of nine was driving from Hialeah Gardens, Evans' home, toward nearby Miami Springs when the car shot off a two-foot, grassy bank into the river.

Evans told police he started to make a left turn, his brakes failed and the machine nosed into the river, turning over on its right side. He said he and McDonnough crawled out the window next to the steering wheel and tried to extricate the others, but the doors of the vehicle either were locked or jammed by the plunge.

• • • •

HIALEAH GARDENS Police Chief Bill J. Geronimo who directed rescue operations joined by half a dozen agencies, praised Sgt. Edward Dubois and Patrolman Lou Palombi of his force, and Sgt. Jerry Starr of Medley police who dived in to try to rescue the trapped passengers.

"It's an awful thing," Evans said before he went to the hospital. "After Mac (McDonnough) and I got out the window, I tried to lift the car over. I'm pretty good at lifting but I couldn't lift it. I tried to open a door but I couldn't turn the handle."

REAL THUGS CONFESS

Police Prove Boys, 13 and 15, Innocent of Robbing Woman

By FRED BOLINGER

Two innocent juveniles might have been convicted of strong-arm robbery, if Officer B. C. Briggs hadn't done a lot of sleuthing and the police robbery detail hadn't done a lot of questioning.

Today, Billy J. Simril, 15, of 1020 E. 16th St., and Hezekiah King, Jr., 13, of 1462 Lemon Ave., have broad smiles on their faces for it has been proved that they are innocent of beating and robbing a woman.

But things looked pretty tough for the boys when Mrs. Miharu Doss, 30, of 845 E. 6th St., Apt. 1, told Officer Briggs that they were her two assailants.

She was positive that it was Billy who knocked her down, in the 600-block on E. 6th St., Jan. 9, about 8:30 p. m. Then she declared that Hezekiah helped Billy beat and kick her, until she let go her purse, containing $350 and $450 in checks.

The boys were arrested at 10th St. and Olive Ave. shortly after the robbery, because they answered Mrs. Doss' description of the suspects.

Both boys denied vigorously that they robbed Mrs. Doss. They had alibis. Officer Briggs found that they were "good boys." Their parents and friends didn't think they'd rob anyone.

Billy is the son of Sam Simril and the Rev. Annie Mae Simril, pastor of the Long Beach Rescue Mission, at 1013 E. 16th St. Hezekiah's parents are Hezekiah and Evie King.

But unless other suspects were found, the Juvenile Bureau would have to charge the boys with strong-arm robbery.

Then on Feb. 1, Norwalk deputy sheriffs raided a wild party at 906 Via Wanda and arrested Taylor N. Chambers, 19, of 1028 California Ave., and Alfred Livingston, 18, of 1451 Olive Ave.

Both were booked for violation of parole and investigation of robbery.

Quizzed by detectives, they admitted robbing Mrs. Doss. However, she had moved to New York and it wasn't worth while to have her return here to confront the real suspects.

Chambers and Livingston were turned over to the California Youth Authority, which held a warrant for their arrest for parole violation.

Communists Split at U.S. Convention

NEW YORK (AP)—Top American Communists split sharply in the party's national convention Saturday on what policy the party should follow—the Moscow line or a so-called "American road."

Eugene Dennis, general secretary of the party, said American Communists would make their own decisions based on their own interpretation of Marxism—despite misgivings expressed by French Communist leader Jacques Duclos.

But William Z. Foster, the party's national chairman, said Duclos was correct in warning against "revisionist tendencies."

• • • •

DUCLOS, IN A letter of greeting to the convention, said he "discerned dangerous departures" among some American Communists from Marxist principles already tested in other countries, such as the Soviet Union.

Duclos has been identified with the ouster of Earl Browder from the American Communist leadership in 1945. He attacked Browder in a magazine article shortly before Browder was removed.

Dennis and Foster put their views before the convention after the delegates sent a telegram to President Eisenhower, asking him to issue "a new Eisenhower Doctrine for enforcement of the Supreme Court desegregation laws."

Their addresses centered around a draft resolution of party policy drawn up by the party's national committee.

The resolution, not yet acted upon by the convention, says in its preamble that "there are various roads to socialism and . . . the working people of our nation will find their own road to socialism."

Dennis, keynoter of the convention, the party's first in seven years, said:

"In respect to the misgivings expressed in the greetings signed by Jacques Duclos, let me say that we American Communists firmly believe in our great majority that the main line of our convention resolution is Marxist-Leninist in content and fully in accord with the interests and democratic traditions of our country . . ."

Dennis said American communists always have been organizationally independent.

• • • •

THE 76-YEAR-OLD Foster, whose speech was read for him by Benjamin J. Davis, former New York City councilman, noted that the party's national committee had knocked the term "Marxist-Leninism" out of the resolution's preamble.

"But worse yet, in the main resolution the party's acceptance of Marxism-Leninism has been made conditional," Foster said.

"This document endorses Marxism-Leninism only to the extent that it is 'interpreted' by the CPUSA (Communist Party, U.S.A.).

Eartha Kitt Has Dinner With Nehru

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Slinky Eartha Kitt had dinner Saturday night with Prime Minister Nehru.

The sultry American Negro singer and dancer, making a world tour, had written ahead about her chances of meeting the Indian leader. She got an invitation to lunch Friday but failed to arrive in time.

Her plane got her here Saturday night just in time to be rushed through customs—after a chat with reporters and some setting-up exercises to relieve muscles cramped on the journey from Karachi—and to the hotel to change her clothes.

• • • •

SHE WAS RIGHT on time for dinner. Nehru was 10 minutes late. Her name was the only one on Nehru's guest list Saturday night.

Eartha said afterward she and Nehru found little to make small talk about — "African art and American income taxes."

Auto Strikes Ambulance, Four Hurt

LOS ANGELES (CNS)—An ambulance speeding to General Hospital with four patients was struck by an automobile in Los Angeles Saturday, police reported.

Three of the patients suffered additional injuries and the ambulance driver was treated for shock.

Police said the General Hospital ambulance picked up three of the patients at Georgia Street Receiving Hospital and a fourth at her home.

It was returning to General Hospital, its siren sounding when the collision occurred at Grand Ave. and Venice Blvd.

• • • •

THE INJURED patients are: Mrs. Lucy Farley, 85, who was suffering from a head injury. She suffered a possible fractured right wrist in the crash.

Mrs. Carmie Jones, 41, who was wounded in the chest by her husband. The woman suffered possible fractures.

Fosteles San Miguel, 58, who was under treatment at Georgia Street for an undetermined sickness, who suffered possible fractures.

The fourth patient, Earl Johnson, 72, a cardiac case, apparently was unhurt.

The ambulance was returning to General Hospital when a car driven by Edward S. Turner, 75, hit the emergency vehicle.

Jury Awards L.B. Trucker $205,000 in Accident Suit

Record personal injury damages of $205,135 have been awarded a Long Beach truck driver crushed under a load of lumber in a harbor accident in August, 1955, The Independent, Press-Telegram learned Saturday.

Recipient of the award was Patrick H. Mulcahey, 40, of 2150 Cameron Ave.

Now a quadraplegic, Mulcahey has been confined to a wheel chair since his release from St. Mary's Hospital in December, 1955.

A jury in the court of Superior Judge Arthur Crum, in Los Angeles, handed down the verdict Friday afternoon. However, news of the decision was not scheduled to be released until today, the I, P-T learned.

• • • •

THE DAMAGES GRANTED Mulcahey set a record for personal injury cases in Los Angeles County Superior Courts, he said.

The trial lasted two weeks and two days.

Defendant in the case was Pacific Crane & Rigging Co.

Mulcahey was working as a driver for Belyea Trucking Co. when the accident occurred Aug. 31, 1955.

He said he had driven his lumber-laden truck into the Richfield Oil Corp. yard in the Wilmington harbor area. As he was preparing the truck for unloading, he said, a crane operated by Pacific Crane & Rigging accidentally knocked the load of lumber off the truck.

• • • •

MULCAHEY WAS CRUSHED under huge lengths of 4 by 12-inch lumber, each of them weighing nearly a quarter ton.

He was rushed to Seaside Memorial Hospital, where surgeons found he had suffered a broken neck, skull fracture, broken legs and other injuries. For several weeks, he hovered near death.

Later transferred to St. Mary's Hospital, he was sent home in December in a wheel chair. A quadraplegic, his legs and hands are paralyzed—but, under treatment, he said, he's gradually regaining at least partial use of his hands.

Mulcahey's attorney in the case was Edgar Simon of Los Angeles, a wartime buddy.

• • • •

THE TWO MET in the China-Burma-India theater during World War II. Mulcahey was an Air Corps radio operator, and Simon was serving in the base judge advocate's office.

A veteran of three years' wartime service, Mulcahey made 117 flights over "The Hump"—the towering Himalaya Mountains between China and India. He was injured once when his plane cracked up in Kunming, China.

Mulcahey came to the Southland from Chicago in 1931, and has lived in Long Beach since September, 1954. He is married and has two young sons, a daughter, a stepson and a stepdaughter.

What does he intend to do with the money?

"Stay right here," he smiled.

ports. When the evidence was so widespread the AFL finally took action. But the expelled union is still in control. There is little evidence that there has been much change due to the union becoming independent rather than a part of the AFL.

Another example is the expulsion of the Harry Bridges West Coast Longshoremen's Union. It was expelled from the CIO after many years of evidence of Communist tendencies. But Harry Bridges and his union are as strong as ever. Only recently he threatened to tie up the Hawaiian Islands because a Senate committee was investigating the Communist activities of the union in that area.

The national AFL-CIO organization is making commendable efforts to clean up the racketeering found among some of its units. The enormous amount of money paid into union welfare funds has made their handling big business. Some union officials have profited from handling the funds. Where insurance commissions are paid, they often end up in the pockets of union officials.

The greater number of such funds are honestly administered and union members get splendid benefits. But as the funds grow it is evident they must be regulated by rules the same as those applied to corporations. Union members are entitled to complete reports. Those reports should be subject to audit by independent auditing firms.

It is natural that some union leaders fight against such regulations. But there is evidence that union members would support such legislation. The national AFL-CIO speaks the policy for the many units under its supervision. But it is evident it does not properly police the activities of the units.

The investigation of the Teamsters Union is an example. That union is in control of tremendous welfare funds. There is evidence of some of its top leaders using their position for their own benefit. The refusal of some of its leaders to testify before a Senate committee has been criticized by the Miami meeting of the AFL-CIO board. But the Teamsters Union is the largest in the organization—and to date Dave Beck and other leaders have not complied.

From the Senate investigations evidence may be disclosed which will bring about legislation to safeguard unions from dishonest and unsound leadership. It is certainly long past due. The great majority of union leaders are honorable and capable men. They deserve protection from the racketeers who cause so much bad publicity for unions. Certainly rank and file members are entitled to protection of their money which is paid into welfare funds. They are entitled to the same kind of detailed financial reports as those given stockholders in corporations, and they are entitled to supervise secret balloting on all union affairs.—L.A.C.

Stag Parties Annoy Queen

NEW YORK (UP)—Stag parties rather than another woman were the real reasons for reports of a rift between Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh, the New York Daily News reported in a copyrighted story Saturday.

The News said in a dispatch from London it had learned from a friend of the Duke that conservative members of Britain's oldest families long have been shocked by stag parties he attends and are trying to force him to abandon them.

The friend, who was not identified in the story, said Britain's more staid families frowned on the Thursday Dining Club, where Philip attended stag parties and others at which some women were present including, on some occasions, American actress Vivian Blaine and British actress Pat Kirkwood, the paper said.

• • • •

MISS BLAINE was starring in the London version of "Guys and Dolls," at the time she attended the parties, the News reported.

It said the real power behind the movement to have the Duke conform more to royal behavior was Robert Arthur James Gascoyne-Cecil, the fifth Marquess of Salisbury.

The 63-year-old Salisbury, Tory leader in the House of Lords, held conferences with the Queen both before the banishment of Group Capt. Peter Townsend, former beau of Princess Margaret, and before the recent naming of Harold Macmillan as Prime Minister over the favored Richard A. Butler, the News reported. He "is increasingly becoming known as the power behind the throne," the paper said.

• • • •

MEANWHILE in London, it was reported that Queen Elizabeth was amused at reports of a rift between her and the Duke.

A member of the royal court said she shrugged-off the rumor, and gave the impression that her reunion with the dashing Duke in Portugal next week after the longest separation of their marriage would effectively squelch further gossip.

"They have not seen each other for four months," the member of the official family said. "And I think it safe to say they will react like any other affectionate couple parted by duty for so long a time. Anyone with eyes to see will know then how wrong the stories are."

• • • •

THE ADVANCE royal party in Lisbon preparing for the royal tour of Portugal which begins next Saturday also ridiculed the reports which cropped up Friday in a London dispatch in the Baltimore Sun.

Observers close to the royal family said Elizabeth was very much in love with her husband and, as any other wife might do, she decided to scrap the original schedule of her trip to Portugal and fly to Lisbon a day ahead of time to meet him there next Saturday.

QUEEN ELIZABETH (right) talks to Queen Mother as they and Princess Margaret (center) attend Hurst Park races Saturday in Windsor, England. Queen showed no concern over reports of a rift between her and the Duke of Edinburgh. Palace sources said she was "amused" at the gossip.—(AP Wirephoto)

Sources close to the palace were as much annoyed by innuendoes stemming from the fact that the royal couple have had no children since the birth of Princess Anne almost seven years ago as they were by the rumor that the Duke had been seeing "another woman."

• • • •

ONE SOURCE threw up his hands when advised of one foreign report that the Queen had confided to a friend that she longed for a third child.

It was noted that the Queen and the Duke are devoted parents to Anne and her older brother, eight-year-old Prince Charles.

British newspapers refused to publicize the story or even the terse three-word Buckingham Palace denial, "It's a lie."

However, the tabloid Sunday Pictorial referred indirectly to the reported rift for the first time when it published a criticism of the Duke's long absence from the Queen during the world tour.

"A Palace Slip Is Showing," teased an inside banner headline. But the story accompanying it referred to the recent resignation of the Duke's private secretary, Lt. Cmdr. Michael Parker.

Pictorial columnist Rex North criticized palace planners for failing to schedule a short trip home for the Duke after his four months at sea.

• • • •

The Sydney Daily Mirror headlined "Royal Rift Rumor Rocks World."

The mass-circulation Sunday Telegraph, in Sydney, said "Decent people throughout the world will deplore speculation about a possible rift between the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh."

The palace source, who refused to quote the Queen directly, said she took the rumors as one of the hazards of being in the public limelight.

The Queen herself, appearing gay and carefree, went for a 90-minute ride in a station wagon Saturday morning in Windsor Great Park.

She went to the races at Hurst Park Friday, holding a card marked by a racetrack tout, although she does not bet publicly. He gave her one winner—a 9-5 shot.

L.B. Boy Killed in Gun Accident

A 15-year-old boy was killed when his "best friend" started to show him a .45-caliber revolver Saturday evening and the gun discharged accidently.

Dead is Mike Gavens, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe D. Gavens, 6051 E. 19th St.

Police were holding a 16-year-old boy in the Juvenile Bureau for investigation of murder after he told them he shot the Gavens youth through the head.

• • • •

DET. INSPS. Judson Drake and Al LaRue said the 16-year-old gave this account of the tragedy:

His parents were visiting in Pasadena and the two boys were alone in the house all afternoon.

Young Gavens went into the kitchen to telephone his parents. The youth took a .45-caliber service revolver belonging to his father from a closet.

He held it out to show to Gavens when it went off.

The bullet hit the boy in the head and he fell to the floor.

• • • •

"AT FIRST I thought I had missed him," the youth said. "Then I tried to stop the blood from flowing but couldn't. Then I called the police."

The youth's body was taken to Mottell's and Peek Mortuary.

Dep. Coroner Henry Ehrenkranz said his office will conduct an investigation of the case.

TV Contestant Fudges on Trip; Wins Some More

HONOLULU (AP)—Television quiz show winner Harold Bortzfield of Lancaster, Pa., says he fudged a little on a trip around the world.

Bortzfield and his wife were to make the trip without any money, instead using credit cards given them on the show.

He arrived here with 10 Australian pounds.

"I won it on a television show in Australia," he said.

2 Robbed of $4.60

Three men, one simulating a gun, took $4.10 from Jay G. Delaney, 19, and 60 cents from his companion, Fred Martin, of 119 E. 65th St., early Saturday. The victims were parked in Martin's car in front of Delaney's home, at 3917 Linden Ave.

Three Killed in Collision on N.Y. Span

NEW YORK (UP) — Two automobiles rammed each other head-on on the George Washington Bridge Saturday, killing three persons and critically injuring another.

Police said traffic on the heavily-travelled span was delayed 90 minutes after an automobile driven by Franz Meyer, 50, of Hasbrouck Heights, N.J., collided with another car driven by Harold Latner, 32, of New York.

Meyer was killed, and Latner was injured critically. The wives of both men also were killed, but the Latners' 4-year-old daughter, Gail, escaped injury.

Authorities said the crash occurred during rain and fog when Meyer's car swerved from the westbound lane into the path of Latner's automobile.

Do You Really Know California?

Why Your Southland Keeps Booming Along

Sometimes outsiders know more about you than you do.

A case in point is the survey of California living published on the East Coast in the February issue of Changing Times, the Kiplinger Magazine.

It contains many facts about your state that will be news to most readers. They are summarized here.

Population Gains

California's population jumps by 1,200 every day. During the past five years California has grown twice as much as New York, three times as much as Texas. By 1965, in all probability, it will have overtaken New York to become the most populous state.

Fastest growing county is tiny Del Norte, at the Oregon border, but it has a population total of only 16,000.

Since 1950, Southern California has gained nearly 2,000,000 persons. Of the 10 fastest-growing counties, six are in the south. Their five-year increases have been: Orange, 67.2 per cent; San Diego, 40.5; San Bernardino, 38.1; Riverside, 34.8; Ventura, 31.1 and Los Angeles, 26.9.

The increase in nine San Francisco Bay area counties has been 500,000 since 1950.

The 14 counties of Southern California contain more people than Michigan and nearly as many as Texas. Only five states have more people than Southern California has.

"The day cannot be far distant when virtually one continuous city will extend for 200 miles from Santa Barbara to the Mexican border," Changing Times predicts.

The Housing Outlook

The magazine reports:

"Not long ago, Orange County was known mainly for the orange groves that inspired its name. Today these groves are being uprooted to make way for new homes so fast that smoke from burning orange trees is reputed to be a factor in creating the eye-smarting smog that sometimes cloaks Los Angeles. The county's population is nearing 500,000.

"IN 1955, MORE NEW HOMES WERE BUILT IN ORANGE COUNTY THAN IN ANY OF 37 ENTIRE STATES!"

A swimming pool is not standard equipment, the magazine says, but adds:

"Yet even in modest circumstances, an outdoorsy, slump-and-stretch style of living seems to come more naturally in California than in harsher climates.

(Staff Photo.)

"An Outdoorsy . . . Style of Living"

"There also is variety in tract homes. In Orange County, for example, the market breaks into five categories. At bottom is the basic house of 800 to 1,100 square feet on a lot 50 by 100 feet, priced from $9,500 to $11,500. Step up to the $10,000-$14,000 bracket and you get a three or four bedroom house of 1,000 to 1,250 square feet on a lot 60 by 125. At this level the built-in waist-high oven appears.

"For better finish, outdoor features and an evaporative cooler or perhaps refrigerative air conditioning, you will have to pay $13,000 to $17,000. The houses will be a bit larger, 1,100 to 1,400 square feet, but the lot probably won't be. Still better and larger homes, 1,200 to 1,700 square feet, are sold in the $15,000-$22,000 bracket. Above this lies the luxury market."

Those Crowded Highways

California is far and away the most motorized state: one motor vehicle for every two and a half persons, some 5,000,000 in all. That's 1,000,000 more than in New York state.

Only six states have more motor vehicles than Los Angeles County, which has 2,500,000 vehicles and registers 350 new ones every day.

In Orange County the entire population of nearly 500,000 could be accommodated in the county's passenger cars alone —without asking anybody to take a rear seat.

Boom—Boom—Boom!

Here's what happened in 1955:

The U. S. population increased by 1.7 per cent, but California's went up 3.5.

National employment increased 2 per cent, California's 3.6.

While personal incomes for the nation went up 5.2 per cent, California's increased 9.4.

National farm income went down 3.2 per cent. California's went up 3 per cent.

Construction across the nation increased by 12 per cent, while California's increased 20 per cent.

Retail sales, up 9 per cent for the nation, went up 14 per cent in California.

The Why of It

In addition to climate, one of the keystones of California's dynamic economy is the fact that it is highly diversified.

Every year for a decade, California has been the leading agricultural state. For 15 straight years it has been the leading construction state. It leads in generating electric power. It is third in the value of mineral products and has a greater variety of mineral deposits in workable form than any other area of equal size in the world.

In manufacturing the state stands first in value of food products, second in transportation equipment and lumber and wood products, third in petroleum and coal products, fourth in stone, clay, glass, apparel and fabricated textiles, fifth in printing and publishing, furniture and fixtures.

Personal incomes run about $400 higher than the national average.

Pension State?

"California has no more than it share of persons over 65. And it has more than its share of people in the working ages, 18 to 65. The overwhelming majority of newcomers are young, ablebodied and in the prime of their productive years."

Old Age May 'Pack' High Court for Ike

By WALTER T. RIDDER, ROBERT E. LEE AND WILLIAM W. BROOM (Independent, Press-Telegram Capital Bureau)

WASHINGTON—It's likely that President Eisenhower will be able to point some day to a Supreme Court "packed" with a majority of his own appointments.

Three members already are Ike appointees. He'll soon pick a fourth, to succeed Justice Reed, and chances are that Justices Frankfurter and Black, both over 70, will step down before the President's second term ends.

Frankfurter, however, is telling friends he'll keep going as long as he's healthy and that, as of now, he's in fine shape.

If Ike does get a chance to appoint five or six justices he'll still fall short of FDR's record. After a first term in which there were no vacancies, thus prompting his court-packing proposal, FDR got to name eight of the high court.

ONE OF THE advertising agencies that has handled campaigns for the Republican party was given the job of thorough research on American attitudes toward Vice President Nixon.

Agency representatives, using typical market analysis techniques, went to work and came up with a recommendation for a "soft sell" approach for the youthful Californian. The theme —"Young man can grow."

Some of the men who worked with Nixon during the last campaign are worried lest the presidential boom for their man get off the ground too far in advance of 1960.

But they admit there's little they can do to head off reams of copy now being written about him. Simple fact is that the vice president is now almost as well covered by newsmen as President Eisenhower. He can't make a move without its being reported.

'Chicanery' Charged in Arms Deals

Air Force and Navy officials will be called before a congressional investigating committee this week to answer a San Pedro rocket equipment manufacturer's charges of "devious dealing and strange procurement procedures" by the military.

Chairman Chet Holifield (D-Calif) of the House Military Operations Subcommittee said in Washington he would ask Gen. E. W. Rawlings of the Air Materiel Command to testify Monday.

"Later we will hear from the Navy," he said.

• • • •

EARLIER, Irving L. Babbitt, president of Century Industries Corp., Wilmington Blvd. and San Pedro Rd., said his firm is the only experienced producer of rocket launchers—but that military contracts have gone to other firms which failed to produce.

Babbitt testified Friday the Air Force paid North American Aviation Inc. $450 each for 800 adaptors to fit rocket launchers under planes. He said he could built an adaptor kit of more limited use for about $4.69.

Both types are dropped off the plane after the rockets are fired, he added.

Babbitt said he had spent $200,000 to keep his plant going after an Air Force officer told him last Nov. 21 there was a need for launchers. He got no contract, he added—and, as a result, will have to shut down his plant with its $395,000 in equipment.

Moscow to Beam Radio Quiz to North America

LONDON (UP)—Radio Moscow is going into the quiz game business for its North American listeners, it was announced Saturday.

The radio said it will pose nine questions in an "intercontinental quiz" which will begin next Thursday over its casts beamed to North America.

An announcer assured prospective contestants they have "every chance" of winning—presumably by mailing their answers—a collection of Soviet stamps, reproductions of Russian paintings or an album of Soviet phonograph records.

PLATTER TRAPS SPINNER

Police Rescue Disc Jockey

DEEJAY JIM COWGILL
Caught in a Tender Trap

One of the occupational hazards of being a disc jockey finally caught up with 18-year-old deejay Jim Cowgill of FM Radio Station KNOB, Signal Hill.

Cowgill, 4129 E. 7th St., got caught in a tender trap.

He had just begun his hour-long record show, "Platter Party," and was alone in the station. As Lawrence Welk played "Around the World" on one turntable, the youthful radio announcer raised another turntable to change the speed for the next record.

The turntable dropped onto Cowgill's hand. He tried to free himself with the other hand. And that was the birth of Cowgill's blues. The equipment wouldn't budge.

He tried to reach the microphone switch, but it was too far away. Meanwhile, Welk finished "Around the World" — "it seemed about 80 days later," Cowgill recalled—and KNOB went on "dead air" for the next 25 minutes.

At the time, Cowgill was talking on the telephone to a friend. Since the station door was locked and Cowgill had the key in his pocket, the disc jockey instructed his friend to call police.

Two squad cars and an ambulance crew responded. Signal Hill Police Sgt. Buck Oltman shot his fist through a window to get inside the studio.

Cowgill was unhurt, it was discovered upon his release, but the ambulance run was not in vain. The crew treated Sgt. Oltman for a cut right hand.

Station Manager Ray Torian decided windows are too expensive to leave Cowgill in the station alone. The announcer now has chaperones when he's on the air.

Sen. Richards to Address Democratic Group Feb. 20

By THE LOOKOUT

Democrats are planning a rousing welcome for State Sen. Richard Richards when he comes to Long Beach Feb. 20 to be speaker and honor guest at an open meeting of the 18th District Democratic Council in Hughes Junior High Auditorium.

Chairman Emanuel Guyler of the Council emphasized that the meeting will be open and will afford an opportunity to hear Richards' report on legislative happenings and prospects for Democratic gains in next year's elections.

Richards is expected to discuss the progress made at this year's Legislature toward effectuation of a state water-development program. He is in the forefront of this effort, and was a leader at recent legislative sessions in the work for Long Beach interests in the tidelands oil dispute.

The Los Angeles County senator is a lawyer, a graduate of Harvard, and a long-time Democratic party leader. He was the party's nominee for U. S. Senate in the 1956 general election.

SEN. MUNDT HERE

Sen. Karl Mundt of South Dakota will visit Long Beach today as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. George P. Taubman. Mundt is coming to the coast to speak at a Lincoln Day banquet at San Bernardino. As chairman of the Speakers' Bureau for the GOP national campaign in 1956, Mundt worked closely with Mrs. Taubman, who carried out important campaign assignments in the South.

Long Beach Republicans are planning no Lincoln Day activities this year, but a number of local GOP leaders will go to gatherings in other communities.

'Owl' Wrong

Statue Gone; Who-o-o Dunit?

Who-o-o-o-o took the Sigma Alpha Epsilon owl?

The owl, a concrete likeness weighing several hundred pounds, disappeared from its roost in front of the fraternity house at 2769 DeSoto St. sometime last week.

Members of the SAE at Long Beach State College term the theft a "fowl deed."

Fraternity president Mike Newton lists these suspects: Other fraternities at State and a UCLA sorority, which also has an owl for its symbol.

He doubts, however, that the UCLA group is the guilty party. Eight men were required originally to set the owl in place.

A real who-o-o-o-o-o-dunit.

San Pedro Firm Aid to Samoa

TORRANCE — A fish cannery being operated by a San Pedro firm at American Samoa has greatly helped the island paradise's economy, according to Peter Coleman, governor of the U.S. possession.

Gov. Coleman and his wife, Nora, are visiting here with his sister, Mrs. Max Hannemann of 22819 Madrona Ave., after attending inaugural functions in Washington.

He said that the cannery that has been operated for the past two years at Samoa by the Van Camp Sea Food Co. is providing seasonal work for about 300 Samoans.

• • • •

"NOW WE ARE training Samoans in long-line tuna fishing techniques as a means of further boosting employment," said Gov. Coleman, first native governor of Samoa.

Plans are being made to acquire fishing vessels that would be manned by all-Samoan crews, he revealed. Fish now canned there is caught by Japanese vessels, on which the Samoans are being trained.

Gov. Coleman was enthusiastic in his praise of Van Camp for the firm's Samoan enterprise.

"They had tough going at first. I'm surprised that they stuck it out," he commented.

Appointed to the post last Oct. by President Eisenhower, Gov. Coleman studied law at Georgetown University. The Colemans are the parents of 10 boys and a girl.

• • • •

SAMOA IS A GROUP of Polynesian islands about 2,000 miles south of Hawaii.

Saturday night, some 200 area residents of Samoan extraction honored Gov. and Mrs. Coleman at an "ava" ceremony at El Camino College. The centuries-old rite, at which the participants drink a beverage made of the ava root, is reserved for Samoan chiefs. The ceremony was followed by a traditional Samoan feast, in which the piece de resistance is a pig roasted over a pit of volcanic rock.

Peter Coleman, governor of American Samoa, and his wife, Nora, chat with reporters during a press conference in Torrance. The Colemans stopped off in the Long Beach area on their way back to the South Seas after inauguration festivities in Washington.

Missing Dog Crate of Woe to Depot Men

A Navy wife who has been camping off and on for four days at Union Station suggested Saturday that the FBI be called in to help find her missing dog.

The dog, a female Sheltie named Sugar Ray, slipped out of her crate in the baggage car of the Los Angeles-bound Owl and vanished in the Berkeley yards.

• • • •

MRS. BETTY NEWCOMER, 29, of 10372 S. Clementine St., Anaheim, and her husband, Andrew, 30, are keeping after Southern Pacific to retrieve their pooch.

"They ought to call in the FBI," she said. "Somebody's probably holding Sugar Ray for ransom."

In the San Francisco Bay area, SP special agent Jack Ebert has been leading a corps of detectives-turned-dogcatchers in pursuit of the missing dog.

4 Sought in Raping of 2 Girls

Long Beach police Saturday were hunting four sex-crazed hoodlums who kidnaped and raped two teenage girls who were on their way to a junior high school dance.

The girls—one 14 and the other 15—told detectives a car carrying four older boys stopped for them near Orange Ave. and E. 71st St. as they were on their way to a "Friday Nighter" dance at Lindbergh Junior High School. They said the boys forced them into the car, drove into Orange County and raped them.

One of the girls reported she was struck in the mouth during the attack, and was told she and her friend would be shot unless they kept quiet.

Police said a medical examination verified the girls' report they had been raped.

3 Murdered, Farmer Then Shoots Self

ASKOV, Minn. (AP)—A farmer, his wife, and two children were found shot to death in their smoke-filled home near here Saturday. Coroner Frank Gottry of Pine County said it was a case of murder and suicide.

Dead were Herluf P. Rasmussen, 61, his wife Paula, 51, son, Ejvind, 24, and daughter Betty, 18.

Gottry said Rasmussen shot his wife and children in the head with a .22-caliber rifle and then turned the weapon on himself after kindling a fire with gasoline and wood in the basement of the farm home. The blaze failed to spread, however.

Coroner Gottry said he was unable to learn the motive for the killings.

Red Cloud Over Hawaii

Issue of Communism May Block Statehood

By JOHN GRIFFIN

HONOLULU (AP)—Sitting under the TV lights of a U. S. Senate hearing here, Dr. Lyle G. Phillips, official of a much-praised local private Anti-Communist organization, summed up:

"Nowhere that I know of in the United States have identified Communists gone farther in obtaining their primary objectives than in the Territory of Hawaii."

About the same time, Edward N. Sylva, former Hawaii attorney general and before that head of the territorial commission on subversive activities, told the press:

"There is now no organized Communist movement in Hawaii . . . times have changed and I've changed with them."

These are among widely separated views on Communism in Hawaii today—as the territory renews its drive for statehood in the present Congress.

Many observers here feel the Red question—fairly or unfairly—will be the key factor in deciding whether statehood will be granted the Island territory 2,100 miles from the West Coast.

If it is, the picture looks dark.

• • • •

THE SENATE Internal Security Subcommittee held six days of hearings here in December and found: "Communists acting in concert in a present day conspiracy to further Soviet purposes in these islands."

The subcommittee, headed by Sen. Eastland (D-Miss.), a statehood foe, plans further hearings in Washington late this month.

Almost nothing new on Red activity in Hawaii came out in the public hearings here. There were a number of "Fifth Amendment" witnesses, some testimony on Red literature, but no real surprises.

Yet an accompanying strike by Harry Bridges' powerful International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union was dramatic enough to again point up the basic facts about Communism in Hawaii.

Using newspaper ads, the radio and banner-carrying parade, the ILWU charged Eastland had come to smear statehood and "get" the union for its work among non-white workers.

Statehood advocates frankly fear a double-barreled reaction:

First, fence-sitting Congressmen may turn against Hawaii. Second, statehood opponents will have fresh ammunition.

• • • •

HOWEVER, the Communist question has never been a black and white one in this tropical territory of a half-million people scattered over five main volcano-built islands.

Dr. Phillips, for example, is a director and past president of the Hawaii Residents Assn., formed to fight Communism during Hawaii's crippling six-month 1949 dock strike.

Now operating with 1,300 members and an annual budget of $90,000, the association has been praised by FBI and military leaders. Its membership includes some top businessmen and government leaders, but it is considered too extreme by many non-Communist liberals.

Sylva, a wealthy Harvard-educated lawyer, disagrees with Phillips.

An avowed anti-Red, Sylva told newsmen there is "a strong chain" of circumstantial and direct evidence to indicate the ILWU is no longer Communist-dominated "despite the many charges."

"There are plenty of ex-Communists but no Communists (in the union) . . . It is high time people revised their thinking in accordance with reality," he said.

Shortly before the hearings opened, Hawaii's governor fired Sylva as attorney general for atending a testimonial dinner for an ILWU leader convicted under the Smith Act.

Sylva was not called to testify at the hearings.

• • • •

WHY DO union members stick with the top leaders?—the same men who headed the ILWU when it was kicked out of the CIO in 1948 as being Communist-dominated.

Hawaii's Republican Gov. Samuel Wilder King both partially answered the question and stated the problem before the Senate hearing when he said:

"Able, shrewd labor leaders are entrenched, and it is difficult to convince these people (the members) that they are a menace to the United States."

These leaders include Bridges and Jack W. Hall, ILWU Hawaii regional director. Hall's 1953 Smith Act conviction, as one of "The Hawaii Seven," is on appeal.

How powerful is the ILWU?

On economic matters the union has produced—and that is the key to its success. Hawaii's plantations boast they have the highest paid year-'round agricultural workers in the world.

Top management officials here admit frankly that on "pork chop" issues the ILWU is undoubtedly representative of the workers. When its leadership suggests a bargaining position or a strike, the members follow.

When Hall was convicted under the Smith Act, the ILWU called a strike that lasted several days. An "emergency convention" met to denounce both the government and Hawaii's biggest employers.

• • • •

SUCH POLITICAL strikers, plus the union's admitted power in the local economy, have raised grave questions in some minds of danger in case of trouble with Russia.

Dr. Phillips says "there is no question in my mind the union members would follow the leadership in anything they suggest."

The doctor said he "doesn't know" if the leaders would ever call a crippling wartime political strike or suggest sabotage to the membership.

"I can only judge by past behavior on other political matters," he said.

However, several liberal and conservative Hawaii political leaders and observers disagree strongly with the doctor.

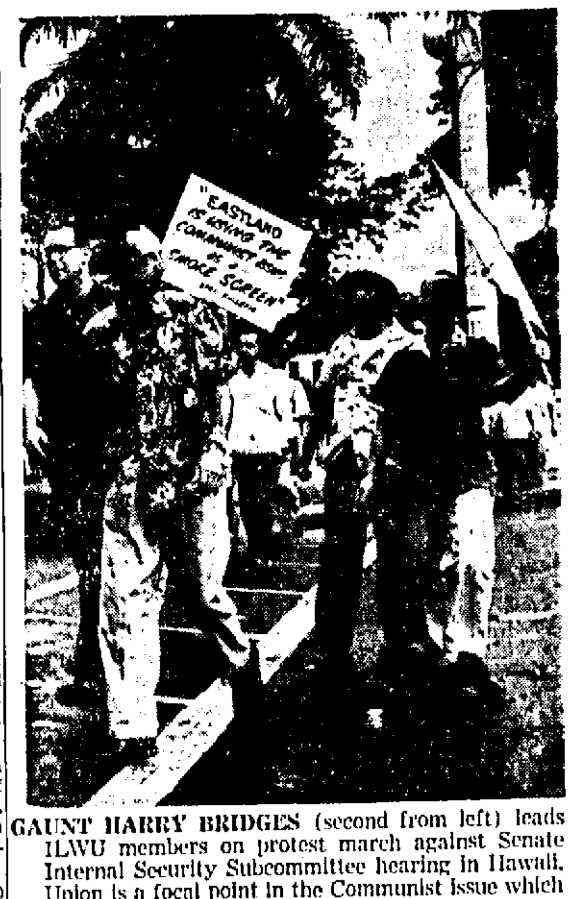
One legislator commented: "First, if war breaks out all suspect ILWU leaders would probably be tossed in jail. Second, I don't think they would dare suggest anything disloyal to these people."

"The problem," one local legislator said recently, "is trying to decide when unionism leaves off and Communism might begin. Everybody has to decide where to draw the line."

Just how the politicians—and the people of Hawaii — have drawn the line is a matter of heated debate when statehood is at issue.

The Hawaii Statehood Commission feels that the Communist question has a redeeming side. It argues this way:

Hawaii is more aware of and has taken more drastic steps against communism than any state . . . communism, the ILWU and its leaders are imports from the mainland, not native to the islands . . . Statehood would answer Red charges of discrimination against the territory's non-white population . . . Federal, not local, action is needed to oust ILWU leaders.



"EASTLAND IS GIVING THE COMMUNIST BOGY A SMOKE SCREEN"

Touch-Plate, Union in New Contract

Local 1710 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers Saturday announced signing of a new contract with Touch-Plate Manufacturing Corp.

The firm, whose plant is located at 16530 Garfield Ave., Paramount, employes 65 persons. It was a pioneer producer of low-voltage switching systems for homes, businesses and industries.

Founded in March, 1947, Touch-Plate is "a striking example of complete labor-management harmony," said Brice Worley, business representative of the IBEW local. It is the only national low-voltage-equipment producer which has an IBEW contract, he added.

THE NEW CONTRACT continues the shop pay scale of $1.54 an hour, but shortens the experience progression rate. The union's relationship with the plant also features a wide variety of fringe benefits, Brice said, including bonuses, paid vacations and paid holidays.

Television star Art Linkletter is president and chairman of the board of Touch-Plate. General manager is Ken P. Cronk.

CHAMPAGNE STOPS AT 90

But at 88 She Says 'Drink Up'

Drink hearty, because "when I'm 90 there'll be no more champagne birthday parties."

Mrs. Florence Steiner, 88, said Saturday at her party in the Apple Valley Steak House, she is quitting birthday observances after 90. For number 88, actually Feb. 7, 14 adults and six children were present to wish her happy returns.

Mrs. Steiner, only recently returned from a three-month European tour, is heartier than she thought she was. She thought she was too old to make the tour but found every minute of it pleasant and watched younger vacationers weaken quicker than she.

In fact the other 17 members of her party in Europe looked often to Mrs. Steiner to interpret for them in German and French.

She lives alone at 2045 Locust Ave. Her husband and two sons are deceased. She admitted she moved her birthday party out of her own home so she wouldn't have to wash the dishes.

Live a good life; have a little fun once in a while. Don't worry. Take it day by day. These are Steiner maxims.

She was born in Alton, Ill., and has lived about 35 years in California. As the wife of an International Harvester Co. representative, she spent a great deal of time in Europe and lived seven years in Paris. She attended school in Cologne and visited old classmates there last summer.

She also visited cousins in Bonn and Brussels.

Mrs. Steiner tried to beg off from the picture taking at her Saturday party. "I don't take good pictures," she protested. Then she recalled there was one really good picture of her—one that she liked.

Red Cross Secretary Held in Embezzlement of $10,000

SAN LUIS OBISPO (UP)—Mrs. Ione Elliott, 44, executive secretary of the San Luis Obispo Red Cross Chapter, was held in county jail Saturday for investigation of grand theft.

The district attorney's office said approximately $10,000 in chapter funds and money for Hungarian relief collected through the Red Cross are involved in the theft. Mrs. Elliott was arrested Friday night after the loss was reported by a special auditor from National Red Cross headquarters.

Red Cross officials said Mrs. Elliott had been employed by the chapter for more than 10 years. She had been executive secretary since 1950.

The district attorney's office indicated the case will go before a special session of the county grand jury sometime this week, probably on Monday.

Air Group Hits Crash 'Hysterics'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association today deplored what it called "hysterical, unfactual" statements and proposals by some government officials and others in connection with the recent air collision over Van Nuys, Calif.

That crash occurred Jan. 31 when an air force jet and a DC7 airliner collided while both were on test flights. The wreckage showered into a school yard. Eight were killed and many hurt.

In the wake of that incident, the Civil Aeronautics Administration (CAA) ordered all future plane testing, both military and commercial, to be done over sparsely-populated areas or over open water.

• • • •

THE ASSOCIATION'S statement appeared to blame the Air Force F89 jet for the Van Nuys crash.

The association said public statements, made in the Los Angeles area, that all test flights should be banned immediately appeared to have been based on the assumption the DC7 was stunting.

The organization said the DC7 test flight "was a routine predelivery check, the sort of thing that is done every day everywhere in the country and involves the same sort of thing that is involved when a new automobile is driven around for a short period after it comes off the production line."

• • • •

THE STATEMENT SAID the F89 had made two passes to test its radar, and was making a third pass when the collision occurred.

"Passes at what?" organization statement asked.

"If they were at the DC7, this was another violation of the law.

"Many civil pilots, including those of the airlines, have many times complained of such passes by Air Force jet fighters. Sometime ago it was discovered that Air Force all-weather interceptor fighters were practicing such interceptions in bad weather on regular scheduled passenger-carrying airliners. Presumably, the practice was quickly stopped."

THERE'S SOMETHING ABOUT A UNIFORM

Maybe thinking of how he'd look in a uniform, 8-year-old Dan Oakley of 5117 Monlaco St. looks on as Cub Scouts parade by during the Appling District's annual Boy Scout Pow-Wow Saturday at Wardlow Park. Some 2,000 youngsters—ranging from tender young Cubs to seasoned Explorers—took part in the parade, after which they gave a display of Scout skills.—(Staff Photo)

New Convair Bomber Zips Away From F102 Fighter

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UP)—Neither Convair nor the Air Force will say just how fast the B-58 Hustler will fly, but it was learned through a reliable source Saturday that the revolutionary bomber has broken the sound barrier on partial power.

The only fact admitted is that the B-58 is the nation's first faster-than-sound bomber.

The triangular-winged plane first was test-flown Nov. 11. The second of the craft is expected to make its initial flight next week.

The B-58 is 95 feet long with a wingspan of only 55 feet. The Hustler, officially classed as a medium bomber, is small compared to the giant B-36, which Convair also developed, but can pack as big a one-punch wallop in a nuclear weapon.

The Hustler is powered by four General Electric J-79 turbo-jet engines slung below the wings. Each develops 15,000 pounds of thrust.

Convair is understood to be "importing" the new Lockheed F-104 Starfighter in an attempt to keep tab on the Hustler during its test flights.

It has been speculated that the B-58 was designed to carry a nuclear weapon in the form of a guided missile in a pod underneath its flat belly.

The Hustler will have a crew of three men—a pilot, defensive systems operator and bombardier-navigator.

Boy Scouts in Alamitos Show Skills

Boy Scouts of the Alamitos District showed off their skills Saturday at the district's annual "Scout-o-Ree" in Recreation Park.

Taking part in the overnight camping event and Saturday exhibit were 60 Scouts and 150 adult leaders. The encampment was a feature of Boy Scout Week.

Today, the Scouts—along with 1,200 Cubs and 200 Explorer Scouts—will attend church services in uniform.

Ike's Critic Home

SEATTLE (AP) — Charles Edmundson, U. S. Information Agency officer in Korea who was fired for criticizing President Eisenhower's Middle East doctrine, returned to the United States Saturday and said he may have more to say later.

L.A. Police Nab 62 at Lewd Show; 'Parked' Wives Fume

HOLLYWOOD (CNS) — Police vice squad officers raided a lodge hall and arrested 62 men on suspicion of attending a lewd movie shortly before midnight Friday night.

The men, many of them husbands with wives playing bridge in a downstairs recreation room, were hauled off to central jail in two buses.

Police said the men were viewing the movie in the second-floor hall on N. Vermont Ave. when Det. Lt. W. C. Nemetz led the combined Hollywood and Central vice squads through the front and back doors.

The wives downstairs said they thought the session was a "business meeting."

MANY OF THEM followed their husbands to the jail and waited as the men tried to raise the $300 bail.

Some of the suspects remained in jail until morning and nearly a dozen wives sat outside the jail waiting for their release.

"Boy, a life sentence ain't going to be near long enough," one of the men declared as his impatient wife waited for him.

Ike's Heart Expert on Whale Expedition

LOS ANGELES (UP)—President Eisenhower's heart specialist, Dr. Paul Dudley White, left by plane Saturday for a remote lagoon on the west coast of Baja California, Mex., where he hopes to make heart experiments on whales.

The noted Boston specialist, who has attempted the study previously and failed, said he hopes the experiments will ultimately add to scientific knowledge of the human heart.

White, who was accompanied by a group of scientists, boarded a DC-3 Friday morning and was scheduled to reach Scammon's Lagoon later Saturday. Gray whales migrate to the lagoon for calving in warm Pacific Ocean waters.

White said he and his party will hover over the lagoon in a helicopter and attempt to put electrodes into a mother whale from the air.

• • • •

PLANS CALL FOR the electrodes to pierce the muscle tissue of the whale, then transmit by radio signal an electrocardiogram to specialists waiting on a nearby beach, he said.

White attempted the study twice before by boat, once off the Southern California coast and once off the coast of Baja California, but both attempts failed. "We believe we can make our approach a little better by plane than in a boat," he said before departing on his trip today.

Meanwhile, a Los Angeles osteopathic physician and surgeon, Dr. Frank G. Nolan, reported that an expedition he planned for conducting similar studies on whales in the Catalina Channel sea lane off the Southern California coast had been postponed. He planned to leave Sunday with a fleet of small boats to conduct the tests but delayed the sailing until next week-end.

• • • •

DR. NOLAN said he planned to spot whales from a flying boat, then inject a tranquilizer drug into one of the giant mammals with a special harpoon. The tranquilizer, he said, should produce a "very happy whale" whose heart pulsations could be recorded on an electrocardiograph.

The Los Angeles surgeon said the trip was postponed because a shipment of a tranquilizer drug needed for the experiment failed to arrive and weather conditions were poor.

Dr. Nolan said he had offered his tranquilizer plan and equipment for use in the Scammon Lagoon experiment. He said Dr. White indicated that, if the present method he is using is not successful, he will have the tranquilizer drug and harpoon flown to the lagoon next week.

• • • •

THE TWO DOCTORS said that, although they planned similar whale hunts, there is no effort by either party to outdo the other or come up with a "first." Both men have agreed to exchange notes if the experiments are successful.

Four Hurt in Traffic Accidents

Four persons, including an elderly pedestrian and a small boy on a bike, were injured in traffic accidents Saturday.

Barry L. Gracely, 6, of 3128 Greenbrier Rd., suffered a severe concussion and body abrasions when he was hit by a car as he rode his bicycle at Charlemagne Ave. and Pageantry St. Driver of the car, Wayne C. Anderson, 25, of 142 W. 232nd St., was not held.

Pedestrian Milton E. Van Nattan, 62, of 935 American Ave., suffered several fractured ribs when he was hit by a car as he walked across Elm Ave. at Broadway about 2 a.m. The driver, Charles B. Shriner, 39, of 1133 Raymond Ave. was not held.

Leonard D. Wilson, 50, of the Plaza Hotel, Wilmington, was arrested for drunk driving after a three-car accident at Clark Ave. and Monlaco Rd. He suffered a forehead laceration.

Motor Officer Jack G. Calori injured his left knee when his motorcycle skidded on an oil slick and spilled on Harcourt St. near Long Beach Blvd.

U.S. Weather Bureau Marks 87th Birthday

CHICAGO (UP) — The United States weather bureau marked its 87th birthday Saturday.

The bureau is an outgrowth of a joint congressional resolution that created the U. S. signal service in 1870. Later the group became the Army Signal Corps and studied meteorological observations taken at military stations throughout the U. S.

In 1890, the bureau became a civilian unit and was expanded to include vital information for farmers, fruit-growers, cattle and sheep ranchers and foresters. The bureau has increased its service to other fields since then, including aviation and highways.

Two Broken Arms Price of Being a Good Christian

MUSKEGON, Mich. (AP)—Mrs. Martin Vargo, 55, of Muskegon Heights, fractured her right arm in a fall Friday while returning from services at Sacred Heart Catholic Church. A year ago, while returning from services at the same church she fell and broke her left arm.

"It's hard being a good Christian," she said.

Britain, Jordan Pact Ends Mar. 1

AMMAN, Jordan (AP)—Britain and Jordan have drafted a joint communique fixing March 1 as the date for ending of their mutual defense alliance, Abdullah Rimawi said Saturday. Rimawi, Jordan's state minister for foreign affairs, said in an interview the hope is negotiations over the end of a British subsidy and cancellation of British base rights in Jordan will be completed by the end of February.

Destroyer Division Returns From Orient

After a six-month tour of duty in the Far East, Destroyer Division 232 returned Saturday to home port of Long Beach and tied up at Net Pier, Long Beach Naval Station.

The division includes the vessels USS Maddox, USS Samuel N. Moore, USS Brush and USS Herbert J. Thomas.

At the outset, the division operated off the coast of Japan and Okinawa, participating in atomic offensive and defensive training exercises. Later, while patrolling waters in the Formosa Straits between Taiwan and Communist China, the division was instrumental in saving the lives of Chinese fishermen marooned on their disabled ship in a typhoon.

At Christmas, the division visited Hong Kong for six days. Eighty Chinese orphans were invited aboard ship and given gifts of clothing and toys and treated to a turkey dinner and motion pictures.

The crew also visited the cities of Yokosuka, Tokyo, Kure and Hiroshima, Japan; Subic Bay and Manila in the Philippines; Keelung and Kaosiung, Formosa; Midway and Okinawa islands; and Honolulu, Hawaii.

In Formosa, they attended an independence day celebration in the governor's mansion.

All told, the ships sailed about 32,000 miles. The division, part of the famed "Little Beavers" Squadron, which recently was recommissioned, is commanded by Capt. Howard W. Baker.

Knowland Sees $2-Billion Budget Cut

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Knowland of California predicted Saturday that Congress will help along the fight against inflation by cutting President Eisenhower's money requests by two billion dollars.

The Senate Republican leader told reporters he believes Congress will find ways to slice that amount out of the $73,300,000,000 in new spending authority the President asked.

Eisenhower and Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey have expressed hope that Congress can find places to cut their budget.

The President proposed actual spending of $71,800,000,000 in the fiscal year beginning July 1 but asked an additional 1½ billion dollars be appropriated for later outlays.

• • • •

KNOWLAND acknowledged that Congress can't control directly the amount the administration actually will spend, but he said a 2-billion-dollar slash in authorizations would be bound to cut these outlays.

"Such a reduction would set off a chain reaction and force department heads to look around to see where they can save money currently," he said. "It certainly will help to combat the inflation problem if government spending can be reduced."

Knowland pointed to Eisenhower's proposed $4,363,000,000 foreign aid program as one of the prime targets for any congressional economy move that develops. As submitted by the President, this program envisions a 256-million-dollar increase over the present level of assistance.

• • • •

OF THE TOTAL, $2,600,000,000 would be for military assistance to 38 countries. Knowland said he doubts that this figure will be reduced materially. But he said he looks for "substantial" cuts in the $1,763,000,000 proposed for economic aid.

Even if Congress forces retrenchments, Knowland said he doesn't believe there will be room for a tax cut this year. Secretary Humphrey has opposed any reduction in levies.

"There are still some people around," Knowland observed, "who think we ought to reduce the national debt. The margin of any surplus in the budget is likely to be small in any event and it should be used for debt retirement."

Knowland said that budget reductions seem likely to be Congress' principal answer to the threat of inflation against which Eisenhower has warned. The President said this week that if labor and business don't exercise voluntary restraints on wages and prices, the government may have to step in.

The Commerce and Labor Departments reported Friday that employment dropped 1,660,000 last month in the largest seasonal downturn since 1949.

Sen. Monroney (D-Okla) said "the administration's tight money policy" is disturbing the economic balance. He said the employment figures indicate that that balance is "delicate" now, with some areas of deflation and some of inflation.

"Homebuilding, the retail trades, farming and, to some extent, automobiles are in a deflationary trend," Monroney said.

Soviets Adopt 1957 Budget of $154 Billion

MOSCOW (UP) — The Supreme Soviet (parliament) Saturday unanimously adopted the 1957 budget and an economic plan calling for more consumer goods and public housing.

The Chamber of Nationalities (lower house) and the Soviet of the Union (upper house) approved both measures at separate meetings and then adjourned until Monday.

The budget, introduced last Tuesday at the opening session and approved with minor changes, provided for a six-per-cent cut in military expenditures amounting to six-billion rubles ($1.5 billion at the artificial rate of exchange.)

The Supreme Soviet, running behind on its eight-point agenda since it convened last Tuesday, accepted a budget of $154,289,000,000 in estimated revenue and $151,145,250,000 in estimated expenditures. The expected surplus amounted to $3,143,750,000 at the officially-pegged rate of four rubles to the dollar.

Mikhail Pervukhin, deputy chairman of the Soviet Council of Ministers and new troubleshooter for the Soviet industrial program, told the Soviet of Nationalities that an additional $271,500,000 would be allotted for consumer goods this year.

Additional funds will be provided for construction of schools, hospitals and dwellings throughout the Soviet Union, he said.

As a result of a plea before the Supreme Soviet by Health Minister Maria Kovrigina, on Thursday, for more aid to tuberculosis patients, it was announced that roughly $112,000,000 would be set aside for this purpose.

Benson Cuts Farm Subsidy 200 Million

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Agriculture Benson Saturday slashed about 200 million dollars out of government price-support commitments under farm-aid programs.

Benson announced lower price supports this year for cotton, oats, rye, barley, sorghum grain, soy beans, flaxseed and cottonseed. However, he continued the present rates for dairy products.

Rates are yet to be set for corn, dry beans, and a few minor products. All of these are expected to be lower, too.

The reduction in cotton was nearly $6 a bale or a total of about 72 million dollars on an average size crop. The government's price-support obligations would be reduced roughly these amounts on other average size crops: oats 70 million dollars; rye 2½ million; barley 21 million; sorghum grains 11 million; soybeans 15 million; flaxseed $1,600,000, and cottonseed 10 million.

WASHINGTON (UP) — President Eisenhower's warning this week that inflationary pressures are getting out of hand came while wages and prices were at an all-time high.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics, which keeps close tabs on both, said the cost of living had increased 18 per cent since the 1947-49 era. In the same period wages of 13 million factory workers have increased 58.5 per cent. Their average weekly pay on Dec. 31, 1956, was $84.05.

All wages rose $15 billion last year, a seven per cent jump over 1955, and personal income, including wages and salaries, is now at a rate of $333.5 billion a year.

Aussie Girl, 18, Came to Watch, But Won Auto

ADELAIDE, Australia (UP) — Beverley Paul, 18, came to town Saturday to watch 300 women race to win a small automobile at a car market.

The promoters promised to sell the car for a penny to the woman who was the first to run from the front of the market to the car and grab a flag on the hood. The women lined up and it was a regular melee.

"I only came to watch the fun," Beverley said, "but the shoving was so furious I found myself in front. So I decided to be in it.."

Beverley won. She didn't even have a penny to buy the car. Had to borrow one from a reporter.

Frat Boys Color It Up

When 49 college boys called on 82-year-old Mrs. Edna May Phillips and told her they were going to paint her house, she was a bit dubious.

But they went to work and expected to finish the job Saturday.

They are members of the Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity at Long Beach State College. This is pledge week, but instead of hazing the rookies the entire membership pitches in to do a good turn. The State Welfare Office informed them that Mrs. Phillips, a pensioner, is deserving.

Mrs. Phillips supplied the boys with oatmeal cookies, coffee and ham sandwiches.

"I never had a boy of my own, now there's a yard full of them," she smiled.

'Private Eye's' Wife Jailed Following Jealous Gunplay

SAN JOSE (UP)—Mrs. Jeanie Moulton, 31-year-old wife of the San Francisco Peninsula's professional peeper, was arrested early Saturday after admittedly shooting at her husband and his woman companion.

The private detective, Graham (I Spy) Moulton, 47, whose sleuthing has uncovered evidence in scores of Bay Area trystings, appeared at San Jose City Jail several hours afterward and offered to bail her out.

She sent him this message from her cell via a jailer:

"Honey, if you're putting up the money I would just as soon stay here."

And she did. Mrs. Moulton is held on charges of carrying a concealed weapon. Police said she told them:

"I shot at my husband and his girl friend. I'm sorry I missed."

Police said Mrs. Moulton said the episode began at 6 p.m. Friday, when she saw her husband and an attractive redhead leaving a fashionable dine-and-dance spot.

Mrs. Moulton said they drove off in Moulton's car and she trailed them in her own. She said they tried to lose her but she caught the car in a driveway in a residential section. The husband got out and explained he was on a case and that the redhaired woman was a client.

Police said that was when the shooting began, the bullets hitting no one. Moulton and the woman found refuge in an apartment occupied by Alfred Enright—a stranger—who inquired:

"What the — is going on?"

"My wife is after me. She is very jealous and she has a gun," Moulton replied succinctly.

Enright called police. Mrs. Moulton was picked up several hours later in another part of town.

Moulton said it was all a misunderstanding.

Birth of 'Peaceful Atom' Hailed by Nuclear Experts

By ROBERT GOLDSTEIN

CHICAGO (AP)—A flow of atomic generated electric power was put to use today in a ceremony hailed by the nation's top atomic leaders as "an event of historic significance in man's development of the atom for peaceful purposes."

The electricity came from the nation's first nuclear power system designed solely for electric power experiments. It is an experimental boiling water reactor.

The reactor generating 5,000 kilowatts of electricity was cut in at 4:01 p.m. est. today replacing the conventional power used at the argonne national laboratory southwest of Chicago It will remain in operation for a year.

• • • •

REP. DURHAM (D-NC), chairman of the joint committee on atomic energy, flipped the switch cutting in the atomic power and said:

"In a larger sense,, we are witnessing an important first step in the fulfilment on man's aspirations to use the mighty force of the atom to better his way of life and his hope of a more bountiful existence for all."

Lewis L. Strauss, chairman of the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission, told a dedication luncheon that Argonne's reactor is "leading the parade" in the commission's program of research in developing atomic power.

• • • •

STRAUSS SAID that AEC laboratories are now working on 10 different concepts of generating atomic power from nuclear reactors and expects to add others.

"We are presently giving earnest attention to the problem of using putonium as reactor fuel," he said. "It has never been so employed."

Strauss said that the year 1957 may be regarded in the fucooler or heated as it enters the age of nuclear power."

Red Account of Diplomat DeathRapped

WASHINGTON (UP) — Yuri Rastvorov, a former Soviet secret police officer, has challenged Russia's explanation of the death of Raoul Wallenberg, a Swedish diplomat, in a Moscow prison 10 years ago.

Rastvorov, second secretary of the Soviet Ministry in Tokyo until 1954, testified before the Senate Internal Security subcommittee in secret Friday. His testimony was made public Saturday.

Russia informed the Swedish government Thursday that Wallenberg, long-missing member of an influential banking family in Stockholm, Sweden, died in Moscow in 1947 as the result of "criminal activities" of Viktor S. Abakumov, onetime Soviet Minister for State Security.

Abakumov, one-time Soviet Min- December, 1954, for "crimes against Soviet laws" as an accomplice of the late Lavrenti P. Beria, dreaded Red secret police chief during the Stalin regime.

• • • •

RASTVOROV, one-time lieutenant in the Soviet secret police who defected to the West in 1954, said the Moscow version of Wallenberg's death was false in blaming Abakumov. He also charged it was "ridiculous to believe the Soviet government took 12 years to find records" in the Wallenberg case.

"The Soviet version of Abakumov's ultimate fate contradicts the time of Abakumov's arrest, trying to show that he was arrested as a supporter of Beria after the execution of Beria," Rastvorov said.

"In reality, Abakumov was arrested in 1951 by Stalin at the instigation of Beria because of his 'social' crimes, which was the charge of unlawful accumulation of several million rubles worth of property in Germany, and other personal crimes."

Rastvorov said Abakumov could not have been responsible for Wallenberg's death because he did not hold the post in 1944 that Moscow claimed he did.

First of Its Kind; Tractor Tows Nuclear Reactor

LITTLETON, Colo. (AP) — A rolling fortress, the first and only one of its kind, has been constructed here to tow the world's first airplane carrying a nuclear reactor.

Weighing 26,680 pounds, more than 13 tons, the strange device of cast and plate steel and windows of 75 per cent pure lead, was built by the American Coleman Co. here.

Some of the details of the tractor were cleared today after a long period of secrecy for security reasons. The vehicles is in service for the Air Force near Fort Worth, Tex.

The steel plates surrounding the cab are 2.6 inches thick. The lead windows are just as thick.

• • • •

ALL CAB OPENINGS are sealed with angular sealing protection. Fresh air is filtered cooler or heated as it enters the cabin.

The tractor has a drawbar pull of 24,000 pounds.

The driver, protected from nuclear radiation, operates a four-wheel drive and four-wheel steer to give the vehicle greater maneuverability.

Test flights of the giant aircraft, which carries a nuclear reactor, have been made over the southwestern desert country for about 18 months.

The American Coleman Co. specalizes in four-wheel steering trucks. It turns out about 100 a year.

U.S. GRIPE DAY URGED

DALLAS, Tex. (UP) — A group of Dallas businessmen said Saturday that a campaign to turn Washington's birthday into "national gripe day" is spreading.

The idea is for citizens all over the country to write President Eisenhower on February 22 and tell him what they don't like about the way the government is run.

Graham Denies He'll Quit Evangelism

NEW YORK (AP)—Billy Graham said Saturday his "life work is evangelism" and he has no intention of leaving it as long as he is able to continue.

"Further," he added, "I have never at any time considered becoming a 'fund-raiser' for any organization or institution."

Asserting that "my ministry, my calling, my life work is evangelism," Graham said, "I do not have any intention whatsoever of quitting the ministry of evangelism, but have pledged my life to this work as long as I am able to continue."

Graham, in a prepared statement, said he wished to clarify certain remarks attributed to him in a news account of a meeting for Episcopal clergymen here Friday. He said the account "distorted" his remarks.

He had ben quoted as saying that he found his present work exhausting but would continue as long as he was able though "certainly not too much longer."

CIVIL SUITS STREAMLINED

Pre-Trial Parleys Saving Time, Judge Says in Praising System

By DON MADDOCK

Pre-trial conferences in Long Beach Superior Court civil suits are off to an apparently successful start.

Presiding Civil Judge Ralph K. Pierson said the conference plan, adopted last month throughout Los Angeles County, has chopped an average half day from trial time of the 150-plus cases affected to date.

Judge Peirson moderated the first 80-odd conferences here, then turned the task over to Judge George Francis.

Other area courts reported slower progress. Both Compton and South Gate Superior Courts have but one judge each, and the conferences must be integrated with other matters.

South Gate Judge Joe Raycraft held his first conferences Friday. He has scheduled six to eight for subsequent Fridays.

Compton Judge Frank C. Charvat, faced with crowded calendars, said it will be at least a month before his first pre-trial get-togethers.

• • • •

"BUGS" REMAIN to be worked out here.

"We're still in the experimental stage," Judge Pierson pointed out. "When attorneys—and judges—become more familiar with procedures and purposes, results will be even better."

The system is not entirely popular. Some attorneys are complaining the conferences are time-consuming nuisances. But then their main value—cutting trial time—is not yet apparent, because the first trials preceded by conferences are set for March.

A second expected benefit is shortening the period between filing and trial of a case.

Average interval here now is seven or eight months (which compares favorably with the 11-month gap in Los Angeles. Advance sessions should cut the average to six months, Judge Pierson said.

• • • •

THE PRE-TRIAL conference "takes a lawsuit out of the realm of a game," Judge Pierson said. Its object is to enable opposing counsel to find points of agreement, and also to set out trial issues and disputed points.

It's now mandatory for any civil case estimated at more than two trial hours.

Take a typical traffic injury suit.

Attorneys at the conference, with the judge's help, agree to width of streets at the accident scene, weather conditions, time of day, extent of injuries as shown by medical reports and similar factual matters.

Such advance agreement eliminates much testimony. The jury can be told the agreed points quickly.

The first conference was a "splendid" example of what can be accomplished, Judge Pierson said.

The suit involved a petition of two South St. residents to block Dairy Valley from annexing a 75-acre area including their home.

Before the conference, counsel anticipated a three-day trial. Afterwards, they agreed a day and a half would be enough.

The trial will start March 5.

• • • •

PEAK EFFICIENCY still is to be realized. Some attorneys, because of unfamiliarity with the system, have entered conferences inadequately prepared.

The Bar is meeting that problem by making procedural forms available.

It has also become apparent that discovery proceedings are needed. They'd precede the conference, so each side in a case could learn the other's facts—names of witnesses, evidence, etc.

The State Bar is backing legislation to make them a must.

"The conference plan already has led to out-of-court settlement of a few suits, and discovery proceedings would jump the percentage," Judge Pierson explained.

"When an attorney is shown the opposition's big guns in advance, he'll see the merit of settlement in many cases."

Japan Will Complete Interisland Tunnel

TOKYO (UP)—A three-mile undersea vehicular and pedestrian tunnel connecting the main Japanese islands of Honshu and Kyushu is scheduled for completion early next year. The 20½-million-dollar project was started in 1938 and interrupted by World War II.

New Zealand Offers Edens Many Homes

WELLINGTON, N. Z. (UP)—Former Prime Minister Sir Anthony Eden and Lady Eden were offered their choice of 40 homes in different climes of New Zealand for their long rest cure. They have narrowed the field to two secluded places in the subtropical north that provide fishing and sunny beaching. The Edens are en route from England by ship.

Where did you first meet your new car?

Was it in an advertisement? So often the first meeting is . . . and how much it means to you and your family now. But it means even more to countless others, whose jobs depend on car sales.

When you buy a car, you help to pay the salaries of your local dealer's salesmen. Part of your money went into their bank accounts, to their grocers, to other suppliers here in town.

The circle goes on widening to include literally thousands all over America . . . all kinds of people in all kinds of jobs.

They buy cars, too, and millions of other items every day . . . from soap to securities, from Nylons to new houses. Their purchases affect you . . . as yours affected them. Many of these sales began with advertising on newspaper pages like this, country-wide.

So you can say, truthfully, that every time advertising helps to make a sale, your own paycheck and your family's way of living are just that much more secure.

Advertising Benefits You!

Zhukov in Open Split With Ike

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—Soviet Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov came Saturday to a public parting of the ways with President Eisenhower, his old soldier friend. He declared the Eisenhower doctrine for the Middle East "is a step toward war."

MARSHAL GEORGI ZHUKOV
Blasts Wartime Ally

Thhe Soviet defense minister, who has exchanged several letters with Eisenhower since their wartime association, added in a chat with reporters that the President might not be the same man he knew in Germany 12 years ago.

Of the Mideast doctrine, the touring Soviet army leader declared: "I do not know if Eisenhower really is its originator. But it is meant for interference by using American capital in the Middle East militarily and economically. It is a new edition of the old colonialist policy."

Solons Call Seaton

WASHINGTON (UP)—Senate investigators Saturday called Secretary of the Interior Fred A. Seaton to testify next week on whether he ordered aides not to answer questions about recent oil price increases.

Informed sources said a combined Senate Anti-Monopoly and Public Lands Subcommittee investigating recent oil and gasoline price rises wants to know if Seaton ordered his subordinates to withhold the information or whether Seaton acted on instructions from the White House.

Hungary Regent Dies

ESTORIL, Portugal (AP)—Adm. Nicholas Horthy, regent of Hungary from 1920 until 1944, died here Saturday at the age of 88.

His physicians attributed death to old age, aggravated by shock caused by the Soviet Union's use of force in his country. He had been ill for a fortnight.

Mother in Hunt for Clues

CHICAGO (AP)—The mother of the slain Grimes sisters went on a walking tour with authorities Saturday in a new search for clues.

Mrs. Loretta Grimes, officials and friends searched through trailer parking lots, warehouse buildings and vacant structures in the south side area where Barbara, 15, and Patricia Grimes, 13, disappeared Dec. 28 after attending a movie.

Hint Trial for Nagy

LONDON (AP) — A Hungarian Communist leader hinted Saturday that former Premier Imre Nagy may be brought to trial.

The word came from Karoly Kiss, former foreign minister and now a member of the Hungarian Communist Party executive committee, in an interview broadcast by Prague radio.

1 Boy Killed, 5 Injured

BRAWLEY (AP)—A pickup truck loaded with 11 boys returning from a basketball game plunged off a bridge into a drainage canal near here late Friday night, killing one and injuring five.

The body of Adrid Lyon, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Merle Lyon of Brawley, was not found until two hours after the accident.

Huston Wins Film Award

ROME (UP)—Hollywood movie director John Huston won an Italian silver ribbon Saturday night for the best foreign film shown in Italy during 1956. The silver ribbon is the Italian equivalent of the academy award.

Huston was the only foreigner to win the Italian prize. He was selected for his direction of "Moby Dick."

Hospital Drive Aids Slate March Dinner

Long Beach's critical shortage of hospital facilities will be outlined at a dinner meeting of the United Hospital Fund's 321-member citizens committee at 6:30 p.m. March 5 in the Lafayette Hotel.

The meeting will sound the keynote of the current $1,000,000 campaign. There will be no solicitation of funds at the session.

Hale Young, president of the Community Hospital board of directors, is heading the program committee for the dinner.

"When you walk through the corridors of Long Beach hospitals, you begin to realize the importance of the success of this campaign," he said. "The need for additional and improved facilities is great, and the modernization part of the building program is needed as much as the expansion."

• • • •

THE PROGRAM committee will "present the case of our hospitals, their problems and a plan for solution of these problems," he explained.

Presiding at the meeting will be H. E. (Bud) Ridings, campaign general chairman, and E. B. Miller, United Hospital Fund president.

The 10 newly-appointed "sales managers" of the campaign's major memorial gifts division and their 125 volunteer workers will meet at 4 p.m. Tuesday in the Lafayette Hotel to familiarize themselves with the needs of the hospitals.

The division is headed by J. Donald Locke. Group leaders are Larry A. Collins Sr., Henry H. Clock, David Feuer, Gene Bishop, Clare D. Hamman, W. Ward Johnson, Paul A. Nichol, Marshall G. Stone, Lloyd C. Leedom and Norbert Dean.

Kin of Nehru Asks Ouster of U.N. Envoy

NEW DELHI (UP) — The brother-in-law of Premier Jawaharlal Nehru Saturday demanded the ouster of Indian United Nations Delegate V. K. Krishna Menon on grounds he has "pro-Communist leanings."

Raja Hatheesingh charged in a letter to the influential "Times of India" that Menon is "the wrong man in the wrong place."

Hatheesingh criticized his brother-in-law's support of Menon and charged that Menon's failure to denounce Soviet intervention in Hungary during U. N. debate has "done a disservice to the cause of our country abroad."

He said Menon's pro-Communist leanings were implicit in the fact that the Indian Communist Party has sponsored him as a candidate in the forthcoming parliamentary elections.

"Menon's arrogance, vanity and bad temper are not only a recent byword but a continuation of the experience of many who have worked with him since 1946," Hatheesingh said.

Physician Ends Own Life by Use of 'Truth Serum'

NEW YORK (AP)—A 31-year-old gynecologist was found dead Saturday and police said he apparently committed suicide by injecting "truth serum" mixed with poison into a vein in his left forearm.

Police found the clothed body of Dr. Donald E. Stoner in his apartment in upper Manhattan. He was a resident physician at Woman's Hospital.

Attached to the doctor's arm was a needle connected to a bottle containing sodium pentathol and the poison police did not identify.

McCarthy Cautions Against Gifts of Atom-Bomb Material

CHICAGO (AP)—Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) Saturday said that, under a proposed treaty, the United States could give away enough atom-bomb material to "destroy every major city" in the United States.

McCarthy spoke before a rally of conservative Republican rank-and-filers sponsored by the Abraham Lincoln National Republican Club, an organization which has no official connection with the Republican party.

He said the proposed "atoms for peace" treaty would set up an international agency to distribute uranium 235. The agency, he added, would furnish know-how and atomic material to nations which lack them.

Declaring that some parts of the proposal "smell to high heaven," McCarthy said the United States could give 20,000 kilograms of material to the agency for re-distribution to 73 or 74 countries, including Russia and its satellites.

McCarthy joined Sen. Jenner (R-Ind) and former Sen. Herman Welker of Idaho in calling for cuts in government spending. McCarthy said the American citizens "desire, above all, relief from the crushing burden of taxes."

Jenner said that "denouncing Franklin Roosevelt, Harry Truman and Dwight Eisenhower" for the growth of big government is a waste of time. He called for election in 1958 of a Congress pledged to cut federal spending.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Meade Alcorn called on fellow Republicans Saturday night to seize the opportunity in the 1957 and 1958 elections to "solidy the new alignments now taking place" in the Republican party.

FREEDOM BALLOONS GO UP

An Air Force color guard stands ready to hoist the flag at a Crusade for Freedom ceremony Saturday in front of City Hall. Highlight of the ceremony was the release of 10 balloons similar to those used to carry freedom messages behind the Iron Curtain. Earl C. Humphrey Hits Travel Ban

WASHINGTON (UP) — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey Saturday denounced the State Department's ban on travel of U. S. newsmen to Red China. He said it was "an unwarranted abuse of the right to travel and an intolerable interference with the right to read."

The Minnesota Democrat praised "those well-known and respected American newspaper and magazine publishers who have stood up for freedom of inquiry by opposing this State Department edict."

Humphrey is a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. He said he intends to ask for a public hearing on the ban as soon as the committee finishes work on President Eisenhower's Middle East Doctrine resolution.

German Doctor Home; Still Silent on Moscow Patient

COLOGNE, Germany (UP) — German blood specialist Dr. Hans Schulten returned from Moscow Saturday and said he still could not identify the mysterious patient he treated in the Kremlin hospital.

He refused to confirm or deny that he had treated Vyacheslav Malyshev, Soviet Minister of Machine Building and former deputy premier.

Schulten also declined to say what was wrong with the patient. He did deny, however, that the illness had anything to do with atomic radiation. Malyshev had helped develop the Soviet atomic program.

The blood specialist was called to Moscow on 24 hours notice last Saturday. He was not told the identity of the man he was to treat.

In Moscow, he described his patient as of medium height, balding, white-haired, 55 or 60 years old, and without a mustache.

Schulten told newsmen Saturday he was well-received on his visits to Moscow medical centers and established many valuable contacts with Soviet physicians.

FBI Nabs Escapee

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Frank Norton, 21-year-old fugitive from the Washington State Reformatory at Monroe, Wash., was arrested Saturday by FBI agents.

Norton, who escaped Sept. 12, 1956, while serving an armed robbery term, was working as a carnival hand at a fair at Homestead, 30 miles south of Miami.

QUICK! NEW DENTURES
when you first need them
– wait 45 days for 1st CREDIT payment and take 2 years to pay, if needed

WHY SUCH EASY CREDIT

"I don't have to worry about paying my expenses as a dentist if I am interested first in giving service," Dr. Campbell said. "I have found through trial and error that every one of my offices must give a lot of credit to be prosperous. In the past, when one of my offices curtailed credit, this office became less prosperous. People gladly pay for good service when you are thinking of them before the money. My records prove that this is good business both for my patients and for me."

WHY 2 YEARS TO PAY, WHEN NEEDED

Although most people find it easy to pay my low prices in the customary 15 months, I want to remove the money barrier even more. Make up your mind now to have new dentures when you first need them.

There's Even a Tax on Getting Well

IN THIS AGE of taxes, Californians have to pay a tax on being sick enough to require medication. Even when prescribed by a physician, medicine carries the regular 4 per cent state sales tax.

Through the year this tax can add up to a sizable expense for a family suffering an average amount of sickness.

To older persons living on pensions and fixed incomes and requiring constant medication this tax is a distinct hardship.

Persons with certain types of diseases can no more do without their regular doses of medicine than they can do without food, which, incidentally, is not subject to the sales tax.

The fact that a doctor has written the prescription is evidence of the vital nature of the medical purchase, yet strangely our state Revenue and Taxation Code does not take this into consideration.

IT SHOULD. And, if the State Legislature approves a bill which has been introduced by Assemblymen Klocksiem, Grant, Rumford, and Coolidge, it will.

Their bill would exempt taxes on drugs dispensed on prescriptions filled by registered pharmacists in accordance with law.

Assemblyman Klocksiem, principal author of the measure, notes that the bill has been referred to the Committee on Revenue and Taxation, of which he is a member and of which Assemblyman Coolidge is chairman. Thus the chances that the bill will go to the floor of the Assembly are excellent.

It will be interesting to see what objections, if any, will be raised there against a measure so worthy. Perhaps the main one will be that it would deprive the state of needed revenue.

But Assemblyman Coolidge points out that revenue produced by the sales tax on prescription drugs is, comparatively speaking, but a "trifle"—that is, for the state, but not from the standpoint of those who have to pay it.

"IT'S BAD ENOUGH," says Assemblyman Coolidge, "for people to suffer sickness let alone having to pay a tribute to the state in order to get well again."

His view is seconded by Assemblyman Rumford who, by the way, happens to be a druggist. Rumford agreed to share authorship of the bill because he has observed first-hand the hardships which result for many of our citizens who must spend a large per cent of meager incomes to pay for medicine, plus tax.

JOHN S. KNIGHT

Nice, but Where Do We Get the Money?

FORMER PRESIDENT HERBERT HOOVER is not my favorite prophet.

But he is right on the beam in warning that "Old Man Economic Law" will catch up with this nation unless government spending slows down.

Hoover learned the hard way. He was President from 1929 to 1933—the years when inflation turned into the Great Depression.

The people who had been promised a chicken in every pot wound up selling apples on the street corner.

Today, we have another slogan, "The New America."

No one will work more than 30 or 35 hours a week; everybody will have full security.

Now this is most appealing, but like all such paternalistic and benevolent schemes, there's a catch to it.

Where do we get the money? Who pays the bill?

THE "NEW" SCHOOL of economists insists that critics of big government spending forget that the bulk of spending is either for security or for productive purposes that help raise the capacity of the economy to turn out goods.

They admit the existence of waste but say that it amounts to ONLY 10 per cent of the national budget.

The 10 per cent they dismiss so lightly is more in dollars than it cost to run the entire federal government 20 years ago.

And we are paying an equal amount in interest on the national debt.

Do we achieve a continuing prosperity by defying all known economic laws?

Can we continue to spend $103 billion a year on government without weakening our economic structure?

Will we be able to satisfy the welfare and public works dreams of every politician and remain solvent?

How long can the current wage-price spiral continue without getting sharp consumer resistance?

These are questions which should concern every citizen, for as the government takes the economy to higher and higher levels, the bigger the tumble when business slows down.

IN LAST WEDNESDAY'S press conference, President Eisenhower said that unless labor and management "act as enlightened Americans" and fight inflation, the government must move in with price, wage and production controls.

The President added: "And when we begin to control prices and allocations and wages, then it is not the America we know."

Indeed, it is not. Barring war, the imposition of controls is in itself a confession that our free competitive system is not functioning as it should.

But the President would have been in a stronger position to urge wage and price restraint upon labor and business if he had further declared:

"And I intend to set the example by asking Congress to appropriate $5 billion less than the $72 billion originally requested by this administration.

"Some agencies of government will suffer, foreign aid must be reduced, but we can and will carry on without adversely affecting our national defense or failing to meet the obligations of our social welfare programs.

"I recommend this course of action because under present circumstances, I believe it to be right."

Had Eisenhower spoken in this vein, there would have been wails of anguish from the White House to the Capitol with every spender, do-gooder and bureaucrat crying like mad.

But the people would have loved it because this is the language they understand. Ike would have won his first round in the battle against inflation. Public confidence would have soared.

I AM OFTEN ASKED whether it is possible to reduce the operating expenses of a government as big and complex as ours.

The answer is an unqualified "Yes."

Ask any man who has ever worked for a government agency where bureaucrats become creatures of habit, where civil service advancements come faster when the agency grows; where the temptations to spend invariably overrule sound judgment.

The Hoover Commission's task forces have shown how to cut federal spending at the rate of $4 to $5 billion a year. The Eisenhower administration has accepted more than 60 per cent of their recommendations "in principle," but that doesn't get the job done.

Unless there is a strong public demand for the adoption of these measures, the proposals will sink into a bog of bureaucratic inertia.

Has America Forgotten Young Men Who Sacrificed in Korea?

WASHINGTON — This is a story concerning the parents and relatives of the 33,629 American boys killed and about the 103,284 who were wounded in the Korean war. Some of these boys were maimed. Some are still confined to beds or wheelchairs and will be for the rest of their lives.

These young Americans — and the more than 1,000,000 who came back safely — were put into uniform and asked to serve the United Nations in repelling Communist aggression in Korea. The sacrifices they made, the bravery they exhibited, the anguish their parents and relatives felt as word came of the tragic fate of so many of them at the hands of the enemy are not forgotten by the families of these soldiers and sailors, Marines and airmen.

LAWRENCE

But has the rest of America forgotten them?

Today, as one reads a press dispatch from New York, there is reason to doubt whether even the publishers of some newspapers remember what happened in Korea. For it says that a group of publishers, constituting the board of directors of the American Newspaper Publishers Assn., has passed a resolution declaring that American reporters should be allowed to travel "in any country with which the United States is not at war." The stated purpose of the resolution was to petition President Eisenhower and the State Department to lift the ban on travel by American newsmen who have been invited by the Communist government in Peiping to go to Red China.

• • • •

THE ASSUMPTION in the resolution is that the United States is "not at war" with Red China's government. But it is a wrong assumption. It is surprising that such a resolution could be adopted and sent not only to the President but to the Vice President and the Speaker of the House as representing the viewpoint of American newspaper publishers.

Not only is the United States still in a state of war with the Red China government but so also is the United Nations. In fact, the military forces of the United States are today stationed in Korea guarding the armistice line as the official agents of the United Nations.

No peace treaty with the Communist Chinese has ever been signed. The armistice terms have repeatedly been violated. No access to North Korea has been given by the Communists even to the inspection teams from the United Nations charged with the duty of observing whether the armistice terms are being violated.

On Wednesday of this very week, Walter S. Robertson, the assistant secretary of state for Far Eastern affairs, made a speech at Bloomington, Ill., in which he said:

"In 1950, having been in power less than a year, Red China invaded Korea and was promptly branded an aggressor against the peace of the world by United Nations resolution. That resolution is still outstanding. If Red China was an aggressor in 1950, it is an aggressor in 1957. Its armies are still in military occupation of North Korea. It has shown complete disregard for international commitments made on its own account. Signing an armistice in Korea in July 1953 calling for the exchange of all war prisoners, it held back groups of our prisoners and later bargained for their release. It brought into North Korea hundreds of modern airplanes and other combat equipment prohibited by the armistice agreement."

Congress has by law forbidden Americans to engage in any trade or transactions with the Red Chinese. American correspondents who take American money into China violate the law of the United States.

• • • •

IF CERTAIN members of the press can ignore the laws governing trade with the Red Chinese and escape prosecution, what will be said to businessmen who attempt to defy their own government and violate its laws governing exchange control?

So far as Congress and the State Department are concerned, the boys who were killed or wounded in Korea have not been forgotten. There is still a state of war with the Red Chinese, and America rightly refuses to change its policies until Red China has released all the American prisoners and atoned for its crimes.

U.S. Army Now Has Only 116 Horses in Its Stables

WASHINGTON — About the only power on earth that can save the 17 funeral horses of the U. S. Army from ignominious oblivion is the man who rules the House Armed Services Committee, Congressman Carl Vinson of Georgia. Unless he speaks out, the 16 perfectly matched grays and one black which have been pulling military funerals at Fort Myer, Va., will go the way of other horses in the now almost horseless army of the United States.

In actual count of years, it hasn't been long since the cavalry was the proudest, most aristocratic, noblest branch of the Army. Dashing cavalry officers then looked down on the lowly plodding infantry. The Army even maintained a battery of polo ponies at most forts, and officers' wives rode to the hunt every week end.

PEARSON

Those days are not only over, but the General Motors efficiency experts who now run the Defense Department have found that a military funeral costs only $2.15 when the coffin is carried by a motor hearse. A funeral with the coffin carried on an artillery caisson pulled by four gray horses with one riderless horse bringing up the rear costs $175. This runs into an annual bill of $9,350 for hearse funerals, $71,083 for horse-drawn funerals.

It isn't worth that much to bury the dead, say the economy experts at the Pentagon. Sixteen horses have to be kept for extra funerals. They have to be fed. They even have to be groomed. Furthermore, blacksmiths are getting scarce. There are only two in Northern Virginia. And they're getting old. Young men don't take up the trade anymore.

Furthermore, the 1948 Chrysler hearse and 1951 Cadillac don't eat gasoline between funerals. Finally, only 103 relatives out of 850 burials last year requested caisson funerals.

So, unless Congress intervenes, the last military horses in or around Washington will have to go.

Yes, there's been quite a change since the U. S. Army horse team used to rate high in the Olympics. Mexico can afford to enter the Olympics today. Also the Chilean Army and the Italian Army. But not the U. S. Army. It's too expensive.

Today only 116 horses remain in the entire U. S. Army, plus 314 mules and 950 dogs.

Coming Confabs of Volunteer Groups Stir Politics in Area

LOCAL POLITICS is showing signs of stirring out of the off-year doldrums as Democrats begin planning for a state convention of volunteer clubs in Long Beach next mid-month which may turn out to be the biggest political meeting ever held here.

And Republican interest is perking up over plans for a meeting of their biggest volunteer organization at Disneyland late this month.

EPLEY

Jim Suhrer, general chairman for the California Democratic Council convention, estimates that more than 2,000 will be here as delegates and alternates for an affair that will be largely devoted to plans for seizing control of California at the 1958 elections.

The convention is scheduled for March 15, 16 and 17, and if it follows precedents set at recent annual meetings of the CDC at Fresno, it will spark up a lot of statewide interest. While there will be no candidate endorsements such as those which set off fireworks at Fresno, the intense scheming for 1958, with the Democrats scenting new victories that year, should keep the state political spotlight on the doings at the Wilton Hotel and the Municipal Auditorium.

RIGHT NOW the CDC executive committee is looking for a big national figure for keynote speaker — somebody like Sen. Humphrey of Minnesota or Sen. Morse or Sen. Neuberger of Oregon. Official business of the convention will include the election of state officers and passage of resolutions and by-law changes. Suhrer says he knows of no issues likely to arouse controversy, but there's always that possibility when politicians get together.

The CDC is the statewide organization of volunteer Democratic clubs which in 1956 chose State Sen. Richard Richards to run for the U. S. Senate against Republican Thomas H. Kuchel. Richards' endorsement over Democrat Sam Yorty touched off a sensational incident when Yorty charged the convention was wired and stacked.

THE CDC SEEMS to have gained steadily in prestige and recognition as a powerful factor in California politics. Suhrer says it is "getting muscles" and that some leading Democrats who once looked down their noses at it are now indicating mounting interest in its promise of accomplishments.

The Wilton Hotel will be the convention headquarters, and sessions will be held at the Auditorium. There will be considerable around-the-edges activity over the question of candidates for 1958, when the Democrats will try to take the U. S. Senate seat now held by Republican Sen. W. F. Knowland, the governorship now held by Republican Goodwin J. Knight, and other Republican-held offices. Knowland's decision not to seek re-election, and the tantalizing possibility he might challenge Knight for the governorship, will add zest to the hot stove activities at the CDC meeting.

Suhrer and his convention committee, by the way, are running into an old problem—Long Beach's inaccessibility to train travelers. Some delegates have expressed amazement that they can't come directly to this city by train and that getting here from Los Angeles is an adventure in inconvenience. This may cut attendance at the Democratic confab.

"It's difficult to make them understand that this city of 320,000 people has such poor ingress and egress arrangements," said Suhrer, echoing a complaint that has been often voiced by this writer.

WHILE THE DEMOCRATS are planning their Long Beach affair, Republicans throughout the state are getting ready to move on nearby Disneyland for the annual convention of the California Republican Assembly set for Feb. 22, 23 and 24.

Like the Demo confab this off-year event will be featured by heavy planning for 1958, with opposite objectives, of course. Officers will be elected and resolutions passed at meetings to be held at the Disneyland Hotel.

TOWN MEETING

What's World Coming to?

TO THE EDITOR:

Did you read in the paper where the City Council's ordinance committee voted to abate excessive noises? What kind of a free America are we living in when we are no longer allowed to blow the horn on our car or allow it to have any creaking noises or rattles? We must not whistle, sing or yell and the volume of our radios and televisions must meet certain regulations. Our dogs, cats, and birds must be kept quiet at all times. We must not do any pounding around our home or make any other kinds of noises that might be disturbing.

• • • •

WE BOUGHT a home so we could have some freedom. We like to make repairs around our home and keep it up nice. We also like dogs and cats and they like to bark and meow occasionally. If we had a bird it would chirp too as that is their nature. Are we supposed to move out in the desert someplace where we can talk above a whisper and make a few noises without being penalized? What is this world coming to when the average family can no longer have any freedom in their own home?

A. L. McKIEARNAN.
1441 Michelson St.

(Editor's note: The anti-noise law would apply only to excessive noises that disturb the peace, not to the normal noises of everyday living.)

Brings to Light Dog Problem

TO THE EDITOR:

I would like to bring to light the problem of stray dogs in Garden Grove.

In our tract there are about 25 stray dogs. There are dog fights going on at all hours of the day and night.

When you call the dog catcher, he is so busy it takes him three to four hours to get to your house, and by that time most of the dogs are gone.

You call him again when the dogs are back. Three hours later he comes out and cannot catch the dogs.

So you catch the dog yourself and call the dog catcher back.

• • • •

HE COMES OUT much later and tells you it is illegal to imprison another's pet, and lets the dog go.

This actually took place this week.

The neighbors keep calling the dog catcher, but he says he can't come out where there is just one complaint.

The only satisfaction he has offered is to suggest that we get the name and address of the dog's owner, and he will warn the owner to keep the animal home.

Will we have to wait until one of our kids is attacked by a rabid animal before we get action?

'The FBI Story' Excellent Feature

TO THE EDITOR:

Your book-serial, "The FBI Story," has been an excellent feature, and I wish to congratulate you on the venture. Since most poor people like myself concentrate on the economical, pocket-book type of publication, "The FBI Story" undoubtedly would not have received the circulation it so rightly deserves except through the efforts of your paper.

I would enjoy other books published continuously in this manner, and I'm sure many other readers would also. It's very easy to read a chapter a day.

Capri Pants Well Named

TO THE EDITOR:

Capri is the beginning of the word caprice, which means fickleness and unsteadiness. Believe me, considering what Capri pants do to men who see them, they are well-named.

What I see men do when they see a pair of Capri pants go wiggling down the street is enough to turn this old girl's hair gray.

• • • •

ONE DADDY was wheeling his baby boy down the street in a walker. Daddy stopped to watch a couple of pairs of Capri's go by, and the little boy took off in his walker and just missed going over the curb into the downtown traffic. I felt like beating the man over the head and kicking those Capri's in the seat.

As I followed them down the street, I saw a man waiting for his wife in the car. As he watched the Capri pants go by, his wife came around the car to get in, and he shifted the wrong way and nearly ran over her.

SENATOR SOAPER SAYS:

Clown Will Feel at Home With Brooklyn Dodgers

By BILL VAUGHAN

KHRUSHCHEV says, "God grant that every Communist should be able to fight like Stalin." His veneration for Stalin is understandable, but where did he hear about God?

Featherweight Mirror Readied to Help Scientists Study Sun

By RENNIE TAYLOR
Associated Press Science Reporter

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—A remarkable piece of metal—weighing only 12 pounds but costing $1,700—is being readied here as a possible tool for astronomers to study the sun.

The substance is beryllium, lightest of all metals. It is in the form of a disc, about 12 inches in diameter and two inches thick.

The beryllium disc is of potential value in astronomy because it may be able to face the sun and absorb its heat without getting too much out of shape to act as a light-collecting mirror for a solar telescope.

The government-supported National Science Foundation is planning to set up a test telescope at several sites in the United States and the Pacific islands as posible locations for observatories. The tentative sites thus far picked include Junipero Serra Peak in Monterey County, Calif., and the summit of volcanic Mauna Loa in Hawaii.

• • • •

AT THE foundation's observatory project here the disc first will be subjected to the sun's heat and measurements made of the extent of its warping under thermal attack.

How it behaves in this test will determine whether it may itself by ground into a mirror for one of the instruments.

Glass is the principal material for solar as well as star telescopes. It heats up slowly and the image it reflects thus is fairly free from distortion.

Beryllium heats up rapidly. But it may turn out to be good mirror material, says Dr. A. B. Meinel, observatory project director, because there is a possibility that it will throw off heat about as fast as it absorbs it.

The way beryllium molecules fit together in the metal also indicates its desirability as possible mirror material. In addition it is very hard, and can be ground like glass.

• • • •

A PORTABLE solar telescope will be set up in the near future at the various tentative sites to calculate the "solar seeing." They will be under the supervision of Leon Salanave, astronomer from the California Academy of Sciences, who recently joined the project here.

The sun's brilliance is one thing that has prevented astronomers from solving numerous solar mysteries. That is why eclipses are valuable to observers. An eclipse momentarily blots out the blinding light of the sun's face so that hot gases above its surface can be studied.

TERRANG RACES TO SAN ANTONIO VICTORY IN TRACK RECORD

With Ismael Valenzuela in the saddle, Terrang races to 5¾ lengths victory in $57,800 San Antonio Handicap at Santa Anita Saturday. Terrang's time of 1:47 2/5 set track record for a mile and one-eighth. Honeys Alibi was second and Social Climber finished third.—(Associated Press Wirephoto)

FAVORITES FAR BACK

Terrang Upsets in Record Time

Terrang, winner of the Santa Anita Derby last year but a mediocre stakes performer since, raced to a surprise victory in track record time Saturday in the $57,800 San Antonio Handicap at Santa Anita.

Terrang raced the mile and an eighth in 1:47 2/5 to cut four-fifths of a second off the track record as the favored Mister Gus and Holandes II failed to get up among the first three. Your Host set the previous record in 1951.

The victory of Terrang was in the colors of Lawrence S. Pollock of Dallas, Tex., who purchased the colt from Rex C. Ellsworth, the owner of Swaps, earlier this winter for a reported $90,000 and got back more than a third of his investment Saturday.

• • • •

THE GAME AND consistent Honeys Alibi was second, more than five lengths back of the winner, while Social Climber was third and Duc De Fer was fourth in the field of nine starters.

Terrang went off at odds of nearly 12-1 and he returned $25.30, $10.20 $4.40 across the board. Honeys Alibi paid $4.00 and $2.90 for place and show and Social Climber, running as an entry with Mister Gus, returned $2.60 for show.

It was an amazing reversal of form for Terrang who had failed to win a race since last spring when he came up to capture the Santa Anita Derby for Ellsworth. But he ran a true race Saturday under the handling of Ismael Valenzuela and his margin of victory was five and three-quarters lengths at the finish. Hollandes II finally wound up in fifth place and Mister Gus was a dismal seventh.

• • • •

TERRANG FOLLOWED the early pace of Duc De Fer from the start in front of the grandstand until that speedster faded in the stretch and dropped out of contention. It was then that it appeared as if Holandes might be making a move after having laid back in fifth position going around the turn but

Casper's 66 Good for 4-Stroke Lead

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — The best golf of his life Saturday gave Billy Casper of Bonita, Calif., a four-stroke lead in the $15,000 Tucson Open with a 66-65-66—197.

"These were the three best rounds I've ever shot," Casper said. "The golf I played today was the best of the week."

Dow Finsterwald of Tequesta, Fla., and Bob Harris of Winnetka, Ill., were tied in second place with 54-hole scores of 201.

A pair of newcomers, Don Whitt of Alameda, Calif., and John Cleary of Hartford, Conn., were a stroke behind at 202.

Casper started the round with a single-stroke advantage over Harris. He birdied the first hole, but went over par on the 424-yard seventh with a short approach. The roly-poly Californian steadied and took birdies on the eighth, ninth and 12th holes.

• • • •

CASPER HAD THE lead clinched when he went off the 18th tee. He played the last hole conservatively, but nevertheless added another birdie.

He was not expected to stand the same kind of pressure at last week's Phoenix Open—but he still took top money. He showed no signs of stress or strain Saturday.

A tremendous iron and putter man, Casper was true to the pin on most of his approach shots. However, on the par three eighth hole his tee shot bounced away from the green and onto the side of a bunker, but he calmly and surely chipped it in from 30 feet.

• • • •

HARRIS, WHO HAS never won a major tournament, showed signs of nervousness. His 68-64-69—201 was the best he has ever carded on the tourney tour.

"This is a situation I'm not accustomed to. I knew I had a chance for the lead, and I guess I tried too hard."

Finsterwald credited good putting to his 68-67-66—201. "I holed four very nice putts for birdies on the 2nd, 4th, 10th and 17th greens," he said. "That was the story of my round."

FLAM UPSET BY UCLA ACE

PALM DESERT (UP) — UCLA tennis star Mike Franks and unseeded Tom Brown of San Francisco scored major upsets in semifinal matches of the sixth annual Palm Desert Invitational tennis tournament at Shadow Mountain Club Saturday to move into the finals.

Franks defeated top-seeded Herb Flam, 12-10, 6-3. Brown eliminated Peruvian champion Alex Olmedo, 12-10, 6-1.

In women's singles, Pat Todd of La Jolla defeated Sally Moore of Bakersfield, 6-4, 6-3 and Dorothy Cheney of Santa Monica dropped Jacqueline Tegland of Los Angeles, 6-2, 6-2. Both winners were top seeded.

Texas Tech Upsets SMU

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UP)—Offbeaten Texas Tech held Southern Methodist, the nation's No. 4 team, scoreless the final five minutes Saturday night and pumped in 12 straight points to stage a hectic 68-67 upset with the winning points coming with five seconds to play.

Chuck Key, a 19-year-old sophomore reserve playing before his hometown crowd of 6,000, stole the ball away from SMU just seconds after the Mustangs had pilfered it away from Tech in a move that apparently had preserved the SMU victory.

SMU, the Southwest Conference defending champion, had beaten Tech, a member-elect of the conference, 101-72 earlier this season in Dallas.

SMU's big Jim Krebs won the game's scoring honors with 21 points despite hobbling slightly on two injured ankles, but even he couldn't beg a point during that final Tech flurry that wiped out an 11-point SMU lead.

Rochester Clips Celtics, 103-102

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UP)—The Rochester Royals handed the Boston Celtics their second defeat within 24 hours Saturday when they won a nationally-televised National Basketball Association game, 103-102.

The Royals led all the way except when, with one minute to play, Bill Sharman's field goal gave the Celtics a 100-99 lead. Then Maurice Stokes scored and Ed Fleming added two free throws for a Rochester three-point lead. Bill Russell of the Celtics scored unmolested with six seconds left and that ended the scoring.

Huskies Hand UCLA 90-74 Loss

SEATTLE (AP) — Washington's hot-shooting Huskies peeled a big gob of glitter off the UCLA Bruins Saturday night, whipping the Pacific Coast Conference leaders, 90-74, to end their PCC basketball winning streak at 23 straight.

The upset of the nation's fifth-ranked team was the first UCLA defeat in regular season conference play since they lost to Stanford in 1955.

The Bruins were shooting for their 35th straight in conference play not counting title playoffs.

Washington had a direct line to the target, hitting more than half their shots from the field for a .526 percentage. The team that dropped a 68-65 decision to the Bruins Friday was hitting from all angles and all ranges to keep the crowd of 11,000 on its toes from whistle to gun. Washington clicked on 30 of 57 shots, UCLA on 26 of 73 for .355 per cent.

• • • •

THE BRUINS got away in front on two free throws by Conrad Burke but Washington quickly tied it up, went ahead, 4-2, and never again let the Uclans develop a serious threat.

The outside shooting of guard Johnny Tuft and the rebounding and hook shooting of Doug Smart kept the Bruins well in control. Smart garnered 31 points, Tuft 21. Bruno Boin of Washington was third high scorer with 17 and Walt Torrence and Jim Halsten led the Bruins with 12.

Washington went to intermission with a 43-32 advantage, spread that gap to 15 points early in the second session and never let the Bruins get closer than 10 points the rest of the route.

• • • •

THE WASHINGTON victory handed the conference lead to California, which was trimming Oregon State at the same time. UCLA, which had won 12 straight this year since an early defeat by Brigham Young, dropped into second, with Washington in third place.

Each team lost its center on fouls in the second half. Burke bowed out with 15 minutes to play and Boin headed for the showers with four minutes on the clock.

Smart picked off 20 rebounds, twice as many as any other player.

Cal Nabs Lead, 8th Straight

CORVALIS, Ore. (AP) California ran off its eighth straight victory in the Pacific Coast Conference basketball race Saturday night and also took over undisputed possession of first place by breezing to a 62-51 decision over Oregon State.

Coupled with Washington's win over UCLA it put California alone at the top of the standings.

With four minutes remaining in the first half California broke from a scant 22-21 lead to score 10 straight points, and the home team never was in serious contention again.

• • • •

AT HALFTIME the margin was 32-23 and California never let the Beavers get closer than seven points in the closing period.

Larry Friend, California's high-scoring forward, again led the way with 20 points. Oregon State's big gun, as usual, was forward Dave Gambee, who rolled up 19.

The spurt that put California in front to stay late in the first half was led by center Duane Asplund and guard Mike Diaz. Each contributed four points and guard Allan Buch added two more.

Oregon State's regular center, Gary Goble, suffered an eye injury in Friday night's game, and sat out this one. He is expected to be back in action next week.

NEW YORK — The Long Beach, Calif., Flying Wheels downed the New York Spokesmen, 47-40, in a paraplegic basketball game here Saturday night.

CAMPBELL, SOWELL SET RECORDS

Delany Whips Tabori in 4:06.7

NEW YORK (UP) — Olympic 1,500 meter champion Ron Delany of Ireland won the first indoor duel of four-minute milers in the Millrose Games Saturday night and world board track records were shattered by burly Milt Campbell in the 60-yard high hurdles and Arnie Sowell of Pittsburgh in the 880-yard run.

Horace Ashenfelter won the two mile for the fifth time in 9:02.3 after his chief rival, Fred Dwyer, dropped out with seven laps to go. Phil Coleman was second and Alex Breckenridge third.

Bob Richards and Bob Gutowski tied in the pole vault at 15-6, a new meet record. Both had three misses at the world record of 15-8¼.

Phil Reavis and Charles Stead of Villanova tied in the high jump at 6-8, while Ira Murchison won the 60-yard dash in 6.2.

Delany, a student at Villanova who ran the mile in 3:59 at Compton, Calif., last June and never has lost an indoor mile, scored by 10 yards over another "four-minute miler" — Lazslo Tabori, the self exiled Hungarian. Delany's time was 4:06.7 for his second straight victory in the Wanamaker Mile before a crowd of 16,000 at Madison Square Garden.

Campbell, Olympic decathlon champion, twice ran the hurdles in seven seconds flat, bettering the old mark of 7.1 set by Harrison Dillard.

Sowell's half-mile in 1:50.3 clipped two-tenths of a second off the old record set by the late John Borican in 1942.

In the Wanamaker, Delany followed his usual tactics of laying far back through the early laps while Jim Beatty of North Carolina set the pace and then at the half mile Tabori took over. Finally, with three laps to go, Delany moved up from fifth place, caught Beatty and challenged Tabori.

With a lap and a half to go, Delany charged into the lead and gradually opened it up. Bobby Seaman of UCLA was third and Beatty was fourth.

Fractional times were 59.3 for the first quarter, 2:02.5 for the half and 3:06.3 for three-quarters. Tabori was clocked in 4:07.6 and Seaman in 4:08.3.

Sowell, in winning his 15th straight indoor race, whipped Olympic 800-meter champion Tom Courtney by five yards and Harry Bright of New York was third. Courtney was clocked in 1:51.

"I knew Courtney was behind me all the time," said Sowell. "And I also knew I'd better keep moving. Personally, I would not be sorry if I never ran against him again."

Courtney was not in a good mood after the race. In answer to a question, he snapped. "If I didn't think I could ever beat Sowell I'd quit. I can beat him indoors or outdoors."

Campbell won with a spectacular surge in a semi-final qualifying heat and duplicated the time in the finals with Lee Calhoun right at his heels. Charles Pratt of New York was third. Campbell was caught by two timers in seven seconds and by a third in 7.2.

In the opening event, veteran Reggie Pearman of New York upset Olympic 400-meter champion Charlie Jenkins in the 600-yard run by four yards in 1:11.

Jenkins held the lead for two laps but let Pearman take it away at 300 yards. Perman, instead of faltering on the final lap as expected, lengthened his lead with every stride.

Heiss, Jenkins in Figure Skate Lead

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (AP)—World champion Carol Heiss of Ozone Park, N. Y., turned the women's division into a runaway but the men's favorite, Dave Jenkins of Colorado Springs, Colo., ran into strong opposition Saturday in the opening phase of the North American Figure Skating championships.

The 17-year-old Miss Heiss, a rhapsody of grace with a red ribbon in her hair, was a unanimous choice of five judges after a spectacular performance in the compulsory figures.

She ran up a total of 588.5 points to take an insurmountable lead over the two-time Canadian champion, Carol Jane Pachl of Toronto, who was second with 551.6.

Jenkins took a slim lead over Charles Snelling of Toronto, three-time Canadian champion. Jenkins had 552.8 points compared with 547.9 for the Canadian.

Snelling made a muff of his final figure when a good performance might have given him a halfway lead.

Miss Heiss and Jenkins now are heavily favored to wrap up individual championships in today's free skating. Compulsory skating, which consists of tracing involved figures, counts 60 per cent in over-all judging and free skating 40.

Miss Heiss brought repeated applause from the gallery with her almost flawless and graceful execution.

CARDS COULD WIN WITH BREAK OR TWO

ST. LOUIS (AP)—"With a break or two we could finish on top," General Manager Frank Lane of the St. Louis Cardinals said Saturday.

Lane predicted the Cardinals would win 10 to 12 more games than they did in 1956.

". . . That would make a total of 86 or 88 victories, enough to put us in serious contention for the pennant," Lane remarked.

He added that the Cardinals had added stability by winter trades which brought to the club pitchers Sam Jones and Jim Davis, outfielder Del Ennis, catcher Hobie Landrith, and utilityman Eddie Miksis.

Lane admitted, however, the Cardinals needed a strong hitting centerfielder and some more pitching.

Tarheels Scared, but Survive, 75-73

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (UP)—Tommy Kearns tossed in two free throws with 16 seconds left Saturday night to set up the 18th straight victory of the season for first-ranked North Carolina, 75-73, over arch-rival Duke.

It was Kearns who twice lost the ball on steals in the last minute of play enabling the Blue Devils to tie the score at 73-73 with 24 seconds to play. Duke guard Bob Vernon scored two quick baskets on feeds from guard Bobby Joe Harris, who had stolen the ball from Kearns.

With two minutes to play the Tarheels had what appeared to be a comfortable 73-65 lead. But Duke had led most of the game, and it was not until the last 10 minutes that the Tarheels, the nation's only major undefeated college team, began to pull out.

Led by Lennie Rosenbluth's 35 points, the Tarheels appeared to have a rout in the making just before the last-minute Duke rally.

Rosenbluth scored his 11th field goal with 2:05 left to give the Tarheels their 73-65 advantage. But four free throws by the Blue Devils cut it to 73-69 with 45 seconds to play. Then Harris put on his ball-stealing show and Vernon hit baskets with 31 and 24 seconds to play.

Duke led at halftime 41-36, and the Blue Devils had an eight-point lead, 39-31, shortly before halftime.

Oklahoma Aide Shifts to Iowa State

AMES, Iowa (UP)—Dick Heatly, freshman coach for the University of Oklahoma, Saturday was named an assistant football coach at Iowa State College.

Heatly, who will be primarily a backfield defense coach, completes the five-man staff of new head coach Jim Myers.

The new aide was "highly recommended" by Oklahoma head coach Bud Wilkinson, college officials said.

HUNDLEY HITS 2,000 MARK

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Hot Rod Hundley became the fifth basketball player in major college history to score more than 2,000 points in a three-season career here Saturday night as West Virginia shook off tenacious Richmond in the last two minutes for an 87-81 Southern Conference victory.

Hundley tallied 32 points for the Mountaineers to hike his career total to 2,001.

Once Over Lightly

By DAVE LEWIS

In our opinion, it was a stroke of genius on the part of Brooklyn President Walter O'Malley in adding Emmett Kelly, the most famous of all circus clowns, to the Dodger organization.

A fugitive from the floundering circus world, the saddest clown since Pagliacci will perform before home games at Ebbets Field and Jersey City besides making side trips to Montreal, St. Paul, Fort Worth and other cities in the Brooklyn chain. He'll make his debut with the Dodgers during the spring exhibition games in Florida.

EMMETT KELLY

It was Willard Mullin, noted New York cartoonist, who invented the Bum as the Dodger prototype several years ago.

And now the Dodgers, who have become known as "Dem Bums," have brought the Bum to life with Kelly and his famous characterization.

Strangely enough, after Kelly had signed the contract, he revealed that "the Dodgers have been my favorite team for years and I couldn't be more pleased about anything than to be associated with them."

Emmett's interest in the Dodgers and baseball is illustrated by an incident which occurred a few seasons ago.

"The circus was in San Antonio when the 1952 World Series started and I wanted to hear about the Dodgers and Yankees on the radio. But because of the time difference I didn't have much chance before I had to go into the tent for a performance.

"I had a small portable radio and I thought, what the heck, I'll take it out with me in a paper sack and nobody will know what's in the sack.

"But as part of the act, I had to ride in a buggy behind an elegant team of horses. The jiggling upset the tuning, and I kept mumbling all the way around the arena about missing the Series and the girl in the buggy wanted to know what was the matter and what I had in the sack.

"I missed some of the game, but finally I got it tuned in again."

O'MALLEY SIGNED THE 58-YEAR-OLD clown despite the warning by several advisors not to sign him for fear of repercussions in ridicule of the entire club.

But O'Malley went ahead on his own with the explanation that "the world is entirely too serious. I want it to start laughing again."

Along these lines, it is noted that clowns have played classic roles down through the years and psychiatrists say even in times of great peril, man has a need to laugh.

Kelly started out in 1921 with a character he dubbed Weary Willie. He never smiled and his makeup sent his lips spiraling into depression. Everything he attempted failed. There was no uplift, all gloom.

But for some refinements in his routine, Kelly's Weary Willie is essentially the same as it was 36 years ago.

The sad-faced character Kelly portrays epitomizes the kind of hopelessness in which every man finds himself at some time or other. The pathetic, hurt look will always win over people. This is true in Jackie Gleason's character, "The Poor Soul."

Ringling Brothers Circus once listed 33 types of clowns . . . the crackerjacks, loons, motley fools, bumpkins, zanies, etc., but failed to mention the "baseball clown" who has proved so successful down through the years.

Nick Altrock was the first really big success as a clown and later teamed up with Al Schacht who has since become the greatest clown performer in the history of the game. Charley Grimm used to produce many laughs while in the coaching box as have many other managers and players. Max Patkin is one of the leading clowns today . . . and most fans around here will remember the artistry of Chesty Chet Johnson, who was one of the PCL's top draws with his clowning before Sacramento released the veteran pitcher a year ago.

O'MALLEY WAS ASKED RECENTLY if he wasn't afraid that because of Kelly everyone would start calling the Dodgers Clowns instead of Bums. The Brooklyn prexy laughed and said . . . "I'm not worried about that and if it does happen, wouldn't Clowns be a step higher than Bums anyway?"

It's a fact that the Dodgers were known as Clowns long before the affectionate "Dem Bums" handle was tagged onto them.

From the days of Uncle Wilbert Robinson through the Casey Stengel era, the Dodgers were known as the "Daffiness Boys." They didn't need to bring in any outside help to produce laughs. They entertained fans with unconscious comedy which actually laid the foundation for the later success of the club.

For years when some enthusiastic fan listening to the radio would exclaim . . . "The Dodgers have got three men on base," the stock answer, of course, would be "which base?"

That was the result of one of the most fantastic base-running incidents in baseball history when three Dodgers wound up on third base at the same time. And who was the No. 1 guy involved? Why, Babe Herman, of course.

Herman arrived in Brooklyn in 1926 and it wasn't long before the writers were having field days with him.

In the beginning, for instance, Herman was such an inept fielder that it was easy to credit the report that he had been hit on top of the head trying to field a fly ball.

"It's a lie," Babe said. "If I ever get hit in the head, I'll walk out of the ball park and never come back."

"Suppose you get hit on the shoulder?" he was asked.

"Shoulders don't count," Babe explained. "Just the head."

HERMAN'S ANTICS HAVE BECOME LEGEND. They tell of the time when Babe decided to appeal to a newspaperman for kinder treatment in the press.

The scribe was at the point of agreeing that he had misjudged Herman when Babe pulled a half-smoked cigar out of his pocket and stuck it in his mouth.

The reporter offered him a match, but Babe said "No, thanks, it's already lit," and started puffing away.

Needless to say the incident was well publicized.

Manager at the time, of course, was Robinson . . . "Uncle Robby."

Robby took a liking to Babe's little son and the youngster, equipped with a Dodger suit, would sit on his lap in the dugout whenever he could attend the game.

One day, though, the boy was pushed away by the Brooklyn pilot.

"What's the matter Uncle Robbie, don't you love me no more?" the boy said.

"Sure I do," Robinson growled, "but your dad ain't hitting!"

And they tell about the time when three hit-and-run plays went wrong and Robinson called a meeting of the team.

In all seriousness he told them "I wish you guys weren't so d--- stupid. Everybody in the league knows our signals except you so-and-so's on the team!"

Yes, there have been clowns at Ebbets Field almost from the beginning. It's fitting that Emmett Kelly join the parade.

U. S. PRO DEBUT

Rosewall in N.Y. Feb. 17

NEW YORK (UP) — Ken Rosewall, the Australian who won the United States amateur tennis championship last September, will make his professional debut in America at Madison Square Garden Feb. 17 when he and Pancho Gonzales of Los Angeles play the 11th of their 100-match 1957 series.

Gonzales, currently the world's top pro player, built a 7-3 lead in Australia.

Poor Luck Puts U.S. Bobsled 2nd

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland (UP)—The Swiss sled, driven by Hans Zoller, aided in the second heat by a sudden thaw and the luck of the draw, wrenched the lead from the U. S. bob, piloted by Arthur Tyler of Rochester, N. Y., Saturday at the halfway mark in the world four-man championships.

The Swiss, with clockings of one minute, 18.09 seconds and 1:18.38 for the first two of the four one-mile heats, had an aggregate of 2:36.47. Tyler's sled had an aggregate of 2:37.87.

L. A. State Throttles Cold 49ers, 77-52

By JIM MANGAN

A towering, ball-hawking Los Angeles State quintet took the lead at the opening gun and never let up in trouncing Long Beach State, 77-52, Saturday night in a California Collegiate Athletic Assn. game on the L.A. court.

Utilizing the shooting prowess of 6-4 center, Bob Laemmle, L.A. State opened up a 23-11 lead midway in the first half and walked off the field at intermission with an 11-point lead.

The 49ers threatened briefly and came within five points when they collected seven straight points in a three minute period to make it 23-18 but that was as close as they got.

• • • •

ALTHOUGH SHOOTING fewer times in the second half than they did in the first L.A. State nevertheless rang up a total of 38 points while hitting a phenomenal 64 per cent from the floor. The best Long Beach could do was 26 per cent.

Bill Baron, the 49ers' leading scorer, was high-point man for his team but the total of 14 was far below his best form.

The loss was Long Beach's 11th in 12 games and sixth straight in CCAA competition.

East L. A. Romps Over LBCC, 115-96

By BOB SENSKE

East Los Angeles JC was too hot for Long Beach City College and the Huskies raced to a 115-96 win over the visiting Vikes in a Metropolitan Conference game Saturday night.

Long Beach was behind from the opening whistle. The Huskies moved to a 16-11 lead after five minutes, upped it to 35-25 after 10 minutes and coasted to a 61-41 halftime lead. They clinched it in the first five minutes of the second half, rolling to a 77-50 margin.

East Los Angeles, a deadly-shooting team on the right night, turned in one of its better showings. The Huskies' big halftime advantage came about largely through their brilliant shooting; they connected on 59 per cent of their shot from the floor during that time. And then in the last minutes of the game they really poured it on, scoring on 91 per cent of their tries.

ELISCO NINO, consistantly tallying on 25-foot set shots, copped the game's scoring honors with 28 points, 16 coming in the first half. Jim Arasim, Viking forward, was right behind with 26.

The league's two top scorers, Long Beach's Russ Tyler and East L.A.'s Andy Gilmour, ended in a standoff with 21 points apiece. Both gathered most of their points in the second half. Tyler, conference leader, sat out most of the first half because of a leg injury suffered Friday night.

The win was the second for the Huskies over Long Beach in conference play. They dumped the Vikes by a 96-86 count in the first round and had a hot night then, too.

26 for Wilt in Kansas' 69-54 Win

LINCOLN (AP) — Wilt (The Stilt) Chamberlain poured in 26 points and was a rebounding plague to Nebraska as Kansas took a 69-54 Big Sever Conference basketball win before a jammed Coliseum crowd here Saturday night.

The 7-foot Kansas sophomore, with top scoring assistance from Maurice King, shot the Jayhawks into a 24-8 lead after 13 minutes.

Nebraska, playing two and sometimes three men on Chamberlain, was unable to halt the tall Kansan's tip-ins on shots by his teammates.

Nebraska managed to hold it to 9-8 after 6½ minutes of play, but the Cornhuskers hit a cold streak and were scoreless for seven minutes until Gary Reimers hit from the field to make it 24-10.

The Cornhuskers started each half with a ball control style and finished with a fast break, counting most of their points while hurrying the play.

The crowd of nearly 9,000 saw Chamberlain gather in 21 rebounds. He hit on seven of 22 field goal attempts.

Davis Wins Four, But Bucks Lose in Track

COLUMBUS, O. (UP)—Glenn Davis, Ohio State University's 400-meter Olympic hurdles champion, scored four firsts and a second place but Illinois beat the Buckeyes, 59-55, in a dual track meet here Saturday.

Davis sped to firsts in the 60-yard dash, 70-yard high and low hurdles, and was anchor man on the Buckeye winning one mile relay team. Davis also was second in the broad jump and just missed placing in the high jump.

SC Again Trips Idaho

Gonzales, Pugh Lead 78-69 Win

The Idaho Vandals came unglued in the second half Saturday night and dropped their second straight Pacific Coast Conference basketball decision to Southern California, 78-69.

It was also the second straight night the Trojans were led by their 5 ft. 10 in. junior guard, Monte Gonzales. He dropped in 24 points.

The victory was the third for the Trojans in six conference games. Idaho has won 2 and lost 8.

The Vandals managed to take the lead only twice, once at the start of the game and again with three minutes left in the first half.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA, controling the boards well, and keeping the Vandals at long range, was ahead 16-7 after six minutes. Although their passing was erratic, the Vandals managed to trim SC's lead to 35-27 with five minutes left in the first half, and went ahead 36-35 with three minutes remaining.

Idaho was paced in the first half by forward Hal Damiano with 14 points. He added only two field goals in the second half. Guard Jerry Simmons shared scoring honors with him at 18.

Forward Jim Pugh contributed 22 points before fouling out late in the second half and was the Trojan's No. 2 scorer.

SC led at the half 45-42.

Millikan Five Scores 16th Win, 65-48

Sizzling second quarter shooting by Dick Chermak and Stan Andersen sparked Millikan High to a decisive 29-17 halftime advantage and a 65-48 victory over Fillmore Saturday on the losers' floor.

Chermak, 6-4 junior center, turned in his best rebounding performance of the season and scored 20 points. The victory was Millikan's 16th in 21 games.

Bataan, Delgado Battle to Draw

Larry Bataan of the Philippine Islands and Vince Delgado of Los Angeles, both 126, battled to a draw in a 10-round featherweight bout Saturday night at Hollywood Legion Stadium.

The taller Bataan built up an early point advantage, out-boxing the scrappy Delgado at long range and counterpunching viciously when Delgado tried to close in.

By the seventh, though, Delgado had the range, wading in and scoring frequently.

Referee Frankie Van scored it 95-97 for Delgado. Judge Charlie Randolph called it 96-94 for Bataan, and judge Abe Roth ruled it a draw.

Indiana Snares Lead in Big Ten

By United Press

Indiana moved atop the standings in the Big Ten basketball race Saturday night as the conference's scoring leader, Archie Dees, sank 17 points to lead the Hoosiers to a 69-59 victory over Ohio State.

The win was the fifth for the Hoosiers in conference play and the loss was Ohio State's third straight following six consecutive wins. The outcome, along with losses suffered by Illinois, Purdue and Michigan, left Indiana as the only team with two losses.

Michigan State, bouncing back from three straight defeats earlier, whipped favored Illinois, 70-64, for its fourth win in a row, Minnesota rolled to an 82-62 triumph over Michigan, and Purdue fell behind in the closing minutes in losing to Iowa, 74-67, in other conference games.

• • • •

INDIANA BEGAN its victory march early in the game and was never headed. Besides Dees, three other Hoosiers hit in double figures—Hallie Bryant, 16; Dick Neal, 15, and Pete Obremsky, 12.

Forward George Ferguson led the Spartan win over Illinois, whipping in 13 points during the first half and ending up with 20, high for the game. Illinois played without its top scorer, George Bon Salle, who is ineligible for the remaining games.

George Kline's 21 points sparked the Gophers win over Michigan and Iowa's guard Augie Martel collected 23 in pacing the Hawkeyes to victory.

ARAGON TRIAL

Officers to Take Stand

Dep. Dist. Atty. William L. Ritzi indicated Saturday that he would call police officers and several boxers to the witness stand Monday in an effort to corroborate boxer Dick Goldstein's testimony that Art (Golden Boy) Aragon offered him a $500 bribe to take a dive in a San Antonio, Tex., fight last December.

The trial of Aragon, who is accused of conspiracy to participate in a fixed athletic encounter, was recessed for the weekend following a lengthy cross-examination of Goldstein Friday by Aragon's attorney.

New Doubles Leaders in City Pin Meet

As the last wave of bowlers took to the lanes late Saturday night at Lakewood Bowl in the Long Beach Women's bowling tournament, only one significant change resulted from last week-end's standings.

In class B doubles, the team of Marian Anderson and Betty Dendowski is the new leader with 960, replacing Grace Wolf and Mae Haste who had led with 938.

In team events, Kling's Beauty Salon continues in front of the class A division with 2,570. Jay Bender and Beverly Bowser lead class A in doubles, 1,097; Virginia Catungo is the singles leader at 583 in class A and Lois Brayden's 1,576 total heads the all-events A division.

The tournament winds up today with the last squads slated to bowl at approximately 9 p.m.

Stanford Waltzes Past WSC

PALO ALTO (UP) — Stanford made it two in a row over the Cougars of Washington State Saturday night with a comparatively easy 80-62 Pacific Coast Conference victory.

The Cougars matched the Indians basket for basket until just before the intermission. At that point Stanford broke a 30-30 tie and rang the bell four times while the Cougars couldn't hit.

Stanford led at halftime, 38-30.

Carl Isaacs had a perfect record at the free-throw line with eight tallies. He captured game scoring honors with 22 points.

Indian captain Hap Wagner led the attack in the second period, scoring 15 of his 19 points within 10 minutes.

Stanford hit for 52.4 per cent of its field goal attempts.

with DICK ZEHMS

Early thinking along the Pacific Coast League front . . .

Gene Handley, new skipper of the Los Angeles Angels—"John Holland and Bob Scheffing took some of their best ball players with them when they moved from the Angels up to the Chicago Cubs, but I'm confident we'll have a first division club.

"And I'll guarantee we'll win the city series from the Hollywood Stars!

"Will we be a running club? Well, base running is an individual problem and I don't think a manager can establish a team policy on that basis. I do like the old saying—speed is the only skill that can be used both on offense and defense!

"If we've got some guys who can run on the bases, they'll run regardless of the hitters behind them—Steve Bilko or anybody!

"Oh, it'll be a close race, no runaway like it was with Scheffing and the bombers last season. I expect most of the competition will come from Seattle, Portland and San Diego."

Gene swiped 56 bases in 1946 while playing for the Sacramento Solons, which should answer the question of whether L. A. will resort to power—or speed and cunning. And note the lack of reference to the San Francisco Seals!

Joe Gordon, San Francisco Seal boss—"We will finish in the first four this year, without any doubt. If I've got any brains at all, we should be up there with the potential we have.

"San Diego, Los Angeles, Seattle and San Francisco will wind up in the top four this year, but I won't say in what order. San Diego probably will get most of last season's Indianapolis club, which won the American Association and Junior World Series titles. Their connections with the Cleveland Indians should pay big dividends."

Tommy Heath, Sacramento manager—"We'll start with a better outfit than we finished with last season. I know the catching will improve and we have got five young pitchers, any one of whom could be real good.

"We're also looking for more hitting. We need the long ball as well as a steadier attack.

"Yeah, I suppose you could put Seattle, San Diego, San Francisco and Los Angeles down as the big powers right now. Things may be a lot different next September, though."

Heath's Solons missed the first division by a goat's eyelash in 1956. He may know more than he is saying!

And silence on the subject of who will finish where comes from Bill Sweeney at Portland, Charlie Metro at Vancouver, Bob Elliott at San Diego and Clyde King at Hollywood.

Elliott anticipates a big year, but won't go on record until he sees what the Indians will send him. Sweeney is busy trying to find more punch for the Beavers. Metro will have to rebuild the Mounties, and King isn't due in these parts until next week to take over the Twink helm vacated by Clay Hopper.

These four are thinkin', but they ain't talkin' until they see the whites of the eyes of some of their .300 hitters!

WARM WORDS. When foe praises foe, it's news. Ex-Uclan Willie Naulls, now earning his keep with the New York Knickerbockers of the NBA, had this to say of old rival Bill Russell, ex-USFer now serving the Boston Celtics:

"There's a definite change for the better in Russell since he joined the Celtics. He is becoming more aggressive and I really think he's beginning to show improvement in his shooting, too. There was an awful lot of pressure on Bill, coming in like he did in midseason. But now he is becoming more confident, and he'll be better for it.

"Bill is learning fast. With proper teaching he could become just as much of a threat on offense as he now is on defense."

OLDER AND WISER. Speaking of pressure, which Naulls was of Russell, Lou Boudreau of the Kansas City Athletics thinks Mickey Mantle will be a stronger threat to reach Babe Ruth's 60 home run record this year than he was in 1956.

"You could almost see Mickey tighten up last summer at the plate after he reached the 50 mark," observed Lou. "He started going after bad pitches again, which had been his bad habit the year before. That slowed him down."

Lou didn't say so directly, but he inferred the New York Yankee ace would be better equipped to handle the strain this year if he hits 50 home runs soon enough to take another crack at the enduring 60-mark.

If opportunity knocks again, Boudreau thinks Mickey will answer the more experienced way—with more home runs!

BOSOX WILL DRAW ON COAST

Williams Poor Prophet, Seals Prexy Declares

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—Jerry Donovan, president of the San Francisco baseball club, Saturday took some verbal swipes at Ted Williams for saying the Boston Red Sox would not draw crowds in West Coast exhibition games.

"The fact that the Boston club is one of the most colorful clubs in organized baseball, plus the fact that they have not been on the coast since 1911, makes the fans very anxious not only to see Williams himself but also the other great Red Sox players," Donovan said.

"Also, we would like to inform Mr. Williams that the San Francisco Seals themselves, under Manager Joe Gordon, will not be any soft touch.

Nine Red Sox played for San Francisco last year and a half-dozen others, including Sammy White, Gene Mauch and Jackie Jensen, are familiar to Coast fans.

"We are getting 100 ticket requests a day," Donovan added, "and with good weather may fill Seals Stadium (21,180) March 22, 23 and 24."

AMAYSING CQINCIDENCE

WASHINGTON (UP) — Bill Harris, discoverer of New York Giant outfielder Willie Mays, signed his first player Saturday in his new role as scout for the Washington Senators.

The player's name? William Everett Mays.

Mays, like his famed namesake, is an outfielder but the new Senator, whose contract was assigned to the Charlotte, N. C., farm club, prefers to be called Everett.

Woman Flips in Sports Car

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (UP) A 26-year-old daredevil woman driver from California narrowly escaped serious injury Saturday when her speeding Ferrari sports car overturned during a time trial for today's big 95-mile NASCAR race.

Mrs. Ruth Levy of Bel-Aire, Calif., was zipping around the twisting 2.4-mile airport course at about 75 miles per hour when the car went out of control on a turn. The vehicle flipped over on its top but she suffered only a broken nose.

Fastest qualifier of the day was Carrol Shelby, Dallas, Tex., a teammate of Mrs. Levy. He zipped around the course in a gleaming red Ferrari at an average speed of 85.123 miles per hour.

Richie Ginther, Hollywood, Calif., was second in another Ferrari with an average of 82.68 mph. Paul Goldsmith of St. Clair Shores, Mich., piloting a Chevrolet Corvette, was third. His time was 80.15. Fourth was Curtis Turner, Roanoke, Va., who averaged 79.85 mph in his Ford Thunderbird.

TERRANG

he failed to show his usual closing kick.

And when the run for the wire got under way in the final furlong, Terrang opened up an even greater lead than he had gained going into the stretch and was pulling away at the wire. Honeys Alibi made a game effort to close the gap but never came close.

The huge crowd of 49,500 racing fans had installed Mister Gus and his stablemate as their nine to five choice and Holandes II was two to one but apparently Terrang failed to read the tote board.

Although the San Antonio is supposed to be the big stepping stone to the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap, Terrang is not a nominee for that rich race and thus the San Antonio merely pointed up the fact that Holandes II apparently was overrated when he was made a two-to-one choice in the future book on the big race two weeks hence.

Legion Baseball Title Dates Set

The American Legion State baseball championship tourney has been scheduled for August 8-11, it was announced Saturday as the California American Legion Baseball Commission opened a two-day meeting at the Statler Hotel.

The tournament will be held on August 8, 9, 10 and 11 in some yet-to-be-determined city in Southern California. It will be a double elimination, round robin affair that will bring together the six areas of the state.

Ex-Troy Star Sold to Orioles

(Compiled from AP and UP)

Jim Brideweser, former SC star, was purchased by the Baltimore Orioles from the Detroit Tigers in Saturday's top baseball development.

Brideweser, an infielder who played for the Orioles in 1954, had a .216 average in 80 games last year.

Baltimore also announced the signing of outfielder Dick Williams, lead-off man who reached base in 66 of 72 games while hitting .286 last year.

YANKEES—Announced the signing of coaches Jim Turner, Bill Dickey and Frank Crosetti, who have served under Manager Casey Stengel for eight years. Stengel's aides have 42 years of combined World Series experience. The Yanks also signed Donald Lindeberg of Anaheim as a scout in Southern California.

WHITE SOX—Roster reached 30 with signing of pitcher Dick Donovan (12-10) and third baseman Sam Esposito (.228).

RED SOX—Billy Goodman, one of the American League's few lifetime .300 hitters, and reserve catcher Pete Daley (.267) returned their signed contracts. Goodman, who played second base most of last year, hit .293 10 points below his career mark.

INDIANS—Pitchers Mike Garcia (11-12) and Ray Narleski, out of action with a sore elbow much of last year, signed their contracts.

ATHLETICS—Vic Power (.309) became 24th player to come to terms.

GIANTS — Signed Red Schoendienst (.302) for reported $35,000. Schoendienst, traded by the Cardinals in June, was the only Giant to top .300. Only four Giants are unsigned.

PHILLIES—Signed southpaw pitcher Curt Simmons (15-10).

PIRATES — Signed second baseman Bill Mazeroski (.243), leaving only five players unsigned.

BRAVES—Billy Bruton admitted that he and the Braves management were "pretty far apart" on 1957 contract terms. Bruton hit .272 with eight homers and 56 RBIs last year.

CUBS—Will open preliminary spring camp for pitchers and catchers Feb. 20 at Mesa, Ariz. The rest of the squad will report Feb. 28.

SEATTLE (PCL)—Purchased outfielder Juan Delis from Havana of International League. Delis hit .270 in 93 games.

Summer Tan Whips Bardstown by Three

By Associated Press

Calumet Farm's Bardstown and Mrs. John W. Galbreath's Summer Tan battled neck and neck for a mile and one-sixteenth Saturday in the $60,900 McLennan Handicap at Hialeah but it was all Summer Tan in the final sixteenth as he pulled away from the Calumet big gun to win by three lengths.

Switch On, who stayed with the leaders for a mile, finished third and Mr. First was fourth in the small field. Summer Tan, a close second choice in the betting to Bardstown, paid $3.90 to win and ran the race in 1:38 4-5 before the largest Hialeah crowd of the season, 25,190.

The victory raised Summer Tan's earnings to $537,796.

Another Calumet horse, Iron Liege, set a track record for a mile and one-sixteenth in the supporting feature, touring the distance in 1:42 4-5 and establishing him as one of the favorites in the $100,000 Flamingo Stakes.

A two-mile marathon and a six-furlong sprint highlight today's program at Caliente, one of the best offered this year. The six furlong Lincoln has attracted a dozen entries headed by Gay Marvel and Damp Abbey and the marathon Courageous has drawn 13 entries.

Saturday's six furlong feature was won by Valiant Tony. Zodiakos was second and Secretive third. Valiant Tony was timed in 1:10 3-5 and paid $9.

Top Scoring Team Uses Defense, Too

MONTGOMERY, W. Va. (UP)—The coach of the nation's highest scoring college basketball team denied Saturday that "basketball is shooting itself to death."

Coach Neal Baisi of West Virginia Tech, whose squads have averaged more than 100 points a game the past three seasons, took issue with a recent statement by Notre Dame athletic director Edward (Moose) Krause that too much accent is place on scoring and not enough on defense.

"The mark of a good defense is the point spread between the teams, not both teams ending up with low scores," Baisi said. "After all, a game could end 2-0 with one team freezing and the other falling back. But would that be called good defense?"

Tech has averaged 102 points this season to 77 for the opposition—an average 25-point spread.

Tech usually employs a full-court pressing defense throughout the game. Depending on the situation, Baisi said, the Bears drop into a zone or stick to a man-to-man setup once the ball is brought past mid-court.

"Every time we score, we give our opponent a chance to score. That's where our defense comes in, for if we are to score again we must get the ball."

Tech has won 26 of 27 games this season and has been under consideration for a bid to the National Invitation Tournament.

Earlier, the Australian team of Rosewall and Rex Hartwig defeated Segura and Tony Trabert of Cincinnati, O., in doubles semifinals, 6-3, 6-3.

ROMACK WINS AT PALM BEACH

PALM BEACH, Fla. (UP)—Barbara Romack of Sacramento, Calif., won the 39th annual Women's Palm Beach championship golf tournament Saturday, beating Alice Dye of Indianapolis, Ind., 4 and 3.

Miss Romack, playing with a bandage around her right wrist, exhibited a dependable putter, but she was helped a lot by Mrs. Dye, who found traps on eight of the 15 holes played. The California miss was returning to amateur tournament golf after a two-month layoff caused by spraining her right wrist.

DeMarco Decisions Ortega

BOSTON (UP)—Hungry Tony DeMarco fought his own kind of brawling fight Saturday night to take a unanimous 10-round decision from Mexican Gaspar Ortega at Boston Garden.

The 25-year-old ex-welter champion was unable to send the outclassed Ortega to the canvas, but displayed flashes of his old slugging power. Ortega, second ranked welter contender, had beaten the Boston strong boy in two previous meetings in New York on split decisions.

Judge Johnny Norton rated DeMarco, the No. 3 contender, way ahead, 100-90. Referee Jimmy McCarron had DeMarco ahead, 99-93, while Judge Joe Santoro scored it 98-91. The United Press card gave it to DeMarco, 100-94.

The 21-year-old Ortega was unable to get to DeMarco's midriff as he did in the two other clashes. DeMarco, who weighed in at 147½, halt a pound lighter than Ortega, made his fancier opponent trade punches toe-to-toe frequently.

• • • •

DE MARCO WAS landing two and three punches to each one he received.

The decisive victory, DeMarco's 46th in 54 bouts, raised his stature in the welter division considerably and snapped Ortega's string of five straight triumphs. It was the poker-faced Ortega's seventh setback in 45 fights.

Neither fighter was marked throughout the bout. The closest thing to a knockdown came in the eighth round when an Ortega right to DeMarco's jaw incensed Tony into a wild flurry. Ortega, however, was able to work DeMarco into a clinch to ride out the storm.

THIRD MEETING WEDNESDAY

Brown 13-5 Choice Over Smith in Title Rematch

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Joe Brown, who has been shelved by a broken hand since he won the world lightweight title from Wallace (Bud) Smith of Cincinnati in August, is a solid 13-5 favorite to retain the crown in a 15-round rematch Wednesday night at the Miami Beach Auditorium.

Brown, 30-year-old New Orleans boxer, reported his hand completely healed when he broke camp at Houston.

The match, scheduled for 7 p.m. PST will be carried on network (ABC) radio and television.

This will be the third meeting of the two lightweights within a year. Brown beat Smith in an over-the-weight bout, May 2 at Houston when he weighed 139 and Smith 143½ pounds.

At the age of 27, Smith is a veteran of 53 fights with a 32-15-6 record. Brown has fought 83 times since he became a pro in 1946. His record is 50-14-8 with two no-contest bouts.

Bob Kelley Says—

Inadvertently I fear I am hampering the efforts of my friends Aragon and Caruso to win their current trial. When the affair opened on Thursday, I got the first hint when Bill Ritzi, the prosecutor, began questioning prospective jurors in a most curious way.

First, he would ask if they listened to radio sports programs. Then he would query specifically: "Do you listen to Bob Kelley?" Any juror who answered "yes" to the latter question was promptly found unsuitable by the prosecutor.

At the time, I got quite a chuckle out of it, almost took this as complimentary. But when I sat through the day-long hearing on Friday, it crossed my mind that perhaps my vocal defense of Aragon was more of a hindrance than help.

NATURALLY, a good part of Aragon's case is to discredit Goldstein. This is not difficult to do, inasmuch as Caruso has plenty of fodder. His problem, however, is to have the information on Goldstein introduced.

Friday, every time Caruso attempted to impeach Goldstein, the prosecutor promptly shouted "Objection!" Just as promptly, it seemed, the Judge ruled "Sustained."

Caruso, then, was unable to bring out a strong part of his case. He felt in cross-examining Goldstein, he could catch the accuser in half-truths and mis-truths. Only trouble was, the barrister was blocked every time he tried to bring out a point.

Frankly, the defense side of the trial has not been overly successful in the first two days. They'll shoot their big guns early this week when a parade of witnesses will be introduced in an effort to contradict Goldstein's charges.

If the jury upholds the story of the erratic Mr. Goldstein, it will be the greatest farce since the execution of Joan of Arc. And I will grant that I am heavily prejudiced in the matter. Still, I have talked to so many people, heard so much testimony, that I cannot be that prejudiced.

Should Goldstein's charges hold up, I think I shall accuse President Eisenhower of illegally kicking his ball forward in a golf game. And I'm liable to make it stick.

INCREDIBLE as it may seem, Caruso has had difficulty introducing evidence that will prove Goldstein is lying. Whereas the fighter has told police he had almost 80 fights, Caruso has not been allowed to enter the fact that record books show he has had but 39.

Friday, when the lawyer was attempting to bring out the accuser's real ability as a fighter, Goldstein had the nerve to try to out-bluff him.

"When were you last knocked out?" Caruso asked.

Goldstein thought pensively. His act was something out of an old Jimmy Stewart picture. His impression, at least the one he was trying to give the jurors, was that it happened so long ago he couldn't recall. Goldstein was attempting the flagrant bluff when he knew full well he'd been stopped as recently as last fall by Neal Rivers at Hollywood. And if the man had an ounce of sense, he must have realized that the defense attorney would go to the trouble of digging up such information.

Still, Goldstein continued to meditate. Finally, Caruso asked:

"Wasn't it by Neal Rivers last fall?"

"Oh," the fighter replied haltingly. "Yeah, I guess it was."

Another of the accuser's comments drawing a chuckle Friday was: "Aragon told me there were a lot of big people betting big money on the fight, and if I doublecrossed him, my life wouldn't be worth two cents."

I CAN JUST see Aragon threatening anyone's life. Knowing him quite well, I can tell you that Arthur is no tough guy outside the ring. In fact, every time he has to spank his young son, Aragon immediately runs and hides in the bathroom for fear the youngster will come and pin his ears back.

As for "betting big money" on that thing in San Antonio, Goldstein has to be a comic. To hear him tell it, Aragon was fixing the fight so he could win. Art was about a 10-1 favorite. You couldn't bet a dime under those conditions.

Who'd bet on Goldstein? If you want to make a coup betting, why not fix it for Goldstein, the 10-1 underdog, to win? At least, that has been the accepted practice in the boxing dodge for the past 75 years.

Maybe this guy has a new twist; he's certainly strange enough.

Jones Cops Three Distance Events

MADISON, Wis. (UP)—Deacon Jones showed his Olympic style Saturday by winning three distance events to lead Iowa to victory in a track meet with Wisconsin and Northwestern.

Jones won the half-mile, mile and two-mile races to fortify the Hawkeyes' lead tally of 51⅓ points. Wisconsin was second with 52½ points and Northwestern third with 31 5/6.

'Paul Marathoner, Brown a Contest Runner' in Trader Lane's GM Rating

By JIMMY BRESLIN

NEW YORK (NEA)—"You save your ear," Frank Lane was saying, "by holding the phone out like this. You still can hear the other guy and you don't wind up with a sore ear."

Lane was, as usual, on the phone as he talked. The St. Louis Cardinal general manager was waiting for the long distance operator to get him Roy Hamey of the Phillies, who was at Clearwater, Fla.

In the course of a day, Lane is likely to make 50 calls such as this. "When I first came here," he smiled, "I did better than that. Mr. Busch must have been wondering what kind of crazy business he was in. I was setting long distance phone records."

• • • •

THE OPERATOR said Hamey couldn't be reached at this time and Lane hung up and did the thing he likes next to talking on the telephone. Talking off the telephone.

"Take this Hamey," he began, "he is typical of why I have to use the phone so much. He is what you call a general manager who has an I'll-be-killed complex. 'I'll be killed if I make this one,' he's always saying.

"A while back, I went to a dinner at Wilmington, Del., with him and I was doing pretty good right at the table, setting up a trade, when the speakers started to get on Hamey for sending Del Ennis to us.

"The next thing I know, he is saying good-bye to me and leaving for Florida."

• • • •

ONCE ON THE subject, Lane wound up and gave a trader's-eye view of general managers in the National League. "Fellow like me has to know the general managers as well as he knows ballplayers," Lane insists. "You've got to know every trick they've got."

As an illustration, Lane swung into Gabe Paul, who runs the Cincinnati Redlegs.

"Strictly a marathon man," Frank says. "When I first came to St. Louis, he was over for dinner at six o'clock one night. He flew right into town before I had a chance to know what was going on. Bang! He hits me with an offer. I say I don't like it. Means nothing with Gabe. He goes the distance.

"At one o'clock I finally snuck off to bed. Gabe was disappointed because he started so late in the day. A fine idea, from his standpoint, would have been to get me at nine in the morning, then work me until I gave in and took the offer."

Buzzy Bavasi, Lane insists, is a different quantity. "He's got plenty of everything, including nerve," Lane says. "He reads the financial pages too closely or something. I mean, this is a guy who can sit there and ask $150,000 for some minor league player.

Joe Brown

George Weiss

• • • •

"JOE BROWN is a bit new to me, of course, but after a season trying to get his Pittsburgh material, I feel I know something. He would make, I say, a fine contest manager. That's all he does with his ballplayers. He tries to get six clubs interested in the kid and then hopes they'll start bidding.

"Chub Feeney of the Giants is the guy that shakes me. He tells the truth. I mean, you know how general managers operate. We bulldoze each other. You get used to it. Then along comes a guy like Feeney and he says, 'This is what I want and we'll give this' and that ends it. You're off-balance.

"John Quinn of Milwaukee is a reticent Irishman. He never calls you unless he has a deal pretty well set in his mind. Otherwise, he doesn't say anything. He's the once-a-year-you-hear type.

"John Holland of Chicago is totally different. I won't say a thing about him. He's new and I want to work with him first."

The only man in the majors you cannot do business with, Lane feels, is George Weiss of New York. "He calls you up and says he wants a Billy Pierce, for example. Then you mention Joe Collins, Andy Carey and a Charley Silvera and he says he'll call you back later.

"Then he calls back and says, 'That little left-hander you got, Pierce I think his name is. Well, the deal is all set. You get Gordon Nothing from Duluth, a tremendous prospect, plus one other we'll name later.'"

EVEN WIVES KEEP STATISTICS

Ball Players Check Closely on Batting, Fielding Records

NEW YORK (AP) Do baseball players worry about their batting and fielding averages?

You're darned right they do.

Last season, a leading Cleveland Indians' slugger rushed up to Associated Press writer Jack Hand and said, "Hey, shouldn't I be included among your top five home run hitters in the American League? What's the matter?"

Several years ago, the wife of an Eastern League first baseman wrote to the Elias Bureau, the circuit's official statistician. The letter read:

"I keep all the records of my husband's batting performances. In your latest release, you list him with 12 doubles. My figures show that he's hit 13."

She probably kept a heck of a household budget, too.

A pitcher now with the Cincinnati Redlegs griped about his pitching mark two seasons ago. He told another Associated Press writer: "My earned run average is off. I've pitched more innings than I've been given credit for." A check showed the plaintiff was wrong.

Following the release of the official National League averages in 1950, an infielder now with the Brooklyn Dodgers wrote the Elias Bureau: "I'm down for 245 assists. I'm certain I had 254. Please check this."

He was right, too. The figures had been transposed in the printing.

A pitcher who worked in relief for the St. Louis Cards last season does not agree with the accepted method of compiling records. He keeps his own.

"I do not see any credit for games saved in the regular averages," he argues. "When I come in late in the game and put out a rally, most of the time I don't get credit for the victory. I like to have something on paper."

Could this have anything to do with the pitcher's salary negotiations?

Some official scorers have complained that players have grabbed them after a game and said: "I should have gotten a hit on that play. Why that ball was hit like a bullet."

And they probably would have fired one if they had a gun.

FOR FISHING

Calif. Leads in Licenses

WASHINGTON (UP)—There were 33,163,831 holders of hunting and fishing licenses during the year ended June 30, 1956, Secretary of the Interior Seaton reported Saturday.

This set a record and was 117,470 higher than the preceding year.

California moved ahead of Minnesota as top ranking state in fishing licenses with 1,319,190. But Michigan, only state to record more than a million hunting license sales, retained its lead in that field.

Pitchers Star in CC Debut

Long Beach City College's first intra-squad baseball game Saturday found the pitchers "about seven days ahead of the batters" said coach Joe Hicks after the "Dave Hertnecks" defeated the "Bill Osterhoudts," 2-1.

The Hertneck nine won on a two base hit by Clarence Fusselman after two walks by pitcher Gene Fox in the bottom of the sixth. Jerry Hickman's long triple and a sacrifice fly by Dennis Cormack accounted for the Osterhoudt team's lone run.

Outstanding on the mound were Ted Smith, Bill Rybold and Hal Barnett. Smith and Rybold each pitched two frames without allowing a hit. Barnett received credit for the win, allowing one hit and no walks.

Fishin' Around

By DONNELL CULPEPPER

Cecil and Marjorie Duncan once had a flourishing business in Bellingham, Wash. In fact, business was so good that it interfered with their fishing trips. So Cecil and Marjorie did what most of us would like to do; they sold out in 1954 and established a resort in Canada.

I heard about Duncan's Resort on Nimpo Lake, B. C., last week and saw some marvelous color slides of a beautiful country where rainbow trout leap into boats if you can't hook 'em.

Cecil is a nephew of Charlie Richard, member of the Long Beach Spin-Fishing Club and operator of the Pico Bait and Tackle Store. The Duncans are visiting the Richard family at 2315 Adriatic Ave. prior to leaving for the north. There they will prepare for the 1957 fishing season, which begins about June 1 and lasts through October.

The Duncans cater to fishermen through that period, then take care of hunters in search of moose, deer, bear, as well as ducks, geese and grouse.

They have eight double cabins with rates so low that the average American always gasps when he looks at their resort folder.

• • • •

PERHAPS YOU RAISED an eyebrow when you read that trout leap into boats, but it is the truth. Cecil's records show that such occurrences took place three times in the 1956 season.

Nimpo Lake is 500 miles from Vancouver, B. C., and is reached via the Frazer and Thompson Rivers to Williams Lake (300 miles), then west for another 200. The highway that winds along the Frazer and Thompson is paved and in excellent condition. The road from Williams to Nimpo is a high-quality graveled road which will stand the pressure of any motor vehicle—even house trailers.

Nimpo Lake actually is a part of the Dean River, which flows in and out of it on its way to Anahim Lake. The water is crystal-clear and cold and there are no fish except rainbow trout. The fish average from 2 to 4 pounds, with an occasional trout going a pound or two above that figure.

Trout are so plentiful that even an inexperienced angler can catch a limit in a couple of hours, either in Nimpo or in the river. There are scores of other lakes in the vicinity, but Cecil says that his guests rarely ever try those because their luck is too good in Nimpo.

• • • •

THE ROUTE LEADING to Nimpo carries the tourist through some of Canada's most beautiful country. There is good steelhead and salmon fishing in both the Frazer and Thompson. There are tributary streams and hundreds of lakes en route.

The country between Williams Lake and Nimpo is rolling cattle terrain. It is known as the Caribou area of central B. C. Elevation at Nimpo is 4,000 feet and Cecil says that the motorist doesn't go much above that all the way from Vancouver.

When the Duncans decided on Nimpo in May of 1954, they hired Indians to rough-in log cabins. Cecil and his wife did the rest—windows, screens, doors and furnishings, constructed an ice house and a fish-cleaning room.

Cecil cuts ice from the lake when the freeze comes in the winter, stores it in the ice house and has enough for the following year. Last year, for instance, he had several tons left over when the freeze started again.

Although it is possible to reach Nimpo often in May, best fishing months are June, July, August, September and until mid-October. Nimpo is protected by mountains and the winter freeze is usually later than on the central plains of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

CECIL SAYS THAT his greatest trouble is with a few Americans who, finding the most fabulous fishing of their lives, become greedy and want to take too many. Then he insists on the limit, but allows them to fish as long as they like provided they change to barbless hooks.

Spinning and fly-fishing are the most popular methods, but some people prefer boats. Cecil has several glass boats and his rates are lower than most resorts in the states.

People going into Nimpo must take their own food and bedding. Cabins are equipped with wood stoves and beds and mattresses. Supplies are available at two general stores at Anahim, only a few miles away.

Anglers wanting to bring fish back to the U. S. may ice their catches at Nimpo or use the smokehouse, which Cecil built next-door to the fish-cleaning room.

Richard, who has been at Nimpo several times, verifies Cecil's statement that nowhere in North America is there such good rainbow fishing, especially for the spinners and flycasters.

The rainbow trout are natives and there seems to be no limit to their reproduction in the entire area.

Cecil will be happy to send literature to any interested anglers. His post office address is Kleena Kleene, British Columbia, Canada.

Bond & Co. Next for UCLA '5'

Stanford's pesky Indians, headed by Long Beach's Bill Bond, pose the next problem for UCLA's embattled Bruins, one of the surprise packages of the 1957 Pacific Coast Conference basketball season.

The Indians, who apply the "full court press" almost as freely as do the California Golden Bears, will play the Bruins this Friday and Saturday nights in the Pan-Pacific Auditorium.

Bond, the ex-St. Anthony's High phenom, is one of the foremost scorers in the conference and is playing his senior season at forward with the Tribe, coached by Howie Dallmar. Bond is a shade under averaging 20 points per game in PCC play.

• • • •

SC's TROJANS trek to Pullman, Wash., to play the Washington State Cougars, who have in Larry Beck, senior forward, the PCC's No. 1 point-maker. Larry is right around the 23 point average to date.

Other PCC games: Oregon plays at Oregon State this Tuesday, Idaho plays at California Friday and Saturday and Washington invades Oregon the same nights.

In California Basketball Association play, Loyola and Pepperdine take to the road. Loyola plays at San Jose this Friday and at Santa Clara Saturday. Pepperdine visits Fresno State Friday and College of Pacific Saturday.

• • • •

OTHER CBA GAMES: Santa Clara at University of San Francisco and COP at San Jose, Tuesday; COP at USF and Santa Clara at St. Mary's, Friday, and USF at Fresno State Saturday.

Long Beach State entertains Sax Elliot's Los Angeles Staters in the 49er gym Tuesday night, then host Santa Barbara Firday. The Diablos meet Santa Barbara at L. A. State Saturday.

Pasadena College has three games booked, at San Diego University Tuesday, against Chapman at home Friday and at Westmont Saturday.

See Record Turnout in Midwinter Regatta

By BOB RUSKAUFF

A turnout of sailing craft bettering the all-time, 289-boat record will take part Feb. 22-24 in the 28th annual Midwinter Regatta, secretary Fred F. Harris of the Southern California Yachting Association predicted Saturday.

Add to that the postlude Catalina I. race and competition of power yachts and the over-all record—331 boats in all categories—stands also to be toppled.

Large sailing craft will compete full three days, off Los Angeles YC. Small boats, off Cabrillo Beach YC and dinghy fleets, hosted by Alamitos Bay YC, will race Feb. 23-24, according to the invitation fact sheet sent out this week to yacht clubs of America.

For the 'round-Catalina sail classic March 2, four elaborate awards are posted—the Brokaw, Mayor Poulson, Anton Lauberscheimer Memorial and Gould Eddy trophies.

Added single regatta feature, for power yachts on Feb. 23, will be an outer harbor to Balboa, predicted log race. At stake are the Bobrick and Brittain trophies; also points will count toward 1957 inscription on the C. King Brugman high point perpetual. It was won last year by Robert A. Hoffman's Topper II of the Hollywood YC.

• • • •

SUNKIST SERIES dinghies, 60 boats and five fleets strong, will this afternoon race off Balboa YC in the second of three Sunday winter races. The finale falls March 10.

ROMANTIC SOUTH Seas and ditto Carribees will be destinations and future homes for two famed Southland yachts—the 65-foot schooner Flying Cloud and the 72-foot Nordlys. Both have been at Newport Harbor.

Flying Cloud, which departed over the week-end for a brief sojourn in San Diego before her passage via Panama Canal, will be sailed by Herman and Annie Offhouse and crew to permanent mooring at Charlotte Amelie, in the Virgin Islands.

The Nordlys has been outfitted at Newport for her South Seas junket, under command of Stanley McDade, where she will join with the copra fleet of owner Walter Johnson, operating out of Tahiti.

Both yachts are veterans of the Transpacific yacht race and Nordlys, also, of the San Diego-Acapulco biennial. Nordlys will retain yacht status, as she'll be used as a headquarters boat.

PARticulars

by JERRY WYNN

If golfers have as much trouble playing the new Long Beach SKYLINKS course (fly over to Page C-1 for story of naming) as the judges had selecting its name, it should have a par of 95.

The close to 500 names submitted included everything from the pointedly self-explanatory Jet-Crash Gulch to Lapicinum Esruoc, which with a little thought and backward spelling comes out Municipal Course.

The names easily fell into categories.

For honorary names there were Eisenhower, Babe Zaharias, Pat McCormick, George Lake and some one even chose Babe Ruth with the comment, "he was a heck of a left-handed golfer."

The list of locational names included Beach Wood, Spring Lake, Willow Spring and just about every other combination of Long Beach, Lakewood and Willow and Spring streets.

Spanish names were mucho and bonito. There were Playa Largo (Long Beach), Las Cadenas (the links), Vista Verde (green view) and a couple of dozen others that we poor ex-Midwesterners might mangle.

Historical names included Willmore, Bixby and Daugherty (no relation to MSU's Duffy). Some one went as far back as 145 to suggest the first mariner to sail into what is now Long Beach harbor. Alas, I can't remember his name.

But the majority of the names associated the course with the airport. There were Strip-Tee, Airways Fairways, Propeller Glen, Fly-A-Way, Beacon View and many, many more of the kind.

After nights of meditation and three long, exhausting meetings, the judges made their decision.

Spell it, whisper it, speak it, shout it . . . SKYLINKS . . . but p-l-e-a-s-e don't say you don't like it. For if Vi Dovey, who claimed she was representing the taxpayer, and PARticulars, who claimed he was representing the golfer (they pay taxes, too), finally agreed on a name, it has to be good!

WHAT'S IN A name, said Shakespeare, and I just can't get it off my mind today.

Did you know, for instance, that Recreation Park is not the name of the so-called Recreation Park golf course. The correct name is the Long Beach Municipal golf course which just happens to be located at Recreation Park.

Likewise, there's really no such name as the South Course. Those pleasant nine holes haven't got an official name.

As for Skylinks, bless each letter, you can readily (on smogless days) see where the "sky" comes from but the word links as associated with a golf course is technically a misnomer. In its true Scottish derivative, links are golf holes that must line and connect stretches of sand beach.

Anyone for tennis?

HOLE-IN-ONE honors to Louise Wickman, Sol Deeble, Mel Marsh, Howard Whitlock and Fred Galloway.

Mrs. Wickman of 2310 Chestnut Ave. and the South Course Women's Club aced the 128-yard eighth hole at the South Course with a 5-iron while playing with Helen Hartling and Mary McGrann.

Deeble and Marsh, both of the Virginia Men's Club scored their sparklers at Virginia. Deeble's was a 7-iron to the 134-yard seventh hole witnessed by Del Walker, Roy Spawr, Jim Ferrie and Jack Dallas. Marsh, playing his first round in more than five years, connected with a 6-iron on the 139-yard 15th with Julius Nutson as a partner

Whitlock of 4238 Greenbrier Rd. and Galloway of 10932 Littchen St., Norwalk, both made Lakewood's 147-yard over-the-lake ninth hole their pet target. William Jones and Roy Stone played with Whitlock. Galloway decided to quit while he was ahead, left after the ninth hole and didn't list his partners.

DEL WALKER posted a low net of 64 to win the Saturday Sweepstakes at Virginia Country Club. Hal McGrew and Tom McCarry tied for second.

Heading today's card is a nine-hole scotch foursome at noon.

Low Net—Del Walker, 70-6—64; tie for second between Hal McGrew, 75-9—66 and Thomas McCarry, 75-9—66; tie for fourth among Fred Yeager, 76-9—67, Mat McGrew, 80-13—67, Robert Bellery, 74-7—67, Cecil Northrup, 78-11—67; tie for eighth among John Connolly, 76-8—68, Cliff Mentz, 83-15—68; tie for 10th among Dr. Duke Mahannah, 83-14—69, Joseph Mullarkey, 85-16—69, C. T. Oates, 86-17—69, Dr. V. T. Vickey, 80-11—69, Al Davis, 82-13—69, John Halbert, 80-11—69, Sol Deeble, 78-9—69.

Badminton Stars Play at LBCC Feb. 15

The area's top badminton players, headed by national champion Joe Alston of South Pasadena, will compete in the 25th annual Southern California Badminton Championships scheduled Feb. 15-17 at the Long Beach City College gym.

The tourney is sponsored by the Long Beach Badminton Club and the Recreation Department and sanctioned by the American Badminton Assn., Louis Rulison, regional director.

Alston and his wife, Lois, made a near sweep of last year's events. Alston defeated Dick Mitchell in the men's singles final, 15-5, 15-6 and then teamed with Wynn Rogers to win the men's doubles. Mrs. Alston won the women's singles from Thelma Welcome of Glendale, 11-5, 11-0, then teamed with Joe to win the mixed doubles.

Harry Moore is the director of this year's tourney. Flight chairmen are Dave Loomis and Chuck Randolph.

West Drag Meet Next Week-end

From 9:30 a.m. until sunset today (weather permitting), 100 Southland drag racers will hold a preliminary meet to the first All-Western Winter Acceleration tests, to be held next Saturday and Sunday on the $70,000 Lions Associated Drag Strip.

The event, greatest yet attempted on the one by one-half mile acreage at 223rd St. and Alameda Ave., already has on the entry lists more than 250 of the nation's outstanding car and cycle performers.

Director Mickey Thompson expects the meet will attract 10,000 spectators.

"This," said Thompson, "will be the first all-out effort by Lions Associated to show the public what a properly-conducted drag performance really is." He added:

"The public labors under several misapprehensions regarding organized drag performance—or more properly, acceleration speed competition. Important, for instance, is safety. Yet, per miles travelled, the record on organized drag strips, as proven by insurance statistics, is five to one better than that of cars on public highways.

Except for big invitational meets, such as Feb. 16-17, anyone with an automobile may try out on the LADS' electrically-clocked strip, for a small entry fee. "But," said Thompson, "there's one stickler, which is also one reason for our fine safety record.

"The vehicle must pass our rigid safety inspection and less than 25 per cent of the cars on the highways can pass it. If they can't the entry fee is returned. Then the owner, with a free safety check-up and his conscience to guide him, may watch other performers with the rest of the audience."

Tiny Theater Needs Talent, Not Idol of Bobby Soxers

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Paul Levitt, operator of one of the most successful small theaters in town, says several studios have asked about using their young contract players in his productions.

"I had to turn them down for a good reason," he says. "Some of the biggest young names on the screen aren't good enough to act in our productions."

Levitt operates the Player's Ring Theater, a 150-seat house that is staging the musical version of "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn" with 35 in the cast. The stage, surrounded by the audience, is about as big as an average living room.

"I've been running in the black for seven years. I've auditioned young stars who are on the cover of every fan magazine. I can't afford to use them because none can carry the acting load required."

He says the Los Angeles theater audience is much more discriminating than even New York.

"My people demand top talent. They won't pay $4.40 top to see a bobby-sox idol stumble through a role."

TV Spots Pay Well

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The highest paid members of the Screen Actors Guild are not always stars — or even actors.

Bill Edwards, one of the top television announcers, belongs to the Guild because of filmed commercials.

He says that two days of shooting done three years ago for a beer sponsor has earned him $40,000 already — and probably will net him $40,000 more. Every time the film is shown, either nationally or locally, Edwards is paid.

This explains why players like Jeanne Crain, William Lundigan, Betty Furness and others are tapping this lucrative field.

Edwards says his income as an announcer never drops below $100,000 a year.

Jim Backus, the "Mr. Magoo" of cartoons, and the voice of "It's a F-o-o-o-o-o r d," is one of the highest paid actors.

But Backus admits that his commercials pay more than acting.

Montana Flier Killed in Crash

WILLISTON, N. D. (UP) — Myron Wyse, Billings, Mont., was killed in the crash of a light plane about 16 miles south of Sydney, Mont., near the North Dakota border, the civil air patrol said Saturday.

Wyse was flying the craft to an oil company meeting here Thursday when the plane crashed.

The plane was the object of a 1,500 square mile two-state search.

SHY FROM CHARISE

Cyd Finds Few Men Ask Her for Dances

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Cyd Charisse is one of the screen's most beautiful women and one of its best dancers, yet she confesses she's a wallflower at most Hollywood parties.

Tony Martin, her husband, is a singer, not a dancer. And no one, except George Burns, ever asks her to dance.

"Most men, even egotistic actors, always shy away from dancing with me. Other dancers report the same trouble. They probably figure that I would be mentally comparing them with Fred Astaire or Gene Kelly.

• • • •

"SO I GO to parties and usually just sit — unless George Burns is there — and then I have a ball."

Cyd calls George the greatest ballroom dancer in town.

"He does steps that haven't been invented yet. He improvises on the floor and it's a great personal challenge for me to follow him. He has perfect rhythm."

Cyd also discloses that most professional dancers are lousy ballroom dancers, especially the girls.

"We always want to lead."

George Burns' fancy steps aren't Cyd's only challenge these days. In "Silk Stockings," she is playing the same role that Greta Garbo did in "Ninotchka." "Stockings" is the musical version of the Russian spoof.

• • • •

"GARBO IS NOT the easiest person in the world for an actress to follow—especially when everybody has just seen 'Ninotchka' on television. But I'll give it everything I've got."

In Cyd's case, it's even more than Garbo had. Garbo may have been the screen's greatest actress but she's not in the same league with Cyd when it comes to gams.

For years Cyd was famous for her sexy ballet in MGM musicals. Her torrid way with a torso is tersely described by her.

"You know those shows where the censors label it 'objectionable in part.' Well, I'm always the part.'"

In "Meet Me in Las Vegas," director Roy Rowland showed the MGM front office that Cyd can act without tossing her hips. That is why she snagged the "Silk Stockings" lead.

Actor Knows Play Setting

Marvin, who is well known to theater audiences as a talented actor, finds the tropical setting of the rollicking comedy a most familiar one. He has lived on the Island of Guam for 2 years, and has offered colorful suggestions about native customs and background to the production.

JUST PLAIN ACTRESS

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — Eva Marie Saint was in the ladies' room at Sardi's recently when she overheard a couple of women there talking about her.

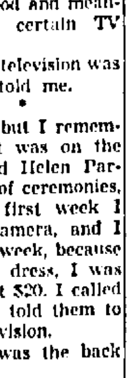
"Oh, my Gawd, she's PLAIN!" one woman said.

"And she's SHORT!" said the other.

"That's right — she's just a short, plain girl," declared the first.

At that moment Miss Saint swept into their presence and stood alongside her two detractors at the mirror. "You see, we movie stars are just ordinary people," she smiled at them.

"Oh, my Gawd," gasped one woman to the other, "she heard everything!"



EVA

"That's right — EVERYTHING!" replied Miss Saint, and swept out.

Miss Saint knew long before they told her that she was short and plain—but she can have almost any acting job she wants in either TV or pictures. She's now playing the wife of a narcotic addict in "A Hatful of Rain" for Hollywood and meanwhile considering certain TV spectaculars.

"My first job of television was applauding," she told me.

• • • •

"YOU LAUGH, but I remember it so well. It was on the Borden Show, and Helen Parrish was mistress of ceremonies, about 1947. The first week I wasn't even on camera, and I got $10. The next week, because I had on a party dress, I was on camera and got $20. I called up my family and told them to watch me on television.

"All they saw was the back of my dress."

Miss Saint laughed and said, "I don't think life is as much fun now as it was then. In those days if you had a half-hour show, you could run 36 minutes if you wanted to. We talked about some day we'd have a co-axial cable."

Miss Saint, who's 32, and the mother of 22-months-old Darrel Hayden, born two days after she won an Oscar, was drinking a brandy flip and wearing a red and white jumper-and-skirt outfit bought at an expensive Hollywood shop.

• • • •

"I'VE BEEN having so much fun here calling all my friends in the Village where we used to live that if it weren't for my husband (director Jeff Hayden) and baby, I'd like to stay longer."

Often called the first great actress developed entirely by TV, Miss Saint almost became a school teacher.

She left Newark and the family home at Delmar, N. Y., to take up teaching at Bowling Green State Normal College, in Ohio . . . but got interested in college dramatics and abandoned teaching after graduating in 1946.

"I got a summer job as a guidette at NBC — I thought that was the way to meet a producer or director. Well, I never met a soul! The only person who ever encouraged me was Joan Crawford. She stopped me one day, asked me if I'd ever thought of being an actress, and took my name.

"I know that guidette speech by heart. All about the cathode ray and the osciloscope . . ."

"Campus Hoopla," produced by the late Owen Davis Jr., was her first TV acting opportunity, then came the Emmy and after that "On the Waterfront" and the Oscar.

"A family man," figures Vince (Ricky's) Montemora, "is one who has several small mouths to feed and one big mouth to listen to." . . . That's earl, brother.

Fearful Role Will Type Him

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Actor Jeff Morrow is drawing critical raves for a new concept of Abraham Lincoln in a local stage hit.

But he's not sure that he wants to go on the road. Morrow, Mala Powers and Phillip Pine are performing in Norman Corwin's play about the famous Lincoln-Douglas debates. Since the show opened producer Paul Gregory has bought the play for a tour.

Gregory wants Morrow to travel with one of two companies.

"There's only one thing that frightens me," he confides. 'Lincoln was such a powerful figure of history that it's almost suicidal for an actor to become identified with the part. I could be playing Lincoln the rest of my life."

He's got strong documentation for his theory because the Lincoln chosen for the other company is Raymond Massey, who has made a career of the part.

PLANS CATALINA TRIP

He's 'Admiral' of Canoe Fleet

By VERA WILLIAMS

Vincent Smith, a transportation counsellor who in 1950 became the first person to cross the Santa Catalina Channel in an open canoe alone and unescorted, is going to try it again one of these days.

He is sure that he and his Nuati-Gal can cut down their time considerably.

Smith, 69, commodore of the Pacific Division of the American Canoe Assn. and a life-long canoe enthusiast, made up his mind the other day when he was the only canoeist at the dedication of Basin 1 of the new Alamitos Bay Marina. He would like to focus attention on canoeing as a Southern California sport.

• • • •

"ALAMITOS BAY is a wonderful place to train," he says. "Canoeing makes men out of boys. It develops arms, legs, back, chest, brains. You have to have judgment to paddle a canoe. When a canoe tips over, it's never the canoe's fault. It is the fault of the canoeist because he did not do what he was supposed to do.

"You have to know how to make a canoe go where you want it to go. A canoe rides like a chip on the water. On the open sea you have to know how to paddle over a big wave, not through it the way a motorboat goes.

"Driving a motorboat or sitting at the wheel of a car doesn't do much for a person. Paddling a canoe does a lot. And canoeing, like walking, is a sport you can follow all your life. You can walk fast or slow, you can paddle a canoe fast or slow, putting into it just as much or just as little effort as you want."

• • • •

ON JULY 15, 1950, Vincent Smith in the Nauti-Gal took off from Cabrillo Beach, unescorted, at 7 a. m. He didn't even have a life preserver along. It took him 15 hours to reach Avalon, and 3½ of those hours he was in heavy fog.

Due to misinformation from a passing fisherman, Smith had spent several hours skirting the fog-locked shores in the wrong direction.

"I got to Avalon at 10 p. m., but at that there were about 3,000 people to greet me. They had been pretty scared I was drowned, and planes were out looking for me. But I had been within a half-mile of the island since 1 p. m.

"If I had a sponsor I could make the round trip in less time than it took me to get to Avalon. The sponsor would look after the course; all I would have to do is to paddle."

• • • •

SMITH BOUGHT the Nauti-Gal in 1922 from the factory in Toronto. At the time he was captain of the Lincoln Park Boat Club in Chicago. With her he won 150 races.

He has held national championships, winning American Canoe championships at Sugar Island on the St. Lawrence River.

In 1928 he was tilting champion of the United States and Canada.

• • • •

"YOU KNOW how the knights, on their horses, tried to unseat other mounted knights by using long poles? In canoe tilting you knock the opposing tilter out of the canoe."

For years Smith was canoe counsellor to Boy Scouts in Chicago, and for many years he took 24 Scouts on canoe trips. They shot rapids in Michigan, Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin.

• • • •

"THE MOST thrilling time," he says, "was in 1932 on the Flambeau River in northern Wisconsin. The Flambeau is a treacherous river, with lots of rapids.

"The natives said there would be at least a dozen tipovers the first day. But there wasn't one on the entire 100-mile trip. I still have pictures of those boys, their eyes big as saucers as they looked at the rapids."

Several times a year Smith shoots the rapids of the Kern River north of Bakersfield.

An Altadena man, who as an Eagle Scout had been with him on the Flambeau trip, watched him come ashore at Avalon in 1950. They had not seen each other in the intervening years.

"Some people thought I was crazy not to have a life preserver when I paddled to Catalina," he says. "But if I had been upset by a whale, for instance, I could empty the boat and get back in it in less than 60 seconds. I did it in 20 seconds in a competition in Chicago when I was 42."

The Nauti-Gal is 16 feet long, with a 32-inch beam and 12-inch depth. She was made of cedar, but in recent years because of the "checking" of the wood, Smith had her covered with fiber glass and painted. She flies the commodore flag of the American Canoe Assn.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith moved to Long Beach last July from Glendale. They live at 444 E. San Antonio Dr.

Chemists May Develop Plastic Injection to Erase Age Signs

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A Hollywood plastic surgeon says aging movie queens and kings may soon be able to add another 10 years to their careers as romantic heart throbs.

And not with the traditional face lift.

Dr. Robert Alan Franklyn, husband of actress Vanessa Brown, says that chemists are perfecting a liquid plastic that will replace missing underskin fat and tissue in faces of oldsters.

Franklyn predicts that when the chemists concoct the right formula, a 20-minute needle surgery job in the cosmetic surgeon's office will make a screen hero of 50 look like an Elvis Presley—if he wants to.

• • • •

THE OPERATION will work like this, according to Dr. Franklyn who has lifted many a famed Hollywood face and bosom:

Novocaine will be injected to kill pain, then the star will get injections of the plastic in wrinkled areas by means of tiny needles.

Almost immediately, the skin will "plump out"—Dr. Franklyn's words—and banish the fretwork of age lines.

He adds that the sub-dermal plastic will feel exactly like soft, pliable tissue to the touch.

"A movie queen will be able to get her cheek pinched without the pincher knowing the difference," the medico says.

Dr. Franklyn says the idea of needle surgery to restore youth in faces is not exactly new. German doctors tried it before World War II, using a powdered lucite slush that was difficult to inject under the skin.

• • • •

LIQUID PLASTIC, even in present experimentation, is 100 per cent improvement over all other materials tried, he asserts.

He's also excited about the possibility of using the new technique to give women shapely calves.

'We've been able to do very little about legs up to now," he says. "Skinny ones or heavy ones. But this, at least, opens the way for women with spindly legs to look like Marlene Dietrich from the knees down."

He doesn't see needle surgery doing away with face lifts altogether, however. It's his guess that hanging flesh still will require lifting by the conventional surgery.

"But if a woman of 50 has a good chin line and betrays her age only by wrinkles," he concludes," "plastic injections should make her look no less desirable than she was 20 years before."

Talent Showcase Chief Praises 'Discoveries'

"They're the best!"

That's the way Bob Van Antwerp, veteran Recreation Department supervisor and director of the newly established Youth Talent Showcase program, describes the youngsters being auditioned this month.

Talent Showcase is a Recreation Department program which, with the aid of the public schools, is seeking youngsters who would like careers in the entretainment and theatrical worlds.

• • • •

VAN ANTWERP currently is auditioning applicants at a rate of 40 per week.

"We have completed the first week's auditions and have 207 more hopefuls scheduled for auditioning," Van Antwerp said.

Talent Showcase plans call for the building of complete stage shows, with performances scheduled at local school auditoriums. Talent scouts at each of the public schools are searching for prospective entertainers.

• • • •

"THERE MAY be talented students who would like to be auditioned and have not as yet been contacted by their local school scouts," Van Antwerp said. "We invite these youngsters to contact the Recreation Department offices at Municipal Auditorium so that an audition date can be set."

Showcase plans also include establishment of a central file which would be available to luncheon clubs and civic groups seeking entertainment talent.

Spin in Moat Bad for Driver

CANTERBURY, England (UP) — Dennis Gilbert was found guilty of driving his car around a moat beneath the Canterbury city wall after an office party.

A policeman testified that Gilbert collided with a railway engine which was stored in the moat, three feet below street level.

"I just misjudged it, that's all," Gilbert said.

New Mallon Suit Round to Start

With MALCOLM EPLEY

WHAT HO! Somebody has said something kind about California drivers. And of all people, it was an ex-California traffic policeman who said it in a letter which appeared recently in a newspaper at Lincoln, Nebr., no doubt an area where malignment of California drivers is greatly practiced.

Mrs. P. E Herring, 3623 Falcon Ave., discovered the startling remarks in the forum dept. of the Lincoln newspaper, and sent along a clipping, which reads in part:

"Everyone talks about crazy 'California drivers' but after being a motorcycle officer in California, I can say with all sincerity that Lincoln drivers are the most inconsiderate and discourteous that I have seen anywhere in the nation. In California the traffic laws are strictly enforced, with excellent results. Why not try this in Lincoln for a change."

Some California drivers may not agree 100 per cent with the writer of the letter, but one thing it does, it shows that not all the bad driving is done in California, as midwesterners and easterners often suggest.

ONE REASON California drivers are so often "misunderstood" is that they fit their driving to the particular conditions which prevail in their home area, and these conditions are far different from those which many visitors have encountered.

In Southern California, where we have no adequate mass public transit system, nearly everybody drives. Many people live at great distances (traffic time and volume considered) from their work. They learn to drive at business-like speeds, to handle their cars adroitly in heavy traffic, to pace their driving to minimize delay at signaled intersections, to make the best use of multi-laned highways, etc.

All of this may be bewildering if not panicking to drivers from other areas where different conditions and requirements prevail. A little of this, and they go back to their homes with tall tales that probably grow a little taller with the telling.

As one who has done considerable driving about the country, my personal view is that as a lot, Southern California drivers are among the best in the nation. There are some wild ones, of course, but the general run are not nearly so wild as they may appear to be to a visitor who ventures on our highways, streets and freeways amid conditions unprecedented in his experience.

A LOCAL dog named Rock, a Weimaraner, has just hung up more proof that he is a master at the tracking game.

I. B. House, 4350 Linden Ave., Rock's owner, got a call to take the dog to the Tujunga Hills, where a woman was missing. The dog picked up the trail quickly, followed his nose for three hours and located the woman, who was scared and cold, otherwise o.k.

The trail was nine hours cold when Rock went to work. It led along a macadam road for some distance, ending in the discovery of the woman, after dark, in brush-covered, hilly country.

Rock has won many tracker competitions and his boss claims he is the faster tracker in the country. This was the first time he had been called upon to help rescue a lost person, and he performed like clockwork.

ANOTHER DOG story concerns the Frank Hoyt family on Rivo Alto Canal, who aren't going to let their dog hunt Easter eggs this year.

Last Easter, dozens of eggs were hidden about the house, some with names on them, for hunting by the Hoyts' five youngsters and George.

George hunted out the eggs and proceeded to eat all eggs with the names on the shells. He didn't touch the others.

This mystified the Hoyts' youngest child who asked: "Can't George read? He's old enough."

Red Feather Agencies Cut '57 Budgets

Less than 60 per cent of the $1,292,979 budget for 1957 support of Community Chest agencies here will be financed from funds collected in last fall's United Neighbors campaign.

George E. Himmelbauer, Chest president, said the difference—$518,816—must be made up through donations and fees.

"Since the community failed to contribute the necessary funds," Himmelbauer said, "all of the agencies have been forced to reduce planned expenditures. In some cases services must be curtailed and programs not expanded in proportion to our population growth."

He said necessary cuts would prohibit needed extensive repairs to agency-owned buildings and would force agencies to maintain operations without needed staff increases.

• • • •

THE 22-MEMBER Chest Budget Committee allotted five child care services $56,707 from Chest donations. Services included are Children's Home Society, East Day Nursery, West Day Nursery, North Long Beach Day Nursery and Pacific Lodge Boys' Home.

The five family welfare agencies—Family Service, Catholic Welfare Bureau, Salvation Army, Volunteers of America and Travelers Aid—will be given $164,407.

Community services provided by the Community Welfare Council, Community Volunteer Office, will have $19,683, USO will have $28,750, a large portion of which will be returned to operation of the Armed Services YMCA here.

Building-centered youth agencies such as Lakewood YMCA, North Long Beach Y, Downtown Y, Jewish Community Center, YWCA, Central Branch Boys Club, North Long Beach Boys Club, East and West Branch Boys Clubs with total budgets of $425,273 were granted $207,819 of Chest funds.

• • • •

OF THE $95,071 budgets of the Visiting Nurse Service, Psychiatric Clinic for Children and Children's Clinic, $66,196 will be furnished from United Neighbors campaign collections.

The Chest will supply $135,908 of the $356,262 that will be spent by the Boy Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, Catholic Youth Organization and Long Beach Scouts Council and $3,580 to the Green Willows Council of Girl Scouts for services received by Lakewood Girl Scouts.

Costs of administration, campaign and public information amounted to less than 12 per cent of all allocations, Himmelbauer said.

DAKOTANS PLAN PICNIC

Former residents of Potter County, S. D., plan their annual picnic Sunday, Feb. 17, in Bixby Park. Tables will be reserved from 11 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

What Club Did He Use?

WAS IT DUFFER or demon who cut out the row of trees on Virginia Country Club's 14th fairway? W. J. Hamilton, left, chairman of the greens committee, and William F. Cook, club president, ponder the mystery of the missing hazard. The club has offered a $250 reward for conviction of the vandal.—(Staff)

MIDNIGHT LUMBERJACKS

Duffers Under Cloud in Links Vandalism

By BOB HOUSER

As if by an avenging demon of duffers immemorial, the 14th fairway row of eucalyptus and cottonwood trees lay hacked, sawed and dead at Virginia Country Club.

Club officers, intrigued over the kind of mentality which could sustain a fit of temper through an hour or so of impromptu midnight lumberjacking, have offered a reward for his conviction.

William F. Cook, club president, and W. J. Hamilton, greens committee chairman, say the mystery has borne a dozen theories but no clues.

They reluctantly concede the vandalism may have been the labor of hate of one of the smart club's 415 members.

• • • •

SINCE THE two cottonwoods and one flowering eucalyptus which marked the path from tee to green on the 309-yard, par 4 14th were a definite hazard to the high handicap golfer, the bogey and double-bogey linksmen are suspect.

"True," says Hamilton, "I've been mad enough to bite a tree down with my teeth but the feeling passed. This guy must really have been in a fit."

President Cook said the trees, ranging from 10 to 14 inches in diameter, were felled sometime between 4:30 p.m. Friday, Dec. 14 and 7 a.m. Saturday, Dec. 15.

"That was a night of unusually heavy fog," said Cook, "so the culprit was somebody familiar with the course and knew exactly where he was going."

Since some of the trees had multiple trunks, the saw and axe job involved seven or eight timber felling operations.

• • • •

RESIDENTS WHOSE homes border the layout's southwest corner heard no weird noises that night, no eerie ring of a midnight axe. And yet, there lay the bare and scarred fairway the next morning, the 20-25-foot trees sprawled where they fell.

Cook and Hamilton believe it was more than simple vandalism, else the timberman would have settled for trees not so remote. Indeed, a couple of weeks after the incident, two other trees—completely out of any fairway shootline — were felled. But the latter two were cut completely by axe.

Directors of the club's board have offered a $250 reward for arrest and conviction of the duffer or duffers unknown.

"The 14th was an easy par 4," a member said. "Now it's easier."

L.B. Skylinks Name for New Golf Course

Long Beach Skylinks was the name chosen Saturday for the new municipal golf course to be located east of Municipal Airport.

The winner of the name-the-course contest conducted by Independent columnist Harry Fulton was Mrs. Lucille Winesky of 802 Orizaba Ave. She will be presented with a $100 savings bond in ceremonies at the City Council chambers Wednesday.

APPROXIMATELY 500 entries were submitted. Three meetings were held before a final decision was reached. Judges were Toby Wick, city councilman; Vi Dovey, administrative assistant to the mayor and city council; Connie Freeze, city greens committee, and Jerry Wynn, I-PT golf writer.

Although many persons contributed long lists of names, Mrs. Winesky entered only the winner. Her husband, Lucien, is merchant marine radioman. He'll have a surprise waiting for him when his ship docks Wednesday morning just prior to the presentation of the bond.

Wouldn't you know it. The Wineskys are non-golfers.

Los Altos 'Y' Membership Gains 41%

Los Altos YMCA membership campaign has realized 41.2 per cent of its goal, Marvin Tincher, chairman, said Saturday.

The campaign organization, composed of 110 workers, seeks to sign up a minimum of 400 adult members to the new Los Altos YMCA program. The Y already is providing activities for more than 500 residents in the area.

Pacing the drive is the "Sparkers" division, headed by Mrs. Marie Shelnutt, with 54 members obtained.

Other division chairmen are Mrs. J. Donald Horn, Noble Millie, William Dalessi, Edward Grant, Thomas Fisher, Earl Squiers and Oliver Speraw. Associate chairmen serving with Tincher are Glenn Vierson, Orville Wilson and Dud Shelnutt. Mrs. Estelle Gilbert is campaign secretary, and Mrs. Arlene Flamer is in charge of publicity.

Low Wage Depletes P.O. Staff

Low wages forced 22 per cent of Long Beach's 934 postal employes to quit their jobs last year, officials of Local 543 of the National Federation of Post Office Clerks charged Saturday.

Joining in the national promotion of "Salary Rally Week," starting today, the local urged Long Beach residents to write to Rep. Craig Hosmer to ask his support of proposed postal pay-raise legislation.

• • • •

THE LEGISLATION already has the support "of both labor and management in the Post Office Dept.," said Dale White, local president.

Starting pay for postal workers is $3,660 a year, and it costs taxpayers $500 to train each new employe, he said.

"We believe it would be cheaper in the long run and would give better postal service to put that $500 into a pay raise," White said.

• • • •

"OUR LOCAL supervisors admit the present turnover in this entire area so seriously affects the service to the patrons, from the standpoint of misdelivery and other improper handling, that some immediate action is needed."

The local will have a dinner-rally at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in Linden Hall. Throughout the week, other activities will be held throughout the Southland to back up the pay-raise appeal.

Lakewood Boat Show Continues

Today and Monday are final days of the Lakewood Boat Show being staged 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. at Lakewood Center. The show is co-sponsored by Southern California Marine Assn. and Lakewood Center Businessmen's Assn.

Tickets for a 14-foot boat, outboard motor and trailer valued at $1,200 will be distributed at Lakewood Center stores Monday. The boat will be given away Tuesday at 10 a.m.

Petition Out Against Tax for L.A. Aud

Petitions addressed to the Board of Supervisors began circulating today to protest county-wide financing of a 51-million-dollar civic auditorium in Los Angeles.

The petitions were distributed Saturday at a meeting in Bixby Park of the Taxpayer's Council of Long Beach. E. Curtis Clark, council president and a former city councilman, charged those present with the responsibility of circulating the petitions.

The petition "respectfully but emphatically" protests charging the cost of the auditorium "to county taxpayers without their voted approval."

• • • • •

"ENTIRELY WRONG, unfair to those who pay the taxes, and contrary to the tenets of democracy," the petition read. "We know too that should such method of financing become common practice, the result will be financial disaster, and such is the basis for our protest, rather than objection to the project."

The paper urges the Board of Supervisors to abandon "such arbitrary method of financing" under pain of losing election support. Support would be refused any supervisor candidate "who does not pledge himself as being unalterably opposed to such method of financing costly projects."

• • • •

THE PETITION concluded: "We prefer to believe that our supervisors are generally desirous of pleasing their constituents and therefore will readily accede to the expressed wishes of the people when substantial evidence is furnished showing the people's desires."

Opponents of the proposed county-wide backing of the Los Angeles structure have pointed out that similar proposals three times have been rejected by voters of that city and that any attempt to circumvent a vote by county taxpayers, when they would be similarly obligated, amounts to high-handed practice.

Issue of Injunction Against City Raised

By GEORGE WEEKS

The four-year-old case of Mallon vs. City of Long Beach, which has already cost the city more than 135 million dollars, will enter another round Monday.

It won't be the final round, for opposing lawyers have agreed not to take up what was scheduled to be the issue—Atty. Theodore R. Gabrielson's bid for a multimillion-dollar fee from the tideland oil money—which the state now shares with the city.

Instead, the earlier issue of a proposed injunction restraining the city from spending the oil revenue for purposes outside the trust will be argued.

THE LATEST SWITCH came about largely at the request of Atty. Charles C. Stratton, counsel for Felix Mallon. He asked that the question of fee awards from the huge pot be deferred.

Stratton has indicated he intends to file a claim of his own, but to present it first to the City Council rather than the court. His filing and the Council's action are expected to require several weeks.

Gabrielson, attorney for an intervenor in the case, is expected to press the injunction petition which originated with the suit filed by Stratton.

In the original action Stratton asked that the city be restrained from spending tideland oil money for such upland purposes as a series of public improvements approved by the voters.

The petition also demanded that money transferred from other accounts to the Public Improvement Fund (then approximating 56 million dollars) be retransferred to the original accounts.

SINCE THEN the State Supreme Court has reversed a lower court's decision sustaining a city demurrer which contended there was no cause for action.

As a consequence, the city in April, 1956, joined the state in a legislative compromise later implemented by a court order under which the state gets one-half of the oil revenue, as well as all the value of the tideland dry gas used since Feb. 1, 1956.

City Atty. Walhfred Jacobson said these facts will be cited in an argument that no injunction should be issued.

The city's position is that it never has spent tideland money for any purposes except in accord with legal opinions as to the propriety of such outlays, that during the pendency of the Mallon suit no attempt was made to go through with the questioned improvements and that since the Supreme Court's decision the city's good faith has been proved by the huge sums transferred to the state.

PRIVATELY, CITY SPOKESMEN said it would be difficult to draft the proposed injunction except in such terms as might precipitate constant court arguments in the future.

They pointed out that, even without an injunction, specific court tests are planned by the city to determine whether the tideland money may be spent for such purposes as the Armed Services YMCA and the Municipal Auditorium Annex.

The Monday hearing is set for 9:30 a.m. before Judge A. Curtis Smith in Los Angeles Superior Court, who has been assigned to rule on virtually all issues arising from the Mallon suit.

In December, 1956, Gabrielson asked that the city be required to show cause at this time why judgment should not be entered in his favor for an amount equal to 5 per cent of the tideland money preserved to the trust.

Shortly afterward Judge Smith permitted the state to intervene in the Mallon case, but solely for the purpose of joining in resistance to the fee ward. For that reason, the state is expected to be represented Monday only in the capacity of an observer.

Lucky Dollars Will Circulate, $1000 Prizes for Sales Event

A total of $1,000 in cash prizes will be given away this week in an exciting Lucky Dollar Days celebration sponsored by Long Beach Downtown Retailers Associated.

Starting Monday, the 348-member merchants of Downtown Retailers Associated will be giving as change dollar bills whose serial numbers have been recorded. The money will be used throughout the week—not only during the big Dollar Days sale Thursday through Saturday.

Thursday, member stores will display window streamers listing the lucky serial numbers. These streamers will carry the heading, "Stop, Look and Win!"

• • • •

ONE LUCKY bill will be worth $100 cash. Others will be worth amounts ranging from $2 to $50.

Merchants already have obtained $250,000 in dollar bills for change.

The lucky bills are aimed at drawing attention to the big annual Dollar Days sale and to the merits of downtown Long Beach as "the complete shopping area," Clark explained.

• • • •

NOW IN the midst of an unprecedented facelifting and modernization which already have attracted national interest, the downtown area's role as a merchandizing leader is reflected by the growth of the Park & Shop system, according to Don Spring, president of Downtown Retailers Associated.

With 230 stores taking part in the P&S system, there is parking available within one block of any downtown store, he said. Some 2,524 parking spaces have added to the system in the past year, giving it a total of 50,000 spaces.

LUCKY DOLL of Lucky Dollar Days in downtown Long Beach this week is Rose Marie Bush, Miss Winter. $1000 in cash prizes will be given away during the big sales event.—(Staff Photo)

John Reidy 'U. Club' Chief

John Reidy, for four years assistant manager of the Lafayette Hotel, has been appointed manager of the University Club, 1150 E. Ocean Blvd. He will assume his new duties Feb. 19.

Reidy was with the Hilton Hotel interests for several years. He served the Hilton Abilene, Hilton Lubbock and Hilton El Paso before coming to Long Beach as assistant to the Lafayette's manager, Dave Tallichet.

At the University Club Reidy succeeds Richard Kimball.

More Than 8,600,000 Share Recreation Program in Fiscal Year

Attendance at the combined municipal and school recreation program totaled 8,616,807 last fiscal year, a record topped only by the preceding 12-month period.

The 1954-55 figure was 8,777,333. Last year's decline was attributed mainly to the closing of school swimming pools for extensive repairs.

An annual report just issued by the Recreation Commission points out that the upward trend may be expected to resume this year and in future because of the expansion of recreation facilities under financing by the $4,900,000 bond issue approved in February, 1956.

Excluded from last year's attendance figure was general beach recreation, which attracted an attendance of upward of nine million additional persons.

• • • •

ATTENDANCE AT municipal playgrounds and recreation areas was 5,201,362 and at school, after-school and vacation programs 3,415,445, according to the report prepared by Walter L. Scott, director of recreation.

Illustrating the variety of activities were these attendance figures:

Friday night social and dance programs at junior high schools, 46,800; rhythm events for children, 17,138; social dance classes, 6,051; adult square dancing classes, 2,000 graduates.

Drama workshop, 6,521; puppetry, 13,115; music, 4,507.

Men's baseball, 7,435 players; softball, 20,175; basketball, 17,384.

Tennis participants, 18,775; table tennis, 2,990; badminton, 8,818; volley ball (league play only), 1,330.

Camp Sea Hawk for boys, 976; Camp Woodland for girls, 915.

Tournaments at youth canteens, 97,865.

• • • •

ADULT CLUBS in shuffleboard, roque, lawn bowling, chess, checkers and cards, 1,673 members.

Hobby Show sponsored by 48 clubs, 44,200 visitors.

Numerous picnics at recreation areas, many sponsored by state groups and attracting up to 100,000.

Among the accomplishments noted by Mrs. Charles F. Reed, commission president during the first half of the year, were start of construction on many recreation improvements, purchase of most of the land for El Dorado Park and the completion of the park clubhouse.

City expenditures by the Recreation Dept. were reported at $873,009.05. Long Beach Unified School District expenditures attributed to the program were $237,580.67.

180,000 to Sail Pacific

Postwar Boom in Sea Travel to Reach Peak

More than 180,000 American tourists will sail the Pacific this year in what is expected to be the biggest ship travel boom since pre-World War II days.

New, fast passenger liners—some of them converted from freighter hulls—will be added to present fleets to handle the flood of tourists which should more than double 1956 totals.

Hawaiian Steamship Co.'s Leilani, sailing from Long Beach, invaded the lucrative Hawaii-California trade last Tuesday when she left on the first of 30 scheduled voyages a year.

Matson Navigation Co., meeting the challenge, will send its Matsonia in June to join the Lurline on the California-Hawaii run. The Matsonia is now in an eastern shipyard, undergoing a $20,000,000 reconstruction job.

* * * *

IN ADDITION, Matson has taken two mariner freighter hulls and converted them to luxury liners, the Mariposa and Monterey, for passenger service to the South Pacific, Australia and New Zealand.

American President Lines, in the midst of a $275,000,000 expansion program, will have a 1,400-passenger super liner for the Orient trade.

APL's latest addition, the SS President Hoover, will join the company's trans-Pacific service Monday when she leaves San Francisco for her maiden run to the Far East.

Schedule of the 14,000-ton vessel, the former SS Panama, will be integrated with those of the President Wilson and President Cleveland to put sailings to the Orient on a twice-monthly basis.

* * * *

THE BRITISH FLAG Orient Line, with six luxury liners, will make 10 trips to the Pacific Coast from the South Pacific this year, an increase of four over 1955.

A huge 2,000-passenger liner, the Oriana, will join the Orient Line fleet in 1960.

Japan's NYK Line will enter the picture in 1959, when two 22,000-ton luxury liners now under construction will be ready to carry passengers from San Francisco to Japan.

Not all of these Americans on the move will sail the Pacific aboard passenger liners, however.

An estimated 40,000 of them will prefer the more leisurely pace and more individual service offered by freighters. Many of these, which usually carry only a dozen or so passengers each, have accommodations which equal or surpass those of the liners.

Cat in 7th Day of 'Sitdown' Atop High-Line Pole

SCRANTON, Pa. (UP)—A hungry gray and white cat Saturday spent its seventh day atop a utility pole carrying a 23,000-volt power line as onlookers debated ways of rescuing it.

Officials of the Pennsylvania Power & Light Co. said the 60-foot pole at nearby Simpson is too dangerous to climb to the top when power is running through the line. To turn it off, would mean cutting electricty to three small towns.

Food has been placed on a crossarm just below the line but so far the cat has shown little inclination to move for the bait.

Pacific Fur-Seal Pact Announced

WASHINGTON (UP) — The United States, Canada, Russia, and Japan Saturday signed a new convention to protect North Pacific fur seals from indiscriminate slaughter.

The convention, subject to ratification by the four powers, was initialled after 14 months of negotiations. It replaces those in force since 1911 and will be effective for six years.

It sets up a commission of four members, one representing each nation, to regulate and supervise the trapping of the fur-bearing mammals in their breeding grounds.

Increased Sales for Schweppes

Sales of Schweppes beverages in Southern California registered a 66 per cent gain in 1956 over the previous year, it was announced by Byron Wilson, head of the Duffield Distributing Co.'s Schweppes division.

The increase is ascribed to augmented newspaper and other advertising, as well as increased store-wide promotions in leading chains. According to Wilson, these factors have resulted in growing acceptance of Schweppes quinine water, gingerale, and club soda as year-round beverages. Fourth quarter 1956 Schweppes sales in Southern California showed a 156 per cent increase over the corresponding period of 1955.

$12½ Million Sales Shown

Robert L. Wetzler, president, and Bob Ware, vice president and sales manager of Cinderella Realty, Inc., reported $12,655,000 sales volume for 1956.

Wetzler and Ware do their sales planning from new headquarters at 10002 Stanton Ave., Anaheim.

Properties they are offering include the Vandruff Cinderella Homes in Anaheim and have their phenomenal sales supervised by Bob Ware.

O'Kane Cinderella Estates in Tustin and Robin Hood series of Archer Park in Whittier and La Habra are others.

Reports Heavy Sale of Acreages

A gain in acreage business in excess of $1 million since last October, when Walker and Lee, Inc., sales agents for many land and home development projects, opened their new salesoffice at 9000 Lincoln Ave., West Anaheim, was reported by Robert Walker, president of the sales agency. Robert Osborn is in charge of the new acreage department.

A graduate of the University of Kansas, Osborn was associated with a number of large acreage developments projects in the San Fernando Valley for 10 years before moving his four-year-old daughter, Mary Lynn, and wife, Margery, to Lido Island, and joining the sales firm.

Walker and Lee's main office is at 4100 Bellflower Blvd., Long Beach.

Must Hike Interest Rate on VA Loan, Builders Say

George M. Pardee, president of the Home Builders Institute, trade association of large volume builders in Los Angeles and Orange Counties, says there is still a large and steady demand from veterans for new homes but home builders cannot meet this demand under the present 4½ percent VA interest rate.

"Builders have reluctantly concluded that the GI loans will become a thing of the past unless the law is amended to place the maximum permissible rate upon a parity with that permissible for FHA insured loans," Pardee said.

The FHA interest rate on government-insured loans recently was raised from 4½ to 5 per cent. It can be raised by administrative action to 6 per cent. The GI loan rate is rigidly set by law at 4½ per cent and can be changed only by Congress.

• • • •

"BUILDERS naturally would like to see their customers enjoy the lowest possible interest rate," Pardee said. "But we must recognize the realities of today's credit conditions. Money today will not flow at 4½ per cent — and builders cannot absorb the heavy discounts required to bring that rate up to the yield which investors can get from other use of their funds."

"An increase in the GI loan rate is imperative if further deterioration in this situation is to be avoided."

The trade association president, top spokesman for the local home building industry said an interest rise alone will not restore a free flow of funds to the residential mortgage market. Among other measures needed, he said, are these:

• • • •

1. AN INCREASE in the preferred stock of the Federal National Mortgage Association by $250-million to enable FNMA to carry on its function of supporting the mortgage market by buying VA and FHA loans.

2. Increase FNMA's special assistance fund by $2 billion as an emergency measure to provide appropriate funds (over and above such amounts as FNMA may obtain by the sale of its debentures) to be lent in those geographic areas and in those price ranges in which mortgage money otherwise would not be available.

• • • •

3. REVISE FHA'S maximum ratio of loan to value to provide a minimum down payment schedule which recognizes today's cost levels and which will provide a financing device to ease the readjustment incident to return to a single financing system for veterans and non-veterans alike. Until such a revised schedule can be enacted, the NAHB believes the GI loan benefits for World War II veterans (now scheduled to expire in July, 1958) should be extended.

Pardee said other proposals had been advanced to help relieve the current scarcity of mortgage credit, but the NAHB did not believe they would be as effective as the program he advanced.

In discussing the scarcity of GI loan credit, Pardee said that "few, if any, builders are making plans to construct homes in this area for veterans because GI loans are simply not available, or, where available, are offered only at discounts far beyond the ability of the builder to absorb."

Club Will Hear Aged Security Talk

The North Long Beach Real Estate Club will meet Thursday, at 8 a.m., at Mayo's Restaurant, 5925 Cherry Ave. Charles Bell will be program chairman and will have as his speaker Ross Lopez, director of Long Beach district of County Bureau of Public Assistance. His talk will be on "Old Age Security."

REALTY SPEAKER

What went on at Sacramento will be discussed by Assemblyman Wm. S. (Bill) Grant when he addresses the Long Beach Board of Realtors' weekly Breakfast Forum Tuesday morning at Lafayette Hotel. Clive Graham, program chairman for the month, said that this is a continuation of the theme of "Legal Aspects of Real Estate." Grant is shown reviewing the hundreds of bills submitted during the first session of the 1957 meeting.

New Terms for Vets, Non-Vets on Big Sherwood Forest Homes

Both veterans and non-veterans can buy a spacious, beautifully equipped Sherwood Forest 3 and 4-bedroom, family room and 2-bath home in Anaheim for terms of $995 down, including costs and impounds, it was announced by a spokesman for the George D. Buccola development.

The dwellings have been recognized by the National Association of Home Builders as worthy of its 1956 Award of Merit, one of two presented to homes in Orange County. Other awards won by the homes include the American Institute of Architects Design Award, the Sunset Magazine Award of Merit, and House & Homes Award of Merit.

Such outstanding recognition give Sherwood Forest homes the reputation of having won the most awards of any Orange County development in recent years, earned, according to House & Home by "the meticulous care Builder George Buccola gave to every detail . . . attention reflected in the home-buyer's appreciative approval."

• • • •

AMONG FEATURES of the homes are all-electric kitchens with built-in range and oven, washer-dryer, dishwasher, wall-hung refrigerator and freezer and garbage disposal. A formica-topped serving bar off the kitchen is accessible for family room use as well, it was noted, while natural birch cabinetry is another of the kitchen highlights.

A unique wall of brick extending from the fireplace to the far side of the patio invites patio privacy with sliding glass doors separating the living rooms from the out-of-doors. Other features are large double-door wardrobes in the master bedroom, which in some plans also has a fireplace; Pullman sinks in baths with imported marble tops; spacious stall shower; Pioneer forced air heat with summer fan; lath and plaster walls and ceiling, polished cork floors and floor-length aluminum picture windows.

Located in one of Anaheim's finest residential areas, Sherwood Forest homes are close to new and extensive shopping centers, new schools and churches of all denominations, recreational areas and major transportation.

Landscaping is included with the dwellings. Priced from $18,900, the models are reached from Santa Ana by driving out Santa Ana Freeway to Ball Rd., east to Brookhurst and right to the models.

ONLY $995 DOWN

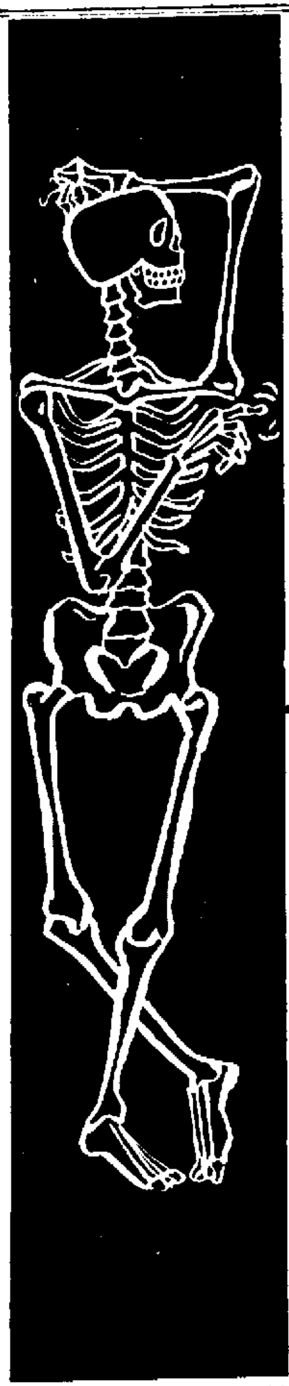
New terms of $995 down, including costs and impounds, for both vets and non-vets were announced on the George Buccola award-winning Sherwood Forest homes. Here is an interior view of one home.

Sets New High for Insurance

Closing 1956 with more than $2½ billion of life insurance on its books, Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Co. nearly tripled its total volume in force in the past 10 years, according to Asa V. Call, the company's chairman.

New life insurance placements of more than $350 millions in 1956 established an all-time annual high for the company, Call said.

Walter J. Hawkins, Long Beach general agent for Pacific Mutual, reported a 22 per cent increase in placements of new life insurance in this area last year as compared with 1955.



will your dream house have a "skeleton in the closet"?

A cheap, cost-cutting heating system saves you about the price of a portable 14" T.V. set—Such a job usually costs about the same as half a kitchen range, or half a refrigerator.

Shocked? Don't be. Most so-called "forced-air heating" systems in houses costing up to $20,000 (furnace, installation, ducts, thermostat, etc.) cost less than $250 to the builder.

Give yourself a break—Less than 3¢ more a day would let the builder give you and your family a healthful, comfortable heating system. Tell your real estate agent, architect or contractor it's worth 3¢ more a day for adequate heating. Tell them you want no skeletons in your closet—you want good heating.

Electronic Oven Demonstrated in Tietz Skylark Terrace

Electronic oven demonstrations are continuing at two of the three Southland developments of Skylark Terrace 3- and 4-bedroom, 2- and 3-bath homes, it was revealed by Bill Tietz, president of Tietz Construction Co., builders and developers. Prospective homeowners in Garden Grove and Lancaster are witnessing the demonstrations being conducted by home economists of the Edison Co.

Spacious throughout, the dwellings have more than 1,500 square feet of living area and are built on lots with up to 85-foot frontages. Big enough to accommodate swimming pools as well as playcourts, gardens, patios and barbecues, the lots are complete with swimming pools as optional equipment contracted for before construction of the homes for buyers who wish to take advantage of the opportunity, it was noted.

• • • •

WITHIN THE HOMES, each room has strong individual appeal, with kitchens rating high in popularity. All-electric built-in appliances are included with range and wall oven, automatic dishwashers, disposal and ventilating fans adding to the beauty and efficiency of the rooms which have Formica work surfaces, natural birch cabinetry and oversize built-in family breakfast bars.

Great fireplaces of sandstone or used brick and sliding walls of glass highlight the living rooms. Bathrooms, with Formica and tile surfaces, have pullman lavatories, electric heaters and etched glass stall shower doors. Genuine lath and plaster, brick trim exteriors with Provincial or Contemporary architectural treatment and heavy shake or crushed rock roofs are features of construction.

Priced from $18,000, Skylark Terrace homes in Garden Grove, Lancaster and in Riverside are located to take best advantage of the areas, with new shopping districts, schools, churches and recreational centers of the communities easily accessible.

In Garden Grove, models of the homes, which are available on both FHA and VA financing, are reached by driving out 7th St. from Long Beach, to Brookhurst, and north to Chapman. From Los Angeles, drive out Santa Ana Freeway to Brookhurst and south to the homes.

SPACIOUS HOME ON BIG LOT

Here is one of the Skylark Terrace homes, developed by Bill Tietz, which have 1,500 square feet and are built on large lots. Swimming pools are optional.

60 Homes Sold in Two Weeks

In spite of cold, rainy weather, the Laramore Construction Co. reports the sale of more than 60 new homes in their Orange County developments during the past two weeks. According to Frank H. McFarland, sales agent, sales actually increased due to the impression made on buyers by the effective storm control and rapid run-off which left streets and lots high and dry.

With every indication that present high sales rates are going to continue, McFarland voiced the opinion that homes in these desirable locations will soon be sold out.

In Ellanbee Manor near Garden Grove, he pointed out as an example, the community is nearly sold but can still offer a good selection of exterior styles and a variety of floor plans with from 3 bedrooms to 3 and den or 4 bedrooms with 2 baths. Another weekend will see the choice narrowed considerably, he predicted.

• • • •

TERMS, which were recently reduced on Ellanbee Manor to just $95 down—no costs and no impounds to non-vets, will be continued as long as the existing homes are available. In Magnolia Manor No. 6, another Laramore development, non-vets can buy for just $195 down plus small costs.

The homes are large provincial type dwellings with conventional construction and more than 1,300 square feet of living space. Modern conveniences such as garbage disposals and provision for all gas kitchens are included, all at low prices ranging from $11,250 to $11,850 in Ellanbee Manor and $11,950 at Magnolia Manor No. 6.

To see Ellanbee Manor, drive east on 7th St. to Harbor Blvd., then south to Westminster Blvd., and west to Newhope, then south to the sales office. For Magnolia Manor No. 6 drive east on 7th St. to Hwy. 39, north to Cerritos. Turn west to Western and north to the model

CONSTRUCTION STARTS

Ground Broken for Big Medical Center

Following ground breaking ceremonies, construction was launched on the big Medical Center, Los Altos, which will arise at the southwest corner of Bellflower Blvd. and Atherton St.

The large structure, which will have 21 suites of offices, a large coffee shop and other facilities, will contain much novel styling.

Designed by the architectural firm of Powers, Daly & De Rosa, it will be a two-story structure with wide use of glass on all exteriors. The elevator serving the second floor will be all glass enclosed.

Marron Construction Co. is the contracting firm and engineers are Charley C. Curtis, structural; Sheldon Stele, electrical, and Reese Hansen, mechanical.

• • • •

AMONG THOSE who participated in the ground breaking was Lloyd Dale Whaley representing the L. S. Whaley Co., developers of the Los Altos community and former owners of the land. Dr. Joseph Fagin, who heads the group building the big center, was unable to attend.

Leases have been signed with several leading physicians, surgeons and dentists, it was announced, including some former VA medics. Among those who will be in the center are:

Billie Adamson, M.D., orthopedics; John R. Anderson, M.D., radiology; C. H. Bodensteiner, M.D., general practice; Joseph Fagin, M.D., obstetrics and gynecology; Richard Hall, M.D., orthopedics.

Dana Howe, M.D., general practice; Robert Jenson, D.D.S., orthodontics; Donald E. King, M.D., obstetrics and gynecology; Tom Kiddie, M.D., pathology; James Maltby, M.D., radiology.

Builders Use Novel Type Model Home

Colorful country farm houses are being built for the lower income bracket, by Studio Estates. Steen-Watson Corp. is aiming to bring distinctive homes to young couples on a budget. Many non-vets are having their needs met in the $12,000 to $13,000 class with $275 down, salesmen say.

These builders are aware of the women's angle. The architect, Wm. Bray A.I.A. of Los Angeles and Walter Holbrook, interior designer of Newport Beach, have combined their efforts in serving up something special for the homemaker.

Nothing like the "DO-IT-YOURSELF" model has been done in this area before. It is full of useful hints. The ideas of decorators are to be seen here, done in a way that you can reproduce yourself.

Secondhand stores yielded up old furniture, the hardware stores paint, the lumber yard screening and poles, a marble slab from the marble yard and the yardage stores, and Sears supplied materials used in this colorful model.

Steen-Watson sent a representative to Washington to check on the finding of the First Women's Congress on Housing."

These practical findings are used by Steen-Watson Corp. in their homes. This organization has many years of building experience. Al Watson, for 18 years has been doing tract building. Ed Steen has a commercial building background, bridges, theaters etc. and Ruth Steen for many years a decorator and color consultant.

Next project for Studio Estates, keyed from the "Women's Congress" findings will be for Junior Executives at 21st and Irvine Sts. in the Back Bay area.

Sales Increase

NEW YORK (AP)—Sales of Safeway Stores in four weeks ended Jan. 26 totaled $153,144,435 compared with $140,885,314 in the like weeks in 1956, an increase of 8.70 per cent. There were 1,982 retail stores in operation this year against 1,976 a year earlier.

This Is Advertising Week

Mayor pro tempore Gerald Desmond has proclaimed this week as advertising week in recognition of the outstanding contributions made by the advertising industry to the American public.

The Long Beach observance is being sponsored by the Long Beach Ad Club, of which Ken Jackson is president. Joe Witzerman, of Sarver-Witzerman Advertising Agency, is chairman. Committee members are Don Nutter and Lois Smith, of the Independent, Press-Telegram, and Hal Shideler, of Radio Station KFOX.

"The prosperity of our nation is dependent upon two major factors, that we produce food and products and that the people consume these commodities," Mayor pro tempore Desmond said. "When this balance is upset, we have overproduction and underconsumption, resulting in economic instability.

"The American people can be truly grateful to the creativeness of the advertising industry for helping to maintain this healthy balance by 'selling' American production to the American people. Forceful advertising has kept industry competitive for the consumer's purchase and in so doing has created new jobs, reduced production costs through increased sales and reduced the price of manufactured goods. In all of these the consumer has benefited."

Perfects New Gun to Perforate Well

By MAX B. SKELTON

WICHITA FALLS, Tex. (AP) — An ex-aeronautical engineer has developed a gadget he believes will make oil well completions easier and prolong the lives of many wells.

E. David Edwards already has three of his new slot perforating units in operation in North Texas and Southern Oklahoma. He plans to have three more by the end of 1957.

Edwards is confident his new perforating gun simplifies well completions, reduces overhauls and aids in getting production from troublesome or non-commercial wells. He believes the gun also can be adapted for other purposes inside and outside the oil industry.

The new gun punctures well pipe with slots 3 inches wide and 1 inch deep. Each slot is 28 times the size of conventional bullet or jet perforations.

PERFORATING guns are lowered into well and discharged at depths opposite oil sands. The charges perforate the pipe to permit oil to enter the casing to flow or to be pumped to the surface.

On the average, only two slot perforations are used for each foot of oil sand. The jet method average is four openings per foot.

The smaller performations, Edwards says are not always large enough to permit successful or commercial production from a new well and require cleaning or overhauls after becoming clogged with mud, oil, sand and other reservoir materials.

Under the slot method, he said, the holes are difficult to clog and there is less cleaning out of perforations. He added that slots reduced greatly mud and water blocks which frequently do not allow a well to produce.

"SOME PEOPLE think our slot method will replace the conventional methods but I tell them they are wrong," Edwards said. "The jet was patterned after the wartime bazooka and now is in wide use but it didn't replace the old bullet perforator. I believe each type has its place."

Edwards has been working on his slot perforator four years. He obtained a broker's license and handled his own financing while continuing experiments on carefully selected wells that offered comparisons with other methods.

"We were contacted by a North Texas operator who had found an oil sand at 380 feet but was getting no production with conventional perforations," he said in detailing one experiment. "The operator had another well that had been producing on the same lease at 800 feet. We plugged the second well to just below the 380-foot sand and shot that zone with the slot perforator. The operator was getting production the next day.

Novel Home Heat Pumps Shown Here

One of the most unusual home air conditioning products yet developed, the new General Electric Weathertron (heat pump), is now available at local dealers who say the machine will cool and heat an entire home, using no fuel or water, only air and electricity.

The Weathertron automatically conditions the home throughout the year at any desired temperature. There is no fussing with controls, since it switches from cooling to heating on its own, from season to season, within the same day, or even hourly, if necessary.

Despite its "push-button" characteristics, the G. E. Weathertron is termed a remarkably simple mechanism, and operates on certain basic principles of refrigeration — much as a household refrigerator does.

IN WARM WEATHER, the unit works like other air conditioners, using electric refrigeration to cool and dehumidify. When heating is needed, the machine automatically reverses itself, and actually heats the entire home by taking heat from the outdoor air (even if it's below freezing); concentrating it; and then circulating it as warmed air throughout the house.

Sun Gold Hills Offering Some Homes on Vet Terms

FOOTHILL HOMES

Pictured are a few of the many distinctive new homes at Sun Gold Hills, new community nearing completion in the east Whittier area, north of Whittier Blvd. at Santa Gertrudes and Janine Aves. Terms are offered both vets and non-vets.

Increased crowds of home-seekers are expected at Sun Gold Hills following an announcement that seven choice residences may be purchased on VA terms by qualified vets.

According to Robert H. Walter, president, Sun Gold, Inc., builders of the deluxe homes in the foothills north of Whittier Blvd., in the east Whittier area, these will be the last homes offered on such terms in the fifth and final unit.

Robert H. Smith, Sun Gold Hills sales manager, said that qualified vets will be able to buy on terms of approximately 10 per cent down. The balance of the new residences will be sold to non-vets on terms of approximately 25 per cent down. They are priced from $19,500 with low FHA monthly payments available.

• • • •

SMITH ALSO REPORTED widespread interest in the offer of a limited number of home-sites in Sun Gold Hills at prices ranging from $7,500 to $10,000. The lots, he pointed out, vary widely in both location and size, running from 90 feet by 120 feet up to full acres. The acres, he noted, sell for as little as $8,900 and may be bought on terms with 25 per cent down.

Stimulating interest in the new homes a Sun Gold Hills, the sales manager said, is the many attractive exterior designs and interesting floor plans offered. Buyers can choose from among 56 different stylings.

Two Large Murals for Home Savings

Two spectacular murals will be installed in Home Savings and Loan Association's Long Beach branch at 201 E. First St. as part of a $100,000 remodeling program, it was announced by Kenneth D. Childs, president.

The murals, now being painted by Millard Sheets, nationally known artist and designer, will depict the history and industry of Long Beach.

One mural, to cover a wall area 17 feet by 50 feet, will show the early Spanish clipper ships which touched at the port of Long Beach in the 18th and 19th centuries. The other, 10 feet by 22 feet, will unfold the industry, commerce and communications of the city.

• • • •

REMODELING of the interior will begin on Feb. 18, Childs said. It will consist of the installation of a luminous ceiling, 1,400 square feet in area, said to be the largest ceiling of such type in Long Beach; use of oriental Koa wood from the South Sea Islands for the counters and panels; terrazzo floors and modernistic doors.

While alterations are under way, Home Savings will move its office temporarily to 237 E. First St., one-half block east of the present location, where customers will be served as usual, according to Dwight E. Jenkins, vice president and manager of the Long Beach branch.

Childs said the job, under the direction of Arlin H. Eddington, building superintendent, is expected to be completed by June 1.

A FAIRVIEW RANCHO

Here is one of the new Fairview Ranchos "Prince Charming" series of homes featuring the all-automatic built-in gas kitchen, located at Bristol and Fairview, in Santa Ana. Model shown has two baths and two bedrooms with den.

Fairview Ranchos Final Unit Is Attracting Many

A new residential community that is as attractive as it is conveniently located, according to Frank Chandler of Key Land Co., is to be found in the Prince Charming series of Fairview Ranchos, Bristol St. and Fairview Ave. in Santa Ana, where the fourth and final unit is attracting large crowds.

"These homes, built by the D and E Corp.," Chandler points out, "offer a combination of charm, convenience and built-in luxury which value-wise homeseekers are quick to recognize."

The kitchens of the Prince Charming series at Fairview Ranchos offer the new built-in gas appliances designed by Waste King and offered all-in-one-package.

• • • •

THESE INCLUDE a newly engineered gas range, an extra-large wall oven, waist-high broiler, all in matching colors.

A further convenience in each kitchen is the built-in dining nook, desk, breakfast bar and serving unit all-in-one, designed to accommodate six persons easily.

Quality of construction of these homes with 3 bedrooms, and 2 bedrooms and den, 2 baths and oversized 2-car garage, is evidenced by the lath and plaster walls and hardwood floors.

Wide brick fireplaces of floor-to-ceiling height, spacious living and dining rooms with custom lighting fixtures, scenic wallpaper, separate service porches and broad terraces add to the pride of ownership.

Fully priced at a modest $13,750, Chandler reports that veterans may still buy with no down payment except usual closing costs and impounds on monthly terms of only $69.67, which include principal and interest.

From Long Beach, take 7th St. to Bristol, turn south to the models.

Value Is Sol-Vista Sales Key

"Orange County's biggest measure of value" is the description of Sol-Vista homes given by builders, Alco Construction Co.

Built to give a lifetime of comfortable living and a minimum of maintenance, Sol-Vista homes feature 2 and 3 bedrooms, attached garages with an inside entrance to the home, laundry area, oak hardwood floors, natural finish ash kitchen cabinets and formica counter tops.

Sales agent, Morrie Crawley, states other quality features include all copper piping and lifetime guaranteed Weiser hardware. Homes are professionally color-styled throughout.

• • • •

PICTURESQUE diamond-paned windows and sliding-glass doors leading to patio areas add to attractive appearance of exteriors.

Homes are in an excellent location completely accessible to Long Beach, Santa Ana, and the finest beach resorts in Southern California.

Prices range from $11,150 to $13,200. Model homes may be seen on Trask Ave. in Westminster, just ½ mile west of Hwy. 39 Outdoor Theater from 11 a.m. to 8:30 p.m.

New Harbor Park Terms Boost Sales

Response was heavy to the announcement that veterans who purchase their new homes in Harbor Park Estates may take immediate possession with no down payment other than costs and impounds.

A spokesman for the development of 3 and 4-bedroom, 2-bath homes said veterans are given a guarantee by the developers who offer to take over the loan and pay the buyer an additional $500 after six months from the recording date if for any reason the new veteran homebuyer is not completely satisfied with his purchase.

Located ideally, with new schools and shopping centers nearby, Harbor Park Estates homes are only 15 minutes from El Toro, with El Toro-based officers and enlisted men finding the dwellings a spacious answer to their home seeking problems.

Industrial areas of Santa Ana, Long Beach and Los Angeles are all within easy commuting distance of the subdivision, with community activities and recreational areas all nearby.

• • • •

THE HOMES have such expensive features as Roper built-in range and oven, genuine lath and plaster construction, select hardwood flooring, disposal units and 2-car garages. The distinctive architectural stylings give variety to the development and place the homes in the much favored class with prospective buyers.

Non-veterans who wish to buy in Harbor Park Estates pay only $295 plus costs and impounds, it was noted. From Long Beach, visitors drive out 7th St. to Harbor Blvd., north on Harbor to Chapman and right to the models. From Santa Ana, drive out Santa Ana Freeway to Chapman and turn left to the models. Harbor Park Estates are priced from $13,850.

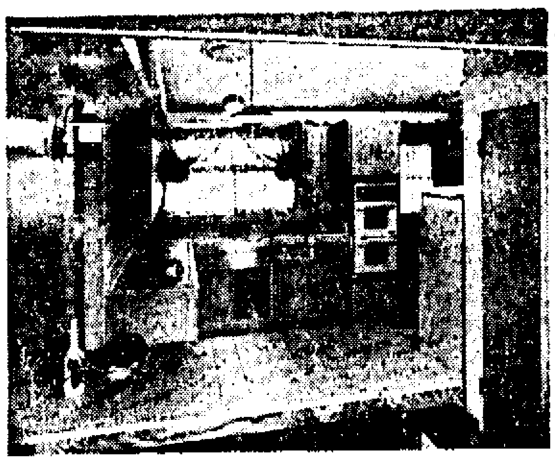
Garden Grove Signature Homes Report Good Sales

Heavy sales at Signature Homes' twin communities in Garden Grove can be attributed to growing public demand for homes that are classic in concept and traditional in feeling.



CONVENIENT KITCHEN

Modern, convenient kitchens with built-in features are an important part of Signature Homes' new series of "First Edition" homes, traditionally styled residences displayed at Magnolia and Cerritos Aves., Garden Grove.

So reported Jerry Snyder and Max Levine, who head the homebuilding firm which is now ranked 12th in the nation.

"Today's home buyer is looking for a home with traditional architecture, a modern floor plan and conventional construction, which includes raised foundations, hardwood floors and 2-inch sub-flooring," it was stated by James H. Waters, sales manager for the twin communities.

• • • •

BOTH SERIES of residences in the twin communities, "First Edition" homes priced from $15,000 and "Special Edition" homes priced from $11,700, offer these advantages plus high quality materials and skilled workmanship, Waters pointed out.

The "First Edition" residences, larger homes with 3 bedrooms and family room or 4 bedrooms, all with 2 baths, are located at Magnolia and Cerritos Aves.

The smaller "Special Edition" 3-bedroom, 2-bath dwellings are displayed on Dale St., between Ball Rd. and Cerritos Ave.

Boosting sales at both Garden Grove locations, according to Waters, are favorable VA and FHA terms. The larger "First Edition" homes have monthly payments from $70.35, principal and interest, while the "Special Edition" residences may be bought on monthly terms from $55.85, principal and interest.

Americans Owe Record Debts

WASHINGTON (AP)—Americans owed a record $31,552,000,000 in easy payment debts at the end of last year. But the figure was climbing at a slower rate.

The Federal Reserve Board reported that the new installment was about $2½ billion higher than at the end of 1955. It said the December 1956 gain was $528 million, compared to a hike of $751 millions in December 1955.

Total consumer credit, including single-payment charge accounts and loans, reached $41,863,000,000 at the end of 1956. This was $3,215,000,000 more than a year earlier.

WORLD OF WHEELS

Special Test Shows Salesman's Ability

By ART STEPHAN
Independent, Press-Telegram Auto Editor

Party-goers and ex-athletes do not necessarily make top flight salesmen, according to the chief sales executive of the nation's third largest automobile company.

"They may have other attributes which outweigh those personal characteristics," says Albert H. Belfie, general sales manager of Buick, "but results of a two-year study of what makes a good car salesman show such factors have no direct bearing as a general rule."

Buick has developed a sales questionnaire in cooperation with General Motors Institute. It is offering the questionnaire as a specific aid for dealers in identifying applicants with high potential for success at selling cars.

Two industial psychologists at GMI, Drs. William B. Chew and Orlo L. Crissey, spent two years of research on the project. They had the active cooperation of over 1,200 Buick dealers and more than 2,000 of their new car salesmen. In the process they boiled down an original 300 multiple choice questions to 40 which are included in the Buick sales questionnaire.

• • • •

"THE CHIEF TROUBLE in previous salesmen's tests was that there was no real consistency between success in the tests and success on the job," said Belfie. "So we started out by determining scientifically what was the best yardstick for measuring a salesman's success and came up with the simple and obvious fact that the most accurate measure was total units sold."

Drs. Chew and Crissey chose a tough four-month period in the auto industry — January through April, 1956—for study. They analyzed the sales records of thousands of salesmen and divided them into two groups—those who consistently sold more units than the average and those who consistently sold fewer.

The first test developed was a nightmare. It contained 300 questions and was taken by 523 salesmen. Out of those questions there were 125 that seemed to differentiate between highly successful and less successful salesmen. So the two psychologists took those items and gave a new test to nearly 1,000 more salesmen. From those results they found 40 items that really paid off.

• • • •

"THE RESULTS of the test corresponded to the salesmen's actual sales record," said Belfie. "The proof is that salesmen who had high scores averaged 1½ extra sales per month right through the four months studied, those with low scores sold one car less per month than the average.

"We don't say this test is infallible. It's possible for a man to score high and still not be a top salesman and vice versa. But statistics on a total sampling of over 2,000 salesmen show that more than 75 per cent of the men who make high scores will be top salesmen and that only about 35 per cent who score low will be top salesmen."

And what about sports and parties? "Well above average" athletic ability gets the least points of the five possible answers, "average ability" the most. And a negative answer to the question "do you usually enjoy going to large parties or picnic?" earns the most points there, a "yes" the least.

LINCOLN CONVERTIBLES HOT—Current retail deliveries of Lincoln convertibles in the Los Angeles district are running five times greater than they were a year ago, according to Frank J. Mullen, Lincoln Division's Los Angeles district sales manager.

Since October, when the 1957 Lincoln was introduced, Los Angeles-Long Beach area dealers have delivered about half as many convertibles as they delivered during the entire calendar year of 1956.

Mullen's statement on convertible sales followed an announcement by Ben D. Mills, Ford Motor Co. vice president and general manager of Lincoln Division, who stated that since model introduction Lincoln convertible production has nearly equaled last year's total of 2,447 units. Comparative introductory sales figures show 1957 with 1,298 retail deliveries versus 273 units for the same period in 1956.

Total January 1st-20th retail deliveries nationally were 300 units above sales for the same period a year ago. Dealers sold 2,178 cars for the best January sales period since 1949, according to Mills.

STUDEBAKER STYLING FEATURE

The grille has become part of the hood on the Studebaker Golden Hawk sports-type car, a combination that is unique among 1957 American automobiles. A styling feature developed from European ideas, it also has a safety function. The added weight of the stainless steel grille insures that the hood will stay in place at high speeds or in heavy winds.

Dogs Better Stay Away From Schools

SILVER SPRINGS, Md. (AP)—Dogs are banned from loitering on school grounds in Montgomery County, Md., from one hour before school opens to one hour after it closes each day.

Since the law became effective last October, 103 dogs have been seized. Eighty-three were claimed by their owners, five were adopted by other dog lovers and 15 were destroyed. To redeem their errant animals owners must pay $5 a day for each day the dog is held.

Flying Gadget Relays Secrets of Weather

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—A scientific sixth sense is working for you in the air high above the earth.

It senses and transmits secrets about the weather. What it learns helps to predict your weather two to three days hence, to guide rocket missiles, track hurricanes, and control H-bomb fall-out.

And tomorrow the same principle will help tell you what space is like 300 to 1,500 miles out into nothingness—what we can expect and what problems scientists must solve to make space travel safe and possible.

This sixth sense is the radiosonde, or radio sounder.

It's an electronic sense. Packed within one instrument carrier are devices to record temperature, humidity, air pressure, and a miniature radio transmitter and battery to flash back its findings from high above earth.

RADIOSONDES ARE at work over the world, rising up in balloons and blimps, dropping by parachute, even riding in the noses of rockets.

Radiosondes are already a key element in weather and military science—over the North Pole, over the oceans, over the interior of America.

"In the last 10 years, these electronic weather robots have opened up secrets of the weather on and above the earth's entire surface," says Martin H. Benedek, chairman of the board of General Instrument Corp., a leading firm in developing and producing radiosondes.

A main function of radiosondes is in military service, with thousands of them sent exploring each year by the Signal Corps and other branches.

Their weather reports can be sent back swiftly to central weather stations, permitting a comprehensive day-by-day or even hour-by-hour picture of weather over the world.

Accurate weather predictions are vital in H-bomb tests, to minimize spread of dangerous fall-out. The radiosondes help predict the course of hurricanes, giving weather men and admirals information for routing naval forces to safer waters.

Humidity affects radar controls on guided missiles, and humidity measurements can be made beforehand over the projected line of flight to assure accurate control.

ONE OF THE newest radiosondes is an electronic weather paratrooper which can be dropped from a high-flying plane even far behind an enemy's lines.

This dropsonde (the AMT-6) carries precision electronic devices that can take readings up to 60,000 feet, with 95 per cent accuracy.

It's all contained in a 10-pound tube-shaped case, 22 inches long, five inches around. It's shot out of the belly of a reconnaissance plane and a tug string fires an explosive charge blowing off the lid and releasing a parachute.

A foot-long radio antenna and an "arm" containing instruments branch out. The radio transmitter can broadcast 250 miles. Dropped from 60,000-foot altitude, the dropsonde would take nearly half an hour floating to earth, broadcasting temperature, humidity and air pressure readings continuously at various altitudes.

Rare Type 57 Bugatti Received by Long Beach Car Enthusiast

By PAUL WALLACE

Dr. Milton Roth, local classic car enthusiast and Bugatti afficianado, cleared his latest and probably most exotic "Bug" through customs last week. It had arrived earlier on a ship from Europe.

We made the waterfront trip with the local dentist. The Type 57-S is a rare and beautiful car—a distinctive example of the late French custom auto maker's work and one of the last Bugattis ever produced (about 1939).

Powered by a double-overhead-cam supercharged 3½ litre engine, the 57-S is fitted with a two-passenger coupe body with a roll-back sunroof.

The car has not been restored but appears in good condition. Its speed and excellent handling should be in keeping with its sleek looks.

• • • •

DR. ROTH plans to drive the machine, not tear it apart and rebuild it as a concours car like his flawless Type-37.

The Type 57-S arrived here on the same ship with a huge and handsome old Mercedes-Benz SS-540K two-seated convertible, a Type-37 Bugatti in very good condition and a spectacular-bodied French DeLage.

All the classics were picked up by Los Angeles Volkswagon dealer Otto Zipper during a recent European junket.

KEN MILES, controversial Englishman and one of the nation's leading sports car racing drivers, has been elected president of the California Sports Car Club for the third time.

He replaces 1956 president Joe Weissman. Miles headed the club in 1954 and 1955. Other new officers are Cy Yedor, vice president; Dick Hayward, secretary; and Ray Frug, treasurer.

The club's next event will be a two-day race meet at Paramount Ranch March 9-10.

• • • •

NEXT WEEKEND, the multiple clocking acceleration tests, announced earlier, will be held at the Lions Associated Drag Strip at 223rd and Alameda Sts.

A series of 14 adjacent timing traps will be set up along the quarter-mile course. Acceleration will be recorded by stages through the full distance.

The affair is expected to produce valuable tuning and other technical data. The tests will be run from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. Saturday and 9 a. m. to 1 p. m. Sunday. Regular class some time. competitive racing will complete the Sunday afternoon program.

• • • •

AMONG EVENTS coming up in the next week will be the Long Beach Pacers Car Club annual installation dinner-dance in the Lafayette Hotel Saturday evening.

Parents of club members will be included among guests of honor.

The monthly rally of the Long Beach MG Club, called Valentine Hangover, will leave Bellflower Blvd. and Spring St. at 9:30 next Sunday morning.

It is a gimic-type rally with gymkhana events in place of the usual check points and a Le Mans (foot-race) start. As usual, it is open to all. Bring a picnic lunch.

• • • •

ALSO NEXT WEEKEND, the Orange County Sports Car Club will run its annual Rally de Dos Dias to Ensnada, Mexico. Cars will leave Saturday and return Sunday after an overnight stop in the seaside resort.

Today, the big AMA National Championship Scrambles is being staged by the Long Beach Hilltoppers Motorcycle Club at the Crater Bowl area.

Lime marks on the road from Pacific Coast Highway and Malibu Canyon Rd. will lead to the course.

And on the bench racing front, Harry Givens and Bob Drake Thursday opened a new bar called the Grand Prix at 8204 Beverly Blvd. in Hollywood. It will cater to the sports car set.

Tourists in Europe Given Motoring Aid

To many Americans tourists doing their own driving in Europe, there are two organizations which, for all practical purposes, are financial adviser, hotel and trip consultant, interpreter and — in case they have any run-ins with the gendarmes — traffic counsel, too, reports the Foreign Travel Dept. of the Automobile Club of Southern California.

These "overseas friends" are the Alliance Internationale de Tourisme and the Federation Internationale de l'Automobile, which have more than 75 affiliated clubs in Europe and the Near East. American members include the Automobile Club of Southern California and other affiliated AAA clubs.

The two international motoring groups, in addition to aiding the visitor stay on the right road to a carefree vacation, are also, in effect, a combination valet, cook and handyman, said Don S. Doig, the Club's director of travel services.

"Besides providing emergency road service, the AIT and the FIA are also a source of valuable tips on everything from where to get a rush 'press job' to what the best year of wine is in the locale you happen to be visiting," Doig said.

"And, should the visitor want to buy a foreign automobile, both of these clubs will prove extremely helpful in making purchasing and shipping arrangements."

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP)—British colonial police have set up three outposts to halt naked warriors of the savage Karamojong tribe who carry razor-sharp spears on raiding parties against their Iteso tribe neighbors. Police also are trying to prevent tribal war between the Karamojongs and the Lango tribe. Feeling has been running high since a Lango chief was speared by a Karamojong.

Foreign Car Makers Eye Big U. S. Sales

By DAVID J. WILKIE,

DETROIT (AP) — The American market for small, low priced automobiles appears to be broadening substantially, but the major beneficiaries presently are foreign car makers.

No American volume car builder produces a small car in his own factories for the lower price market. Nearest approach to that classification is American Motors' Rambler line. But the Rambler is on a 108-inch wheelbase and its over-all design gives it conventional size appearance.

Ford and Chevrolet have small wheelbase cars in their Thunderbird and Corvette models, but they measure 102 inches from front to rear axle; they are limited production models and they cost considerably more than the usual low price cars.

American Motors also has a small, low-priced car in its Metropolitan model, but, like all other units competing in that style and price field, it is built in foreign factories.

• • • •

TOPPING ALL foreign built cars in the American retail market is the German-designed Volkswagen. Final sales figures for 1956 have not yet been compiled, but indications are around 55,000 Volkswagens were delivered in the United States last year. All other foreign makes combined probably will not exceed 32,000.

The figures give an idea of the demand that has developed in the American market for the beetle-shaped German-built car. Its price tag—around $1,600 in the midwest—and its fuel economy undoubtedly contribute to the fact retail orders exceed factory shipments to this country.

The top-selling foreign-built car has a 36-horsepower engine installed in the rear. It weighs 1,600 pounds. It is not a luxury-type car, but its average mileage is in the 32-35 miles per gallon area. One of its most recent styling options is a custom body built in the Ghia factories in Turin, Italy.

The Ghia body gives the Volkswagen added eye-appeal. It makes the delivered price in the midwest approximately $2,400.

• • • •

VOLKSWAGEN expects greatly to increase its retail deliveries in the U. S. market this year. It has been something of a tradition to scoff at the sales volume of foreign-built cars in the American market as representing a small percentage of the over-all volume in that market.

But the foreign car makers are raising their American market targets for 1957. Volkswagen, which saw its sales volume in that market last year soar from a 1955 total of 28,907 units, is said to be aiming at the shipment of 100,000 units into the United States this year.

The American market for the larger foreign built cars does not give General Motors, Ford and Chrysler any concern. But it is no secret they have concerned themselves about the sales volume of the Volkswagen.

THERE HAS BEEN considerable speculation in trade quarters about how the nation's "Big Three" auto makers might go about competing with the Volkswagen in its market. Production costs—on all counts, including labor and materials—are far greater in American factories than they are abroad.

American auto makers with foreign affiliates or subsidiaries might consider development of models in these foreign plants comparable to the Volkswagen for shipment into the U. S. market.

Right now nobody qualified to express the views of General Motors, Ford or Chrysler will talk about any plans those companies may have for the production of a car in the Volkswagen style or price class.

European Trailer Travel Is Good

MILWAUKEE (UP)—A couple who traveled 15,000 miles by house trailer in Europe said roads there are "generally good and not clogged with traffic as are most highways in the United States."

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Schuster visited 17 countries as part of a trailer caravan.

"It's the only way to travel," said Schuster.

"When you travel in groups like that you get official recognition wherever you go," he said. "And you don't have to put up with hotel rooms."

The caravan traveled at a leisurely pace, usually from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Most families cooked their breakfasts and lunches and had their dinners in restaurants.

The whole trip cost them $8,000, including purchase of a small Australian motorcycle, three cameras and some European clothing.

LOOKING FOR ACTION?

Here she is, Hollywood-lovely Greta Thyssen, starring in forthcoming King Bros. picture, is named "Miss Action Month" by the Southern California Chevrolet Dealers' Association. "Action Month" is the name of the giant February sales campaign now going on at all local Chevrolet dealers in Southern California. The theme of this campaign is "ask your authorized Chevrolet dealer about his Action Month special."

Several Changes in New Packard Model

By JIM KLOCKENKEMPER

DETROIT (UP) — The 1957 Packards arrived on showroom floors and fitted nicely into Studebaker-Packard selling plans. But between the 1956 Detroit built model and the 1957 South Bend model, Packard lost a couple of its most distinctive features.

Studebaker-Packard Corp., consolidating its auto-making operations at the South Bend Studebaker plant, has used the two 1957 Packard models—a four-door sedan and four-door station wagon—to supplement the six Studebaker models.

Studebaker-Packard calls the eight models their "balanced volume franchise," giving their dealers a wide range of body styles but promising them they will get only the cars they order—no cars will be pushed on them by a demanding factory.

The 1956 Packard was noted for its torsion-bar suspension and its electronic push-button transmission.

• • • •

BOTH THESE features are gone in the 1957 Packard. Instead, the two medium-priced Packard models have the Studebaker coil and leaf spring suspension and a lever-controlled "Flightomatic" transmission. The automatic transmission is standard equipment.

But perhaps to compensate for the loss of these two interest-drawing features, the new Packards have picked up several of Studebaker's features which add to performance.

One of these is the company's supercharger, which shoots fuel and added pressure into the 275-horsepower engine while the engine is accelerating, giving the car impressive pickup on getaway and passing. A kickdown gear is also provided for passing and the engine-drive train is designed throughout for rapid acceleration at medium speeds.

Another added feature is the "twin-traction" rear axle differential. This is also offered by other car-makers but Studebaker had previously promoted it more than any. This differential eliminates much slippage of one rear wheel in snow and mud by transferring the power to the wheel with traction.

• • • •

FINNED BRAKE drums, increasing cooling area by 100 per cent, also came over to Packard in 1957.

Packard was once a proud leader of the high-priced cars. Its two models for 1957 are in the medium priced field, where it had been selling some 80 per cent of its cars in recent years.

Studebaker-Packard is in a position of giving its dealers enough models to meet most customer demands, while filling a void—left by the bigger automaker—with its low-slung, powerful semi-sporty car "Silver" and "Golden Hawks." This has been the selling plan of the smaller volume carbuilders in recent years—conventional models plus lines which may meet buyer trends not yet satisfied by the "Big Three."

On the Road to Success

Little Merchant Training

Experience is a valuable possession. And the experience an Independent, Press-Telegram newspaperboy gains while carrying a route is truly invaluable. Not only does he learn to be consistent in a given job, but also he gets real insight into the business world and its operations.

Warren Harper, Independent carrier, who resides with his parents at 5852 Deborah has learned to take advantage of this experience and is providing his customers in the Los Altos area with outstanding route delivery. As a 13-year-old 8th grade student at Stanford Jr. High, he finds History to be his favorite subject. He enjoys football and his leisure time is spent swimming and collecting stamps.

He and his fellow Independent, Press-Telegram newspaperboys are truly "ON THE ROAD TO SUCCESS."

Cadillac

International Synonym for "Achievement"!

Mention the name "Cadillac" wherever you will—in any part of the civilized world—and you will find a common meeting-ground of understanding.

For "Cadillac" is part of the international language—and its meaning is known and understood wherever highways lead.

It is, in brief, a world-wide synonym for personal achievement!

And this is, we think, entirely logical. For over the years, the Cadillac car has played a vital role in the lives of so many of the leading citizens of every community where motor cars are seen.

Cadillac is, in fact, the predictable choice of those whose choice is unrestricted.

This, of course, is not to say that a motorist need necessarily possess an abundance of this world's goods in order to enjoy the great satisfaction of Cadillac ownership.

On the contrary, today's Cadillac car represents one of the soundest of all automotive investments.

Consider, for instance, the economy of buying a Cadillac. Several models are actually priced competitively with much smaller, lighter cars.

Consider the practical aspects of driving a Cadillac. The car is remarkably economical from a standpoint of both maintenance and operation.

And lastly, think of the wisdom of owning a Cadillac. Year after year, Cadillac returns a greater share of its owner's original investment than any other motor car in the land.

In other words, wisdom and practicality can lead you to the "car of cars" just as surely as prominence and prosperity.

We suggest that you come in soon—that you spend an hour at the wheel—and that you delay no longer in making the magic move to Cadillac.

We'll be looking for you—soon.

HOW and WHERE TO BUY A USED CAR

With Safety & Satisfaction

1. Buy from a dealer with a reputation over the years for fair dealing.
2. Check the car's history — See its maintenance record.
3. Check the car inside, outside and under for marks of flood, wreck or abuse.
4. Consider condition and extra equipment along with price and compare with others of same make and year.
5. Find out how much for your car but consider the difference rather than the allowance alone.
6. Read the guarantee and see your dealer's service facilities.
7. Figure the interest on any unpaid balance.

Alpha Phis to Hostess First Table Topic Tea

ALPHA PHI ALUMNAE gather around a huge shiny heart imprinted with the sorority's Greek letters to discuss plans for the Long Beach alumnae unit's first annual Table Topic Tea, proceeds from which are earmarked for Alpha Phi's philanthropy, Cardiac Aid, and collegiate assistance. Mrs. Jack V. Evans, of Santa Ana, drops her admission ticket into the heart while Mrs. Louis V. Visscher, left, waits her turn. A smiling reception is given by Mrs. Vito Romans, center; Mrs. Lee C. Hauge, tickets, and Mrs. Earl J. Marks Jr., publicity and program. Mrs. Marks holds placards showing names of the many local women's clubs to participate.

Country Club Site Chosen for Benefit

Long Beach Alumnae of Alpha Phi International Sorority have encircled Feb. 28 on their calendars with a large, red heart, for it is on that day that members will hostess their first annual Table Topic Tea from 1 to 5 p. m. at Virginia Country Club.

Proceeds from the afternoon event will benefit the sorority's national philanthropic project, Cardiac Aid, to which more than one million dollars has been donated during the past 10 years. Part of the proceeds are also earmarked for the proposed Alpha Phi collegiate chapter house at Long Beach State College.

Alpha Phis say that they have never had as much fun working on a benefit since through this one they are becoming acquainted with members of about 20 other local women's clubs to exchange ideas on philanthropic programs and further inter-club public relations.

Participating groups will prepare tables on chosen themes (no two tables will have the same subject) and will compete for awards determined by popular vote. Anne G. Phillips of AID, Claire Conway of Belmont Shore Florists and Jerome A. Donson, Art Center director, will view tables and award ribbons in three categories: Silver Award, most beautiful; Bordeaux Award, most original and adhering closest to chosen theme, and Lily-of-the-Valley Award, most functional (most easily adaptable in a private home using materials at hand).

Miss Karen Olson, Alpha Phi collegiate from Long Beach State College, will provide background of incidental piano music during the afternoon.

Among participating clubs are North Long Beach Junior Women's Club, Osteopathic Society, Realtors' Wives, Stephens Alumnae, North Long Beach Senior Women's Club, Dames, Sandlarks, Holy Family Adoption Service, Nightingales, Rick Rackers, Los Altos Garden Club, Pilot Club, Assistance League, Ebell, Lawyers' Wives, Dental Auxiliary, Medical Auxiliary and Druggists' Wives.

Assisting local Alpha Phis at the tea table and with other hostessing duties will be Mrs. Cloyd Marshall, international vice president, Balboa; Mrs. McDonald Scott, state chairman, Hollywood; Mrs. Barry Hillard, housing chairman, Pasadena, and Mrs. Max Hebgen, Los Angeles. Mrs. Bert Masters, president of the Long Beach alumnae group, will greet local and out-of-town guests.

Tickets may be purchased from committee members, Mrs. Gordon Hayter, chairman, and Mmes. Lee Hauge, Calvert Strong and Earl Marks Jr.

Mrs. Executive Harkens to These $$$-Wise Words

By MARTHA COLE

WASHINGTON (AP)—This business of a wife staying home and cooking, taking care of the kids and keeping things generally on an even keel is all right. But if she really knows her job she can increase her husband's total earnings by as much as a quarter of a million dollars, to list one example.

This is the contention of a top management consulting firm that says there are plenty of examples to prove it.

"Take an engineer earning $10,000-$15,000 a year," said William J. Biehl, president of George Fry & Associates of New York, Chicago and Los Angeles. "He has a wife who meets him at the door with her problems, her troubles, her desires to be entertained. He is ridden with problems. He doesn't get that next step up at the company.

"But say he has a wife who knows her husband well enough to know what he needs, who acts as a sounding board for him, who makes family and business 'compatible.' He gets that promotion and soon is making $25,000 a year—a difference of $10,000. In 25 years $10,000 a year adds up to a quarter of a million.

"More and more companies today are taking a good look at a man's wife when executive jobs come up," Biehl added.

And that brings up the question of what Mrs. Executive should be.

Both she and her husband have said: "Fundamentally, the most successful business wife appreciates and maintains a home and family in

'What's in a Name?' She Asks

By ILKA CHASE

Caroline Louise Marguerite. It does seem as though with three shots Grace and Rainier might have done better than that by the little Princess of Monaco. Louise and Marguerite I guess aren't too bad, but Caroline! Carrie for short. That's a mean thing to do to a child.

All this is purely a matter of personal taste and Lord knows I mean no offense so please no one write in and say how dare you excoriate Ermitrude, it was the name of my sainted mother. The name of my sainted mother is Edna and it's a toss up as to which of us dislikes it more.

Not as bad as Maude though. Maude's the end. No, come to think of it, there's one beyond that: Agatha. There's a tag to hang on a defenseless baby! How is a girl going to grow up into a cuddle bug or a melting magnolia whom chaps will yearn to protect with that name? She'd have to fight hard not to become a stern-visaged matron of a woman's prison or else Aggie, the heroine's friend who listens to all the confidences of a love affair, but has none of her own.

Not Gertrude

Gertrude strikes me as infelicitous, too, although one of the gayest and most endearing women I know is named Gertrude. Barbara I think is pretty. That simplest of all lines in Shakespeare has always seemed to me not only graceful, but nostalgic, too. It is when Desdemona says in the last act of Othello, "My mother has a maid called Barbara." Rosalind is charming although I care less for Roz and the standard girls' names, Marjorie, Dorothy, Mary are just that: Standard. Without personality since they are so diffuse.

There is a corruption currently in vogue that is painful and that is Jo Anne for Joan. For me, this ranks right along with the wrong use of "like." It looks like he wouldn't come. It looks like we're out of butter.

(My friend Ogden Nash uttered an eloquent cry of anguish in the New Yorker magazine a while back when he wrote a poem saying among other things that with like's current usage he fully expects to see advertised any day now a production of Shakespeare's "Like You Like It."

Victoria seems to me more queenly than Elizabeth although I will settle for English Ann, preferably without the "e". Sybil and Daphne are excessively British, but Nancy is a songsy name and sweet.

Christina, Yes!

Christina, yes; Jane, yes; Helen, no, and I don't care if she did come from Troy. I prefer my own version of that name for that is what Ilka means. Ilona, Ilonka and Ilka . . . they are all versions of the same, Ilka being the diminutive just as Betty or Betsy is the diminutive of Elizabeth.

Ilka is, I believe, quite commonplace in Hungary, the country of its origin just as Helen is here but, as it is unusual to us, people often ask how I got it.

I got it because at the time of my birth my mother had a young woman friend whom she was very fond of. The friend was half Polish and half German, but her name was Hungarian. Mother thought it unusual and pretty so she named me after Ilka Seager, who was also my godmother.

Mother had first considered Meribah, a name that had been used by her Quaker forbearers, but it had to go with Chase and the thought of Merry Chase as I grew older deterred her and I have always been grateful.

When it comes to the lads, I like them simple. Tim and John and Adam. Eve, too. I forgot about her, and I should be charmed to meet up with Lilith, that girl who came before Eve, but she seems to

"WHERE, OH WHERE shall this table go?" ask Alpha Phi alumnae planning their gala Table Topic Tea set for Feb. 28 in Virginia Country Club. Placing miniature models of tables to be decorated by nearly 20 Long Beach women's clubs are, from left, Mrs. Bert Masters, president of the local alumnae group; Mrs. Gordon Hayter, chairman, and Mmes. Harvey Upham, John Klein and Margaret Royer. Tables will compete for a popular vote award and three special ribbons to be presented by local judges.

World Tour for Writer

About to embark on a second world tour is Mrs. Maymie R. Krythe, Southland writer, and clubwoman. The Long Beach resident leaves Monday for New Orleans where she will board the S.S. Del Sud for a cruise down the east coast of South America.

In late March she will embark from Buenos Aires on the S.S. Tegelberg for a two-month trip to South Africa and the Orient. If plans materialize, she will pay a return visit to friends in Australia whom she met on her last tour several years ago.

In all, Mrs. Krythe expects to be gone six months. She is author of the book, "All About Christmas" and has written extensively for newspapers and magazines on California history.

Cupid Sets Sights, Aims at Valentine's Day Benefit Fashion Show

Osteopathic Guild Plans Gala Event

Valentine's Day means hearts and cupids to most people, but to women of the new Long Beach Osteopathic Hospital Guild that special day will bring to a climax many hours spent on their first annual Valentine's Day fashion luncheon.

More than 300 persons are expected to fill the Cavalier Room of Lafayette Hotel Thursday to view latest styles in shoes, hats, jewelry and furs modeled by guild members. All proceeds of the noon benefit will go to the osteopathic hospital.

Novel feature of the afternoon will be a judging of women guests' chapeaus by 10 men judges seated at a special table.

Mrs. George MacRae of Garden Grove is chairman of the luncheon show which will be set against a festive background of red Valentine hearts. Assisting with details are her co-chairman, Mrs. Lloyd Hallamore, and Mmes. Jack Dilday, James Burke, Charles Poitevin and Frederick Sturgis. Mrs. Elmer Clark will be commentator.

Braving the feminine throng to judge attendees' hats will be Drs. Rufus Davis, Ward DeWitt and Messrs. Phil Reames, Col. C. S. Smith, Lon Peek, John Mulholland, Robert Dilday, Gus Lucking, David Lawrence and Gene Cuthbertson.

LATEST STYLES in hats, furs, shoes and jewelry will be modeled by members to Long Beach Osteopathic Hospital at their Valentine's Day benefit luncheon Thursday in Lafayette Hotel. In picture above, left to right, Mrs. Lloyd Hallamore, co-chairman; Mrs. Robert G. Hill and Mrs. George A. MacRae, chairman, brush up on modeling techniques. "That's it!" exclaims Dr. Philip W. Reames, at left in the second picture, as he kiddingly approves the floral chapeau worn by Robert Dilday, right. Gus Lucking places the hat on his skeptical model. The three men will join forces with seven other male judges to "pass sentence" on hats worn by women luncheon guests. All proceeds from the festivities will to be given to the hospital. More than 300 guests are expected.

The Wild Waves Say

By IOLA MASTERSON

"AND A ONE, AND A two, and a three!" That man is coming to town! Lawrence Welk, no less! The Dutchman who sells "Dotche" cars with champagne music salesmanship will make one of his rare public appearances at a combination concert and dance at the Auditorium Tuesday, March 5.

A benefit event for the Auxiliary to the Carmelite Nuns, the showarrangements are being handled by Doris Laing, president of the auxiliary, Ronnie Hickox, Vesta Bauman and just about every other able bodied member.

Wheedled into working on the big affair, too, have been John Clarke, Oliver Speraw and Howard Jones.

DETECTIVES, THAT'S us. The words, "fabulous party" set us to sleuthing like Perry Mason following a scream in the dark. Our ears reached along the party line for first hand facts on Rod and Cal Strong's cocktail buffet of last week end—a party described with some of Mr. Webster's finest.

Rod, herself, looked wonderful in electric blue, we learned, almost vibrant enough to match her 1,000-watt personality. Doris Richards, glamorous in a striking black cocktail gown. Dorothy Combs, in an elegant beige chiffon and jersey creation.

Actually, every woman guest looked like some designer's favorite customer so we'll just recall a few at random. Frances Clock, touched with Oriental splendor in a jade green dress; Pat Van de Water, smart in winter beige; Sue Buell, appealing as frosted mint in a julep glass in a green print; Dottie Munholland, very Fifth Avenue-ish in black; Mickey McWhinney, a big red rose accented a striking navy blue ensemble.

Ruth Hubbell was a bright party complement in fresh chartreuse sheer wool and Jane Wells was magazine-cover perfect in a black sheath.

"FROM RUMMAGE to Riches"—or—"One Week in the Life of a Junior Leaguer." It's the week's most popular story co-authored by Lotta Energy and Verra Swish.

Last week end, you'll recall, the league gals and most of their husbands culminated their biggest annual benefit, a rummage sale of gargantuan proportions.

Then, last night, they had a preview of some future rummage sale merchandise. Now understand, this preview stuff consists of the smart young set's prettiest party gowns—this year!—which they donned for their ever swank Valentine Ball at Virginia Country Club.

Three merry no-host cocktail parties preceded the buffet supper dance. Barbara and Chet Moore's home was scene of one and assisting were Liz and Don Wallace, B. J. and Russ Green, Katie and Carter Boswell and Jackie and Paul Ash.

Joyce and Bert Paul also hosted and cocktail hour helpmates were Carolyn and Jack Wooding, Barbara and Bob Ivey, Donna and Bud Ridings and Rosemary and Howard Jackson. Third party spotlight shone on Doris and Edmund Richards home where Gertie and Noel Guertin, Barbara and Tom Rowan, Margaret and Bob Sully and Ida Frances and Francis Lowry assisted.

ALL THROUGH THE evening sudden storms of laughter gathered, drenching everyone close by with merriment. In almost every instance it was some zany memory of the rummage sale causing the uproar downpour. Like Betty Godwin and Pat Craig's reminiscenses of their "Hat Department" saleslady chores when a gang of irrepressible young sailors roamed in and modelled every chapeau on the bargain counter for their dates.

Like Mary Sprague modelling a size 60 suit to prove it was big enough for a family of three.

Like Dona Halbert, general-in-charge, five gold stars emblazoned across the back of her white shirt "uniform," maneuvering her sales "troops" through the bargain hunters no man's land with all the skill of a Patton who just sighted a Rommell.

Like the man who,—oh, shucks, there were a thousand of 'em!

WALKING "BEST Seller Lists" these days are Ginny Welch and Agnes Andrews since Las Madrinas officially opened it's bona fide lending library at Seaside for which they are "co-librarians" in charge. The Guild has had a library cart for several months but now they have a room of their own (the former gift shop space by the hospital elevators) and this is big time. President Earlene Bennett has been working with professional librarians to make wise reading selections for patients.

ALL WE have to do is look in our crystal ball to predict that when Bess and George Green celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary it's going to be anti-climatic. Look what has, and is, going on for their 37th.

First of all, daughter and son-in-law, Pat and Harlan Moore, entertained at a surprise party for them in their Downey home.

Not only had Pat and Harlan arranged to have several guests of that 1920 wedding on hand but some of "bride and bridegroom's" attendants, too, including Cmdr. Bill Nicol (USN, ret) and Mrs. N., and the Oscar Adys, who lived next door to Bess and George in their very first home.

In addition the Moores rounded up a gang of UCLA classmates of Bess' and Stanford and Pomona classmates of George's. What a celebration!

And that's not all. The Greens left last Sunday night on an anniversary trip. The train to New Orleans then a plane to Miami and on to and through the Caribbean and to South America. They'll tote their well travelled luggage back through 3910 Myrtle Ave. portals about March 10.

WANT TO see something silly? Park yourself near the Bank of Belmont Shore the evening of Feb. 23 and watch the parade of Sandlarks, their husbands and guests as they arrive! They'll be dressed to attend their second annual rummage sale supper party when each makes up a costume, the nuttier the better, of items to be donated to the Sandlark's subsequent sale in March. Lucille Craigo is chairman with the help of husband, Ed, and committee assistants Gloria and Paul Grandle, Peggy and Morrie Ruckle and Beth and Jack Hannaman.

LET THE DREAMERS GO on searching for the fountain of youth. Ev Sawyer said "Phooey" and did something singularly wise. He stays young by celebrating his birthday just once every five years. Last night was it and was noted with a family dinner party at the University Club with 18 local Sawyers and a few out of town kinfolks toasting our own Ponce de Leon.

Incidentally, Irene and Ev leave Wednesday on a delayed honeymoon trip, by air, to Hawaii, returning via San Francisco where Irene used to live. Be home about Feb. 25.

GEORGIA McCORD and daughter, Virginia May Helmuth, in town from home in Monrovia, staged a mother-daughter talkfest Monday night that stretched from when they started until it was time to get up, which allowed them extra talk time because they hadn't gone anywhere to get up from.

Georgia claimed she had two hours sleep. Husband Clare said, "Hah, none. Unless you want to count the next afternoon nap she took!" Actually, its Clare's fault. He had Virginia May and their other daughter, Jo Ann Westra at the Elk's Father-Daughter banquet which cut down on mama's heart-to-heart time.

Mrs. James Harold Steveson

Late Afternoon Rite Joins Popular Pair

Filtered winter sunshine glistened through the cloistered windows of All Saints Episcopal Church late in the afternoon last Sunday, adding an air of quiet serenity to the candlelight wedding ceremony which united lovely Diane Ogden Adams and James Harold Steveson. Rev. F. Augustus Martyr officiated.

The bride, daughter of Mrs. Frank Hackeny Person, 2 61st Pl., and Col. Frank Adams, of Ft. Lee, Va. was escorted to the flower banked altar by her stepfather. She was gowned in a striking white taffeta wedding dress fashioned along princess lines with lace and pearl appliques encrusting the front panels. Her illusion veil was caught to a crown of matching lace and for her flowers she carried a bouquet of butterfly orchids, Roman hyacinths and lilies of the valley. Her only jewelry was a string of pearls, gift of the bridegroom and, for the traditional "something old," she had with her a fragile lace handkerchief which her great-grandmother had carried at her wedding.

Jennifer Adams, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Barbara Copeland, Nancy Shapiro, Shirley Hedges, Darla Steveson,. the bridegroom's sister, and Mrs. Stephen Mulhollen. Gowned in emerald green satin with matching head bands, the maid of honor carried a cluster bouquet of white camellias while the bridesmaids held clusters of white ranunculus.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry O. Steveson, 6169 Bellflower Blvd., Lakewood, asked David Sanford Drum to stand with him as best man. Ushering guests were Dale Ziegler, John Bloomingdale, Frederick Tissue, Bryan Oliver and John Kennedy.

Miss Brooke Person, youngest sister of the bride, was flower girl. She wore crisp white organdy and carried a nosegay of white blossoms tied with emerald green ribbon streamers.

Following their nuptials the newlyweds were feted at a champagne reception at Virginia Country Club. The handsomely appointed bridal table was covered by a heavy dark green cloth and held a regal bouquet of white tulips. The wedding cake, in lieu of miniature bride and groom, was topped by matching fresh tulip blossoms. To signal the beginning of festivities, the newlyweds drank to each other from a golden wedding cup which the bride had received as an engagement gift.

The new Mrs. Steveson attended Scripps College before entering USC where she is now in her junior year. Her affiliation is Delta Gamma. Her husband, now a senior at SC, is a member of Delta Tau Delta. The young couple honeymooned in Palm Springs and will resume classes tomorrow with the beginning of the new term.

Ebell Reveals Monday Slate

With music and tributes, Ebell of Long Beach will honor members in the 80-90 age bracket Monday afternoon in the clubhouse. Mrs. Arthur F. Bonzer heads the committee honoring the women following luncheon in the dining room, while Mrs. James A. Worsham will present musical artists in the auditorium for the afternoon presentation.

Titled "Say It With Music," the program will feature Miss George-Ellen Ferguson, soprano, and Fred Farrell, baritone, in duets from grand and light opera. Raymond McFeeters, well known to Ebell audiences, will accompany the singers as well as present solo numbers. Wee Shari Lee will also participate on the program.

Group R, led by Mrs. L. F. Wackerle, will serve luncheon. The business sessions will be conducted by Mrs. L. E. Shanks, president.

She studied at the Chicago Art Institute, and then studied in Paris under Jacques Blanche. She moved to Laguna in 1923 and since then has painted here as well as in Mexico, New Mexico and New Orleans.

M.," "Dutch Still Life," "Pomegranates," "Yellow Roses," "Neighbors, Taos," "House by the Sea," "Reflections, Salt Creek," "Viking Studio (Studio of the late Frank Cuprien)," "Fruit and Weeds," "Corner in Taos," "Poppies," "Twins," "Three Sentinels," "San Miguel Street," "From My Studio Window," "Still Life," "Church in San Miguel, Mexico," "Old Christ Church, Alexandria, Va.," "Olvera St.," "Re-Potting," "Fountain, San Miguel," "Church in Indian Reservation," "Pansies and Old Bristol," "Desert Mountains," "Going to Mass, Taos," "New Orleans Court," "Fishermen's Pier, Cape Cod," and "Pirates Alley, New Orleans."

The exhibition closes at 5 p.m. next Sunday.

The last of the series of gallery tours and films shown in conjunction with the exhibit will be at 2 p.m. today, Wednesday, Saturday and Sunday. Subjects will be today, "Water Color Techniques as Seen in the Works of John Marin"; Wednesday, "Development of Cubism"; Saturday, "Cubism" and film presentation; Sunday, "Influence of Braque" and film. Talks will be given by staff members Florence O. Russell and J. Patrick MacLean.

Pictures by Edna Padrick hang this month in the Bellflower Public Library, 9943 Flower Ave., Bellflower. A resident of Bellflower, Mrs. Padrick has painted for eight years. Her pictures have been shown in many Southland exhibitions. This show includes some of her award winners and new pictures. Exhibited are "Home," "Papyrus," "Resurgence," "Pulling the Nets," "Gov. Pio Pico's Mansion," "Rivera Church," "Hallelujah," "Country Road," "Boat." Library hours are 1 to 9 p.m. every day but Sunday.

Paul Lauritz will demonstrate oil painting at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Southern Counties Gas Co., 8th and Grand, San Pedro, opening a series of monthly art lectures and demonstrations sponsored by the San Pedro Art Assn. in conjunction with the San Pedro Adult Evening High School.

Diet Without Fads

Doctor Tells Tip to Reducers

(Editor's Note: This is the first in a series of six articles by Miss Flanary on proper dieting. The other articles will run concurrently in both the morning Independent and evening Press-Telegram throughout the coming week.)

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
Independent, Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

Did you know that when dieting, a person should not lose more than two pounds a week? Or that your weight should never fluctuate to extremes?

Prompted by the fact that more and more people are becoming addicted to fad diets, home economists, dieticians and nutritionists in this area have joined forces, and on Feb. 20 will meet in the Biltmore Hotel Ballroom, Los Angeles, to discuss "Prospecting in Nutrition."

Dr. Samuel Soskin will be the speaker. Associate Clinical Professor of Medicine at UCLA and attending physician in medicine at Cedars of Lebanon Hospital, Dr. Soskin has published more than 100 original scientific publications on metabolism and endocrinology. He has also authored two books on foods and their effect on health.

He says: "Fad diets will reduce, but they will not keep a person permanently reduced, because no one can stay on a fad diet indefinitely—they are boring, monotonous, etc. Therefore, it's a continual process of going on a fad diet, losing weight, eating it back again, going on another fad diet, etc.... and that's where the real harm lies. Reducing medications produce the same harmful effects because of extreme weight fluctuations. Also, too often people going on fad diets are reducing themselves below their normal weight to fit a preconceived idea of what their weight should be.

"It is in these periods of weight gaining by the fad reducing diet cycles that the greatest heart damage occurs, just as high blood fat and high cholesterol can occur by rapidly gaining weight. It is now believed that high blood fat and high cholesterol cause hardening of the arteries and thus damage to heart, kidneys, eyes, and brain.

"Before going on a reducing diet of any kind, a person should realize that overweight depends on a caloric balance. Also the person should actually determine whether he or she is overweight by body conformation, bony structure, condition of health, etc., and not by some specific chart or whim of fancy.

"Once the dieter and the doctor have decided the problem is overweight, the diet should be a well-balanced one that is reduced in calories. It should be a diet on which the person can stay for life to prevent extreme weight fluctuations, as occur in fad diet cycles.

"The reducer must have a strong incentive to reduce and must receive support from the person making out the diet. The dieter must also realize his family and national eating traits and must correct his eating habits as the well-balanced diet dictates. The diet must reduce the person slowly by giving good eating habits that can be adapted permanently."

A diet may be balanced, yet be varied and interesting. For one meal, for instance, put the nutritional emphasis on the entree—the next on the soup, the salad or dessert. That we might assist you with this important problem, for the next five days we will give five suggestions in this order: appetizers, a soup, a nutritious salad, a complete meal and a dessert.

Watch for them in both the morning Independent and afternoon Press-Telegram Women's Sections.

Pre-School Workshop to Cover Many Topics

Nurseries Meet Needs of Families

As a conclusion to Nursery Schools Week, the Long Beach Council of Cooperative Nursery Schools and the Long Beach-Harbor Area Association for Nursery Education will co-sponsor a parent-education workshop, "Perking Up Our Pre-school Programs," at Burcham School, Monlaco and San Anseline, on Feb. 16, from 1 to 3:30 p. m.

A variety of small discussion groups on the many facets of pre-school programs are planned to follow the showing of a new Vassar Child Study film, "The Fours and Fives." Pre-school programs are designed to develop an atmosphere in which children may express themselves creatively, learn to share, play cooperatively and grow in emotional development.

Experts to Speak

Resource people, each expert in his field, will attend the round-tables. Topics will be:

Art: "From Experimenting to Expression," Mrs. Mary Edmonds, City College Instructor; literature: "Mother Goose and Dr. Seuss," Mrs. Jane Bradley, Long Beach Public Library; music: "Making Merry with Music," Mrs. Janet Beavis, City College Instructor and Mrs. Blanche McGarrity, Co-op Nursery teacher; science: "Bugs, Beasts and Buzzer Boards," Mrs. Louise Frank, Family Living Instructor and Mrs. Bessie Ingram, City College Child Development Center; dramatic play: "I'll Be You and You'll Be Me." Mrs. Jean Enk, Family Living Instructor and Mrs. Betty Comings, Co-op Nursery teacher; creative free play: "A Bird Can Fly, So Can I," Mrs. Wilma Dahlquist, private nursery school director, and Dr. Arlene Roster, Long Beach State College.

Rainy day activities, Mrs. Nelcie Patchett, Co-op Nursery teacher; sharing and showing, Mrs. Astried Archer, Co-op Nursery teacher; parent-teacher relationships, Mrs. Elizabeth Lieberman, City College Child Development Center; child-teacher relationships, Dr. Marcelle Nerbovig and Mrs. Molly Morgenroth, both of Long Beach State College; discipline: "Taming of the Shrew." Miss Flora Thurston, formerly at Cornell University and Miss Carol DeBlois, kindergarten teacher; puppets, Mrs. Willow-Orine Cronkright, Child Development Center; physical set-up: "How It Affects the Child," Mrs. Anne Manlloff, State Department of Social Welfare and Jack Minor, Long Beach Recreation Department.

Of particular importance is the consideration of how well the nursery program is fulfilling its objectives, especially as to the four and five-year-olds who will be in kindergarten next year.

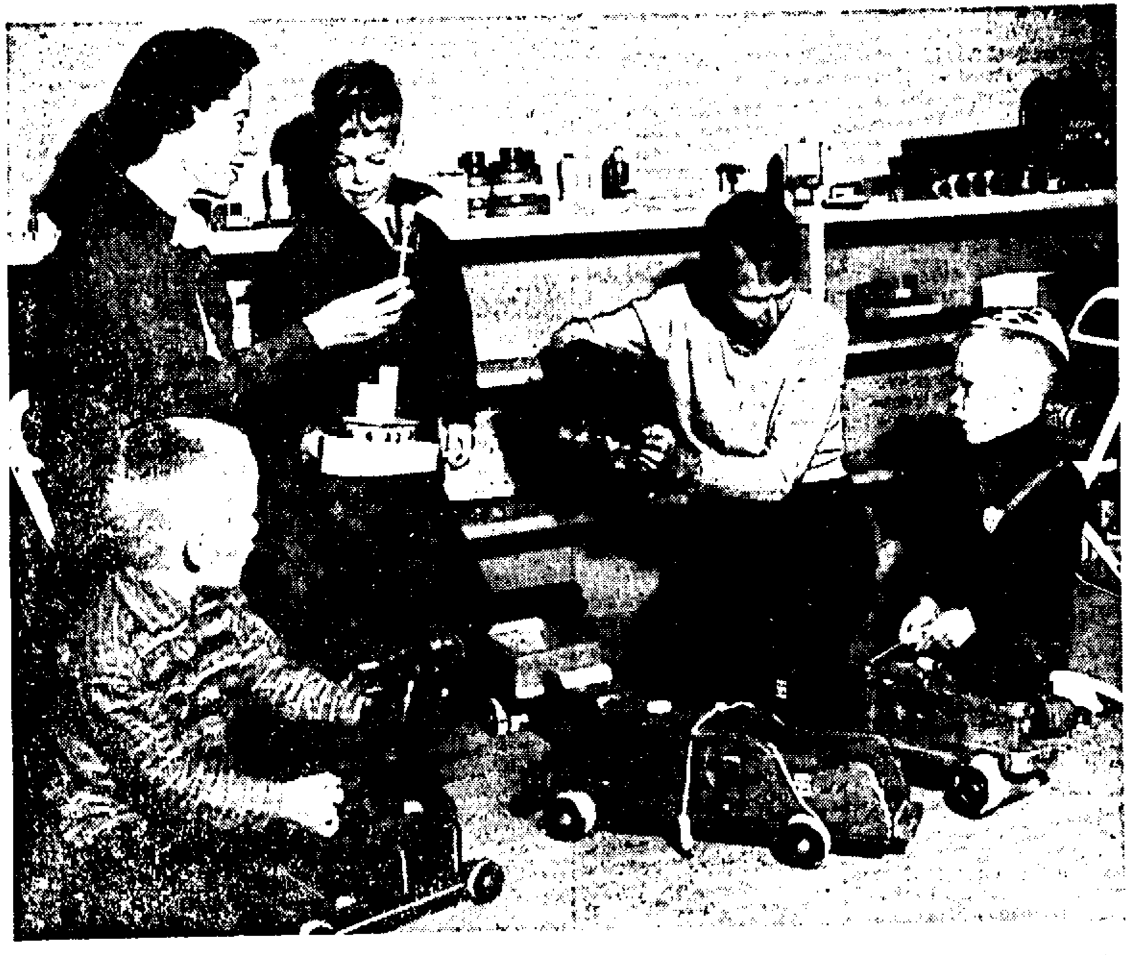
Combined Efforts

The combined efforts of the Co-ops and the Association for Nursery Education have been meeting the needs of parents of pre-schoolers in this area for many years. The ANE represents in its membership both teachers and nursery schools in Long Beach, the surrounding harbor area, and Orange County. Its affiliates are familiar to many local families and include the Long Beach City College Child Development Center, a parent-participation group; the Child Care Centers and Day Nurseries, both for children of working parents; several private schools and church nurseries.

Parents interested in the facilities of the Child Development center may call the General Adult Division of City College. Information about Child Care Centers may be obtained from the Board of Education and about Day Nurseries, a Community Chest agency at the West Day Nursery, 1548 Chestnut.

The Council of Cooperative Nursery Schools represents 16 parent-administered groups in the Long Beach area. Through parent participation, they and their children learn together. Further information may be obtained from Council President, Mrs. Harry Simon, 3137 Shipway Ave.

Parent education plays an important role in the modern nursery school. The Feb. 16th workshop is still another aspect of the continuing educational process. Pre-school and kindergarten teachers, mothers and all who are interested in pre-school development are invited to attend.



A TYPICAL SITUATION, repeated thousands of times in Long Beach Cooperative Nursery Schools, is caught by the photographer as mothers and pre-school children learn together. Little Eric Swain (left foreground) pauses in the midst of a construction job to listen to his mother, Mrs. Robert Swain, tell Greg Raven about a boat and jaunty sailor. Mrs. Richard G. Miller and Eric Miller (right) work out a truck and trailer assembly problem with some of the excellent school equipment.—(Staff photo.)

Faculty Wives, who recently held a benefit card party for the Student Emergency Fund, announced that the next regular meeting of their group will be March 8 in the campus library. Mrs. Frank Isaacs, chapter membership chairman, says that because of the critical situation in the Middle East and the important roll Hadassah plays in the life of Israel, it is important for all Hadassah members to attend the tea to rededicate themselves to the work of the organization.

St. Valentine Takes Fashion's Hand at District Function

A double red heart symbolizing the dual purpose of philanthropic activity and social events as well as emphasizing the Valentine theme will be in evidence when members and guests of the Los Cerritos District, California Federation of Women's Clubs have their first annual fashion show Monday in the Gourmet Restaurant, Disneyland Hotel.

Luncheon will precede the showing of a variety of sportswear, afternoon and evening attire, as well as appropriate accessories for each ensemble.

Slated as the largest ways and means event of the year, profits from the affair will enable the Los Cerritos District to continue their extensive philanthropic activties in the local area. In addition it will provide an opportunity for those attending to view the latest in new spring fashions.

The large double red styrofoam heart decorating the head table will be surrounded by smaller heart shaped figures. Lending a spring like touch will be smaller clusters of red and white camellias.

Carrying out the all red and white theme will be individual double red nylon net ruffled hearts and camellias on each of the small tables.

Door awards are from each of the twenty-three federated clubs in the Los Cerritos District.

Arrangements for the lavish affair were made by Mrs. L. G. Garrison, second vice president of the Los Cerritos District and ways and means chairman, assisted by Mmes. William Harlan, Ruel Hird, R. Hirdler and L. S. Blacker.

Club presidents acting as hostesses for the day include Mmes. W. A. Taylor, Hollydale Women's Club; Virgil Koons, North Long Beach; Regis Jeffries, Lakewood; Harold Thompson, Wilmington; H. H. Corlew, Huntington Park Women's Club; Fred Ricks, Lynwood; George Henrick, Pathfinders Club of Compton; Arvo Fallon, Norwalk, and Andrew de Voss, Artesia Women's Club.

To Address Club

Lawrence A. Collins Sr., editorial columnist for the Long Beach Independent, will be guest speaker at the meeting of the Southeast County Republican Women's Federated Club Tuesday at Lakewood Country Club. His subject will cover local government. The meeting will be at 12:30 instead of the regular hour of 1 p. m. Mrs. Ira Batdorff, president, extends an invitation to the public. A tea will follow the meeting.

Poet to Appear

Long Beach Council of Republican Women will meet Wednesday at 1 p. m. in the Pageant Room of the Wilton Hotel. This will be the annual reciprocity meeting at which members of the Presidents Club will be honored.

Guest speaker will be Gordon W. Norris, well-known native son and poet laureate of the State of California. Norris has made an extensive study of the lore and legend of early California and precedes his readings with numerous anecdotes concerning early California history.

He has the distinction of having been appointed state poet laureate at the age of 45 and is the youngest poet to have achieved this honor.

Norris will give readings from several of his works, which helped him to win his appointment, including "Golden Empire" and "Pagan Road."

Mrs. Gus A. Walker, program chairman, will introduce the speaker, and Mrs. H. P. Dunlop, president, will conduct the business session. Mrs. W. E. Lancer, hospitality chairman, aided by Mrs. W. H. Gillis, will be in charge of the tea which follows.

Dotted line shows where "Miss X" had a cluster of troublesome blackheads before treatment.

First cleansing her face with a penetrating whipped cleansing cream, "Miss X" applies masque.

After 15 minutes, 4 of the blackheads are rinsed away with the masque. (See photos below).

Doctor's Home Treatment Rinses Away Blackheads

by Claire Hoffman

A LEADING New York dermatologist has developed a simple medicated home treatment that rinses away blackheads and whiteheads in a matter of minutes.

I saw it demonstrated recently on five women and two teenage boys. The results were almost breathtaking. Blackheads really rinsed away. In fact, many could be seen on the cleansing tissues that finished each treatment.

But this wasn't all! I saw enlarged pores reduced, and rough, muddy complexions made cleaner, clearer and smoother-looking. In the case of two older women, I saw flabby, sagging skin tighten and wrinkles flatten and fade . . . After seeing these results, I can well understand why so many beauticians are now acclaiming this doctor's treatment one of the most important beauty discoveries of the century.

Anyone Can Use It

The treatment starts with a thorough skin cleansing. A special laboratory - developed whipped cleansing cream is used that takes off not only surface dirt, but also softens and loosens pore-caked grime with its emollient action. It liquefies as soon as it is applied and literally floats the dirt right off your face.

After this is tissued off, a delightful mint-scented cream is applied. Within 2 or 3 minutes an absorbing agent called Argilla dries and turns this specially medicated cream into a plastic-like masque. As it firms and hardens, its suction action draws on waste matter in the pores . . . In 8 or 10 minutes you simply rinse the masque away with lukewarm water which dissolves it immediately. When you wipe your face, you can see blackheads and other pore "filler" actually come off on your washcloth. And your skin feels clean—really clean—and refreshed and smooth, like velvet!

The third step in the treatment is an exhilarating application of a unique antiseptic astringent — a facial "mint julep" that sponges and tightens emptied pores and leaves a protective invisible film that helps guard your skin against dust, dirt and bacteria for hours and hours.

Nothing Else Like It

Even after a single treatment, women who have been troubled by blackheads for years see a marked improvement. Many find it hard to believe their eyes. Some blackheads and whiteheads just rinse away. Others are softened and made ready to be drawn out by future treatments. Enlarged pores appear to be smaller. The skin looks smoother and firmer — feels fresher and more alive!

In short, after a single treatment taking only 15 minutes, you can expect to see results that normally you would not dare hope for even after many weeks . . . but don't expect everything at once. Damage done by years of neglect can't be undone in a day. Yet with 3 or 4 treatments a week, you may confidently look forward to startling complexion improvements within 30 days.

SAME PATCH OF SKIN after treatment. 4 of the blackheads are gone, while the fifth has been loosened somewhat. Skin pores also appear smaller.

Then one treatment a week — or every second week — will probably be all your skin will need to keep it clear, lovely and healthy looking.

The medically developed products used in this treatment are manufactured and quality-controlled by QUEEN HELENE. They are Queen Helene Whipped Cleansing Cream, Queen Helene Medicated Masque and Queen Helen Penetrating Astringent. The three items are sold as a complete skin and beauty kit for 3.98 plus tax. Quite a bargain when you think of what it will do for a person's good looks — and self-esteem!

See Blackheads "Wipe Off" On Your Washcloth in 15 minutes

In only 15 minutes the gentle suction-action of your Queen Helene treatment "draws out" blackheads . . . and without any digging or squeezing.

1 First apply Queen Helene Whipped Cleansing Cream. This liquefies instantly on your skin and softens pore-caked dirt with its rapid emollient action. You tissue off all but a thin film which prepares your face for the masque.

2 Now smooth on the Queen Helene Medicated Masque. As the absorbing agent, Argilla, in this plastic-like cream makes it harden into a masque, its powerful drawing action gently pulls out blackheads and other pore impurities.

3 After about 8 or 10 minutes, rinse off the masque with lukewarm water. It dissolves in seconds. Then apply Queen Helene Mint Julep Astringent—a special penetrating antiseptic that helps close emptied pores, tones up your complexion, and gives protection against dirt and bacteria for hours.

Advice for Mrs. Executive

which her husband is permanent chairman of the board."

This was one of the conclusions from research data compiled for four years by the Fry organization on the responsibilities of a businessman's wife toward his success. The bulk of the material has come from the firm's annual management clinics where some 35 top executives and their wives analyze problems of business and industry.

Another conclusion is that a wife should have some knowledge and understanding of her husband's business.

Biehl said, "We don't want her to go down to the office." But there are other ways to become informed."

One wife said, "Mrs. Executive should know as much of her husband's business as she is capable of understanding, and as much as her husband wants to tell her about his business."

Should Mrs. Executive push her husband?

"She encourages him in his work and understands its demands on his time and attention. She never nags or demands too much of him in his career."

As for the man who is the "eager beaver," the wives said: "We would hold him back for a physical reason — why let him burn himself out and perhaps have a coronary at 30 or 40? We would like to have our men around until they are 75 or so!"

In addition to all the foregoing, the research says today's successful business wife is:

A good wife and mother. She is affectionate, well-adjusted, adaptable, possesses a sense of humor and a desire to grow and mature with her husband.

Her background is similar to her husband's environment, tastes, education and religion. Ideally, she is a college graduate and has had some business experience.

She never commits the unpardonable sin of betraying a business confidence her husband has shared.

And if all that weren't enough, a wife reminds, "You still have to be a maid, the chauffeur, nurse, gardener, handy man, laundress, governess, educator and, by 5 p. m., a glamour girl!"

Worry Clinic

Forcing Career on Child Invites Personality Conflict

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

Case T-393: Jerome M., 24, is a third-year medical student.

"I wish you'd take Jerome in tow," a professor friend of mine urged me over the telephone. "He is a fine chap and comes from an excellent family. His father is a prominent surgeon. And the boy has done good work for his first two years in medical school.

"Now, however, he has collapsed, scholastically. He sits around dreaming. He will not study. In fact, he is becoming so detached from the world that we must do something quickly or the boy may become a mental case.

"I'm going to recommend to his father that Jerome drop his medical studies, but I'd like to have your opinion and also have you talk to the boy immediately. The father will be broken up over the case, for his heart has been set on Jerome's becoming a surgeon."

• • • •

IT ISN'T infrequent for a professional student to collapse like this, and not from undernourishment or other physical causes.

Many dominant parents become so captivated by the idea of having their son join them so they can add the "& Son" to the name of the firm or clinic, that they often bulldoze a timid boy into following a career which is distasteful to him.

This is effectively demonstrated in Jerome's case. Jerome's mother is a quiet, music-loving woman. But her successful husband dominates her home. Telephone calls, hospital staff meetings, conventions and consultations, emergency surgery . . . these keep the household in turmoil.

Everything must be arranged, therefore, around the doctor and his duties. The timid wife has meekly reflected his glory and gained her self-expression at the keyboard of their grand piano.

Since it is rather difficult for two dominant personalities to monopolize the same stage, we are likely to find the children taking a secondary role whenever either parent is an aggressive, go-getter type of individual. A magnetic parent often means a shy child.

And so it was with Jerome. In high school, he was a studious, quiet boy, with a great passion for sketching. His vocational preference lay in the realm of art. In fact, he wanted to attend art school. But his father was determined that his son should follow in his medical footsteps. The father accordingly chose Jerome's course of study. The father pushed him along a scientific program, selected to suit the wishes of the father, not the son.

In fact, Jerome and his father had very little in common, partly owing to the strenuous demands of the medical profession which kept the doctor away from home a great deal of the time during Jerome's boyhood.

• • • •

SO JEROME has been between the devil and the deep blue sea. He admired his father, and wished to avoid offending him. He also appreciated his obligations to his male parent, and naturally wished to make him happy. But he disliked medical subjects. He had never wanted to be a doctor, anyway.

Once or twice he and his mother had timidly tried to state their viewpoint, and suggest that Jerome's talent lay in the direction of art, but the doctor pooh-poohed such an idea. Of course, Jerome was going to be a great surgeon, just like his dad. For 25 years the father had cherished such an ambition. He would not let anything stand in the way of its fulfillment.

So Jerome took two years of pre-medical work at the liberal arts college and then enrolled in medical school. However, the deeper he got into medicine, the more he longed for art. In this basic conflict, he finally broke down.

Send for my "Vocational Guidance Kit." Use it to help steer your child into an acceptable trade or profession where he'll be happy, as well as successful.

Please enclose a long, 3-cent self-addressed envelope and 20 cents in requesting a Dr. Crane Bulletin. Address: Dr. George W. Crane, in care of Hopkins Syndicate, Mellott, Ind.

be in ill repute. They do say she was a hussy.

Mothers' maiden names for sons I like, though I am all for calling the firstborn boy after Pa since I believe in continuity.

Probably the category of citizens which has a really peculiar problem when it comes to naming offspring are authors struggling for titles for their brain children.

They shouldn't be banal, on the other hand they should not be so fantastic that the reader thinks he's picked up a fairy tale. Probably the greatest tailor of names to characters was Dickens with his Pecksniff and Uriah Heep and Sarah Gamp and Mr. Pickwick and Scrooge. He held the magic combination—earthy, original, precise. It takes talent.

One of my own creations I was proud of, but I never put him in a book. When my stepson was a little boy, I used to tell him stories about a character called Lord Frothingham-Twitchet, the greatest snob in England, sir, but by golly, he was a gentleman. David Niven is playing him to perfection in "Around the World in 80 Days."

Another 'First' for Symphony

Friday morning another exciting "first" will be marked by the Long Beach Symphony Assn. On that day Ruth Craig Merrell will open her gracious home to friends of the local orchestra.

Royal Stanton, conductor of Long Beach City College's highly successful Schola Cantorium, will be raconteur at the affair. The popular speaker will discuss an unusual program to be presented by the symphony next Sunday evening.

The major work will be Beethoven's music to Goethe's tragedy, "Egmont." The play is one well suited to the times, since it deals in broad terms with the fight for human freedom. Assisting with the concert presentation will be Richard Hale, narrator, and Jeanne Roodhouse, soprano.

Other works to be discussed by Stanton include the Overture to the opera, "Oberon," by von Weber and the lyric, Symphony No. 5 in B Flat, by Schubert. Orchestras all over the country will observe February, birthday month of both Lincoln and Washington, by featuring American music. The Long Beach Symphony will share in this patriotic gesture by performing "Lincoln Portrait" by Aaron Copland. An analysis of this contemporary composition will conclude Stanton's remarks.

Mrs. John Sadler, chairman, with Mrs. Edward Killingsworth and Mrs. John Ross-Duggan, members of her committee arranging the salon, have invited guests to stay for a friendly hour of conversation and refreshments following discussion of the program. Bouillon will be served by a group of assisting hostesses including Mmes. Howard Conrad, Charles Evett, T. A. Gregory, John A. Harris, Paul Nichol, Bertram McGarrity, P. Victor Peterson and Odie Wright.

Lauris Jones, new conductor of Long Beach Symphony, will be honored guest at the salon. Mrs. Rex Hodges, wife of the president of the association, will join with him in welcoming guests.

SIGNS OF SPRING

Sandy Brubar, fashion coordinator for May Co., Lakewood, previews some of the loveliest of spring fashions for (from left) Mmes. Thomas A. Comiskey, Norman V. Judson and Parkinson Hayward. These and other sprightly styles interpreted for the season just ahead will be shown at a luncheon to be given by AAUW at Lakewood Country Club on Feb. 16.

AAUW Event to Combine Fashion and Philanthropy

A preliminary look at spring fashions and an opportunity to support the Fellowship program of the American Association of University Women will be offered at a mid-month luncheon to be given Feb. 16 at Lakewood Country Club.

Proceeds will be sent to the national office of AAUW to support the organization's unique program of aid to graduate women students. The plan originated in 1890 when $500 was awarded to the first Fellow, and now is backed by more than $1,400,000 in endowment trust funds. The local branch hopes to make a substantial contribution to the program this year, AAUW's 75th anniversary.

Miss Harriet Knoblock, Fellowship chairman, reports that the forthcoming style show, sponsored by May Co., Lakewood, will feature a galaxy of costumes, from casual town wear to exciting party gowns. Special ramps will be erected so that models may be viewed from all parts of the room. Reservations deadline is Feb. 13.

Mothers Invited

Mothers of high school students are invited to hear Mrs. R. J. Keating, president of Long Beach Garden Club, discuss flower arrangements when she appears before the Wednesday meeting of St. Anthony's Mother's Club. The group will assemble at 1:30 p.m. in the Catholic Center, 6th and Alamitos.

Why Grow Old?

Concentrate on Leisure Time for Vibrant Living

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Dr. Millard C. Faught is one of the most stimulating and magnetic personalities I have ever met. His interests and talents are so varied that it would be impossible to list them all here.

Just to give you an idea of his background—he worked his way through college to win AB, MS and Ph.D degrees from Columbia University. He is consultant to management on policy matters concerning economics, national trends, business methods, community and human relations. He has had many articles published by our most distinguished magazines and is the author of four books—some serious and some humorous. You may have read his "The Care and Feeding of Executives." He speaks before many professional and business groups and on television and radio programs.

Dr. Faught simply vibrates with enthusiasm and ideas and seems to have a special talent for sensing and understanding, ahead of the crowd, great social and economic trends and interpreting them in human values. He is also president of the Retirement Council, Inc., in New York City. This was why I was especially interested in meeting and talking with him.

One of the most stimulating thoughts he presented is the fact that our high standard of living means not only increased dollars but increased leisure. He points out that our standard of living consists of time values and well as money values, and that we have not yet recognized the fact that this additional free time can be one of the most rewarding dividends of our rising standard of living.

Had you realized that we moderns have almost as much leisure time in our lives as our colonial ancestors had total time, for work and everything else, in their lives? You can readily see how this can be when you remember that our life expectancy has been increased almost 50 per cent in the last 50 years, and that the work hours necessary for making a living have been cut almost in half. Think, too, of the many labor saving devices available today.

Increased leisure and longer life expectancy should be wonderful and exciting challenges and blessings, but if we are trained only for our job of making money and not for the job of living vibrantly in our spare time, we are effective only during our work hours, which constitute the smaller portion of our lives.

This features appears daily in the Press-Telegram.

FIRA BENENSON is the designer who knows that just because a woman is "over 21" she doesn't necessarily wish to advertise the fact. On the other hand, she does not want to be mistaken for a juvenile, so she likes clothes that do justice to her figure and way of life. Part of Fira Benenson's technique is the emphasis on simplicity with careful handling of couture detail as in this one-piece model with diagonally buttoned back that opens out into a deep triangular pleat. The front is simple, its boat neckline broken with a provocative notch. For this exclusive designer retail-sized pattern that is custom made with accurate perforations for easy and precise matching, choose cottons, silks, shantung, novelty weaves.

Pair Wed in Chapel

A wedding of particular interest to a wide circle of Southland friends united Crystal Akin and Nile Bunch on Feb. 1. The ceremony, which came as a complete surprise to all but closest friends and relatives, was solemnized in the chapel of First Baptist Church.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Walter Arrowood, was matron of honor with Beryl Bunch serving as best man. For her vows the new Mrs. Bunch wore a chic pastel blue suit accented with white accessories.

Only witnesses to the quiet rite were Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Chandler, the Floyd Williams' and Walter Arrowood. Following the ceremony and a festive wedding dinner at Curries the newlyweds enplaned for a brief honeymoon in Las Vegas, returning this past week to begin a round of parties planned in their honor.

First of the gay fetes occurred Thursday when the Chandlers and Williams' were co-hosts at a reception given in the Williams home, 1121 Claiborne Dr. Twin red tulle hearts, with clusters of lilies of the valley, centered the buffet table. Assisting were Mmes. Vi Akin, Arrowood, Ross Wattelet and Vernon Monk with Mrs. Beryl Bunch in charge of the guest book.

Another party honoring the newly married couple will take place at the Williams' mountain home at Big Bear next weekend for close friends.

A cupid's dinner party will be given by the Chandlers with the Vernon Monks as co-hosts on Feb. 21.

NO BATHTUB RING!

A new deodorant beauty bar, called Zest, is now on the market. Because of a special formula, this produces a rich suds in any type water and afterwards there's no stubborn ring to be cleaned off tub or sink.

New 'Zest' Beauty Soap on Market

A completely new and different deodorant beauty bar with a two-way cleansing action superior to that of soap has just been introduced in the Southland by Proctor & Gamble. Called Zest, it not only provides long-lasting deodorant protection, but leaves skin feeling refreshed and radiant, free from the film left by regular toilet soaps.

Because of a special formula, this bar produces a rich billowy suds almost immediately in any type water, no matter how hard. Afterwards, there's no unsightly, stubborn ring to be cleaned off tub or sink!

Zest has a delicate spicy fragrance and an attractive aqua color—both popular with the entire family. It's now on sale in bath and complexion size bars wherever toilet soaps are sold—you'll recognize it by its sparkling aqua foil wrapper.

Newlyweds Visiting Europe

Honeymooning in Europe are Mr. and Mrs. Ronald C. Rule, whose marriage was solemnized Jan. 26 in First Baptist Church of Long Beach.

For the ceremony the former Gwendolyn Schow, daughter of Mrs. Edna Strunk of 620 Temple Ave., wore a gown of French Duplonni silk, fashioned on lines of elegant simplicity. Lace flowers bordered the neckline and dotted the graceful lines of the very full ballerina skirt. Twelve white phaleanopsis were shaped with bouvardia to form her heart-shaped bouquet.

Miss Betty Jean Hawkes and Miss Barbara Pumphrey, attendants, were attired in lavender frocks and carried orchids, carnations and hyacinths.

The bridegroom's brother, Stanley J. Rule, performed best man duties; Richard K. Rozelle, Miller M. Keplinger and Robert J. Lange seated the 150 guests before the 7:30 p.m. double ring rite.

The bride is a former airline hostess and the bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles O. Rule of 4214 Chestnut Ave., served as a commissioned officer in the U. S. Air Force.

During her student days at Polytechnic High School, Gwendolyn was president of Scarabs and of Portia. Her husband is a graduate of Compton High School and of UCLA. He is a member of Sigma Pi and of the American Geologic Institute.

At the conclusion of the wedding ceremony, the bridal pair were feted at a church reception. On their return from Europe late in February, they will reside at 585 Walnut Ave.

The Long Beach Chapter has designated the Exceptional Children's Foundation as recipient of philanthropic endeavors. Former airline stewardesses interested in membership are invited to contact Mrs. Richard Kiley, 1939 Woodruff Ave

Mrs. Otto Mayfield, president, conducted the session during which committee chairmen gave reports, by-laws and suggested revisions read by Mrs. Frank Finch and a report given on the Holiday Festival by Mrs. Clarence Poole.

Crresponding secretary Mrs. Bernie C. Heinz discussed endorsement of the rabies control law, and Mrs. Hal Hunter, who as first vice president is in charge of Athenian Clubs for girls, told of need for additional funds for the clubs' junior high school program.

Future activities of the club will include a party at the Theater on Feb. 28, with profits to be used to further the club group's work with junior high school clubs; Athenian girls will be guests at a tea planned for May; and the membership will attend the March 4 fashion show and luncheon to be staged by the Uptown Opti-Mrs. in the Lafayette Hotel.

The president reminded the group of the 14th District Convention to take place in Long Beach during May. Opti-Mrs. will be in charge of the luncheon for an expected 600 women delegates.

Special guest of the afternoon was Mrs. Ben Linde of Westwood.

Dreams Set Standards for High Achievements

By ANGELO PATRI

Anybody can dream, and it's a good thing, too. "Without vision the people perish" -so when a mother dreams of greatness for her children, when the teacher envisions a class with 100 per cent achievement, they at least set a high standard for themselves and the children.

It is not always possible to achieve the dream, but it is always possible to make the most of the material and the opportunities allowed us. Very soon parents and teachers learn something about the abilities and the characteristics of the children they are hoping will develop toward their standard. Soon they learn that these young ones have limitations which modify the hopes and plans set for them.

That makes for disappointment and unless the older people are wise and understanding, they vent that disappointment on the hapless children. Nothing could be more damaging to the youngsters' own dreams than that, and parents and teachers should know it. They do know it, really, but human nature being what it is, they just relieve their vexation by using hard words.

There is an old story about a potter who had a dream about making a vase so beautiful that it could be presented to the emperor, who would, of course, make the potter wealthy. He tried again and again, each time getting, he believed, a little closer to his ideal. One day the craftsman fashioned a vase that he hoped would be The One. It was his last chance, for he was old and poor now and could make no more vases.

But the vase turned out to be a pot more suitable for the kitchen than for a place in the emperor's garden. However, it was a fine pot and as the potter turned it about in his hands, he knew it was sound and beautiful, though a useful instead of a beautiful piece. With a sigh and an affectionate rub, he put it on a shelf.

One day there was great excitement in the village. The emperor was coming and a feast was to be prepared. The cook from the emperor's own kitchen came to do the main dish, but there was no pot ready for such a dish. Someone remembered the handsome pot on the old potter's shelf, and the potter was happy to lend it. When the dish was served, the emperor noted the fine pot, asked about it and sure enough, rewarded the old potter richly for his work. The pot found its place in the palace kitchen.

Dreams come true, but not always in the original pattern. It is best to keep trying, for you never can tell when the emperor will come, needing a jewel, or a pot.

CHILDREN'S CONCERT

Concert Is Programmed for Youth

A Youth Concert, custom made to appeal to an audience of children of fourth to eighth grade level, will be presented Feb. 23 at 10:30 a.m. in Wilson High School auditorium by the Long Beach Symphony Orchestra. Junior League of Long Beach will sponsor the performance.

The fifty minute program will open with a demonstration of orchestra building. First on stage, a harpist will play the theme alone. Next a string quartet will enter to repeat the theme. Following in succession will come the whole string section, the woodwinds, then the brass and percussion playing a circus band arrangement. In conclusion the entire orchestra will play together.

The second number, "Circus," by Ernst Toch was written in 1955. With its many animal noises and interesting story it has an immediate appeal for children. In pleasant contrast is the next number, excerpts from Handel's "Water Music," which is nice listening music.

The final selection will be "Trio for Bassoon" by Weissenborn. Both the appearance and the unusual tone of the bassoon prove always fascinating to children.

There will be no printed programs; instead Lauris Jones will do the narration. The orchestra has been newly reorganized under Jones' competent direction. Junior Leaguers who are helping in the presentation of the concert are Mmes. H. Chester Moore, Robert Breckenfeld and R. O. Gould.

Your Baby & Mine

Protective Vitamins

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Unless a doctor orders an adult to take extra vitamins, it may be assumed that an individual who eats a normally balanced and generous diet will get his allotment of vitamins daily.

But children are growing rapidly. They do not eat as conscientiously as an adult might and so must have those protective vitamins which prevent them from developing any deficiency ailment, such as rickets or scurvy.

Vitamins A, B, C and D are the ones needed in the diet and multiple vitamin products supply these in abundance.

Mrs. A. K. writes, "I have two small children two and six. I give each of them a teaspoon of plain cod liver oil a day. Is that enough of the vitamins? They eat lots of oranges, apples and raw carrots, but do not like milk or any other vegetables."

Because their diet is deficient in itself, then there is more reason than usual to stress a product containing all the vitamins. Otherwise your present product which supplies A and D would be a good one.

Milk is a serious lack and I would try to remedy this by offering foods made with milk. Custards, home-made ice creams, milk sauces on vegetables or puddings, cream soups, milk beaten into eggs and mashed potatoes—all of these will use up considerable milk in a day.

You also can use powdered milks, which can be added to any food, to provide additional protein and calcium which they need. I am taking it for granted that neither of them is allergic to milk.

As for vegetables, these, too, can be incorporated into other foods, so that they may not seem just like the vegetables served by themselves at the family table.

If they like raw carrots they may also like pieces of raw turnip or cauliflower with their meals. You can grind up a variety of raw vegetables and add them to soup, or mix with salad dressing as a sandwich, or mix them with flavored gelatins. In any of these ways the child gets the value of the vegetables and will develop a "taste" for them.

DO YOU KNOW
WHAT YOUR TEEN-AGE DAUGHTER IS THINKING
when she goes into her room and shuts the door?
How does she feel about you, her parents, about her friends, life, love?
In frank comments in her own words she tells you, heart-to-heart, in this series.
Based on a comprehensive survey of 500 high school girls in the typical American community of Waterloo, Iowa, this series will give you an entirely new concept of today's teen-ager.
The survey comes up with some surprising answers, most of which indicate remarkable maturity in America's teen-agers, despite popular views to the contrary.
Meet your daughter, your neighbor, your best friend, in this series.
The survey was designed for understanding, not expose. And the series based on it is not a peep through a keyhole, but a new look into a mind—and a heart.

If You Love Your Husband, Tell Him

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

How long has it been since you told your husband that you love him? How long has it been since you stopped and looked at him and said, for no reason except you wanted to: "You're the most wonderful guy in the world"?

Have you remembered lately to kiss him goodby in the morning as if you meant it, and to tell him how well he looks in his new suit?

Or have you been so immersed in the deadly, daily details of living that you haven't taken time to express your affection for the people you love most?

Chances are, if you're an average American, your score on the above questions won't be so good. For Americans, especially in our high-pressure current era, seem to find it difficult to express the simple, natural affection that makes the world go around.

This has been the observation of a modern career woman named Charlotte Thompson, who, like so many of us, spends her days in a hectic round of business activities, but who has decided that no job is more important than her home and family. And so she has decided to do something about it.

Charlotte, who looks like the magazine illustration of a poised, successful business woman, has organized a group which she calls the Valentine's Day Council, of which she is executive director. Its object is to re-establish the importance of old-fashioned romantic love, and to encourage everyday, busy people to express it.

"This may sound corny," says Charlotte, "but all of us rush around at such a hectic pace these days that often there isn't time to stop and say to an old friend that you really care what happens to him, or to reassure your child that you love him, or to tell your husband that he's the most important person in your life.

"Some of us have almost forgotten how to express our affection for each other, and so Valentine's Day makes an awfully good excuse to be sentimental.

"So instead of sending a comic, sophisticated valentine, send an old-fashioned, sentimental one this year, and add your own personal message. Don't be afraid to say, 'I love you' and mean it. That's the crusade I've embarked on, and it may seem strange for a former newspaperwoman and a busy careerist, but I think it's important."

Realtors Wives to See Exhibit

At a luncheon meeting of Realtors Wives Tuesday at Lafayette Hotel, Charles Snow, Long Beach clockmaker, will present the history of clocks at an antique clock exhibit, displaying some of his unique timepieces. Snow, considered an authority in his field, frequently displays his collection at hobby shows and on television, and has many of his clocks on loan for exhibits.

Mrs. James Bohan will preside at the luncheon, for which Mrs. Harvey Hunter is arranging valentine decorations.

Parliamentarians

Mrs. Eser Wickholm, third vice president of the National Association of Parliamentarians, will discuss reports of officers and committees and minority reports at a 1 p.m. meeting Thursday of General Henry M. Robert Parliamentary Club in the Vermont Square Library Building, 1201 W. 48th St., Los Angeles. Mrs. Vern Jackson of Long Beach will preside.

Festive Parties Focus Social Spotlight on Lives of Military Homes and Clubs

By VIRGINIA NEWTON

Mister Cupid will take a formal bow at the gay and delightful semi-formal valentine party of the popular Wives of Navy Doctors Club. The festivities are arranged for the evening of Feb. 22, starting at the cocktail hour in the Officers Club, Allen Center, Patio Room.

Using "Hearts and Flowers" as their theme, the hostesses, new members to the club, Mrs. J. L. Barnes and Mrs. Q. Crews, have plans for huge red hearts and deep red and white flowers as part of their decor. There'll be cocktails and buffet at 6:30 and dinner at 8:30, followed by dancing. This is one of the few social events of the busy club that the husbands are "allowed."

A contingent of doctors and their wives from the Corona Naval Hospital are planning on attending, as are many of the retired Navy dental and medical officers in this area and their guests.

A special call and invitation is sent out to all dental and medical officers ashore and afloat and their wives, who have not been contacted to call their reservations in to Mrs. Lewis Dorgan of 4200 Linden Ave. before noon, Feb. 20.

Those attending may dress formally or semi-formally.

Now another pretty party of the service social calendar is much looked forward to by the Air Force set. It is the Washington Birthday party gathering Saturday at 8 p. m. in the Officers Club at the Long Beach Air Force Base. It's an informal supper-dance with Al Kulz' band entertaining.

Mrs. A. E. Hohn entertained recently at a dessert bridge party, honoring Long Beach's best winter booster, Maybelle Wasserman, who is here every winter season from Ogden, Utah, as houseguest of Mr. and Mrs. Ross O'Blennis.

Oh, speaking of parties with a theme, there's another exciting event brewing in the Coast Guard circles. That's the St. Valentine's Dance scheduled for Friday from 9 to 1 at the American Legion Post 496. Lacy valentines, big red hearts and darts will be the gay decor. Senior host and hostess, Dr. and Mrs. V. H. Vogel, will be assisted by Dr. and Mrs. C. H. Wright, Comdr. and Mrs. T. G. Byrne, Comdr. and Mrs. Benjamin Chiswell, Lt. Comdr. and Mrs. H. C. McCaffery, Lt. and Mrs. T. E. Hawkins, Lt. and Mrs. E. B. Kopp and RELE and Mrs. H. L. Gordon.

The event is sponsored by the Coast Guard Officers Wives Club, and reservations should be mailed in to Mrs. V. H. Vogel by Tuesday.

Wives of officers attached to the USS Roanoke enjoyed an attractive coffee event Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Mathew Breen.

Navy Wives Club No. 123 is having a potluck welfare meeting Monday at the Navy clubhouse, the new president, Mrs. Louise Wadsworth, announced at the last business meeting. Seven new members joined the group during the business session. Members will gather at 10:30 a. m. Amy Studman and her co-chairman of the welfare drive, Mrs. Louise Nicolaus of 4336 Gardenia Ave., are most anxious for usable clothing and household gear for their welfare project.

Pretty Peggy Mann had a wonderful ninth birthday party Monday. Besides her little sisters, Kathleen, Susan and Virginia, three best school friends, Mary Patsy Barnes, Paula Brock and Wanda Whitson, were invited to the family gathering. Also sharing the big cake Mrs. Mann baked for the occasion was Peggy's daddy, Fred Mann of the USS Helena. Not quite making it for the party but now visiting the Manns are the children's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Al Bennett of South Bend, Ind.

Mrs. C. A. Creel entertained wives of officers attached to the USS Roanoke at a dessert bridge recently.

That youthful-looking publicity chairman and good friend of mine, Jean Thornton of the Fleet Reserve Association Unit 43 Auxiliary, is about to become a grandmother. She was given a surprise baby shower for her daughter-in-law, Joan Thornton, by her friends in the auxiliary. Senior hostesses were Mmes. Creta Green, Lillian Keehan and Marguerite Askew. The afternoon was a gay one with lots of excitement over opening the lovely gifts, a wonderful luncheon and late afternoon of cards.

At the recent luncheon meeting of Long Beach Air Force Officers Wives Club, Mrs. M. Eaton of the Juvenile Bureau was guest speaker. New members joining were Ella Heeney and Martie Bauduit.

Friday, Mrs. John Price was hostess at a coffee in her home in farewell to Mrs. Eberwine who, with her husband, Lt. T. Eberwine, will be leaving soon for Germany.

AAUW Juniors

The influence of television in our lives will be the program topic of the Junior Group of the American Association of University Women at their Wednesday evening meeting at the home of Mrs. Warren Helstand. "Television as a Cultural Force—or Is It?" will be presented to the group by Dr. W. David Sievers, speech department of Long Beach State College.

Merrill G. Scott

Chef of the Week

By Yiminy, 'Scotty' Bane Vun-Fine Svenska Cook

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
Independent, Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

"Scotty" as he is known to his buddies . . . and today's "cook," is, for statistics, Merrill G. Scott, manager Electrical Products Co., 1966 American Ave.

He started his southward trek from Portland, Ore., his birthplace, but tarried long enough in San Francisco to receive his education.

It was while in San Francisco that Scott realized a dream he'd cherished since childhood . . . to delve into the depths of electronics. He took a leave from his job with Shell Oil Co., and went to Chicago where he devoted three years to that subject. He has been with his present company nine years.

Steady and progressive, he and Mrs. "S" are considered an attractive, active and witty couple.

A member of downtown Kiwanis Club, Scott, because of his devoted interest in teen-age boys, is a top flight chairman of their Key Club. Two years ago he was dubbed the most improved golfer in the club . . . but a skyrocketing handicap (and for what reason, no one will hazard a guess) has now earned him the dubious title of "probably the most unimproved."

But when he cooks . . . you'd swear he'd missed his calling by not having become a vocational chef. Try his recipe for Swedish Meat Balls and you'll agree.

SWEDISH MEAT BALLS

1 lb. ground steak
¾ cup rye bread crumbs
1 tsp. Ac'cent
1 cup cream (half & half)
Salt and pepper to taste
2 tblsp. butter
4 tblsp. cooking oil
1 tblsp. flour
1 cup sour cream
½ cup dry cooking wine

Mix ground steak, cream and rye bread crumbs together with salt, pepper and Ac'cent seasoning. Form mixture into very small balls (marble size). Heat butter and cooking oil together till it begins to brown and quickly cook balls in fat. When they are evenly browned, add about 1 tablespoon flour, sour cream and wine. Stir till sauce is blended, but does not boil. Place in preheated chafing dish for serving.

LONG BEACH STATE COLLEGE EVENTS

—by PLACER MINER—

Long Beach State College campus is booming again after a busy three days of registration and with spring semester classes resuming tomorrow. But before we take note of a crowded activities calendar, we'd like to look back at a couple of groups here at LBSC.

First, the Men's Physical Education Club. Gene Stemm, secretary and membership chairman, listed a few facts for his organization which, with 58 members, is one of the largest in the state. It's still growing, reminds Gene: a drive for 25 new members will soon be under way. The LBSC membership increase last year was the second best in all of California.

Two big projects are occupying the attention of the PE Club these days: sponsoring the annual Brown and Gold Basketball Tournament at the end of the current season and hosting the joint convention of the California Association and the Southwest District of the American Association of Health, Physical Education and Recreation. The latter convocation is scheduled during the Easter holidays in the Long Beach Municipal Auditorium.

Other projects of the Men's Physical Education Club include the editing and distribution of programs at football and basketball games, a contribution of $30 for purchasing books for the divisional library and the purchase of a ditto machine for the use of health, physical education and recreation majors.

A week ago club members relaxed a bit as a good turn out enjoyed a spaghetti dinner before the San Diego State-Long Beach State basketball game.

The other outfit is smaller but just as busy—Statesmen, Men's Service Honorary.

This group, which can be identified by their gray jackets with colorful yellow insignia, has been busy at such varied projects as ushering at ball games, manning the information booth during registration time and guiding visiting groups around the campus. More of the same is in the offing when they serve as pages for the California State Employees' Association convention in Long Beach in a couple of weeks.

Although they added to their membership recently when they presented LBSC President Dr. P. Victor Peterson with a Statesman jacket and welcomed him as their first honorary member, the group is still looking for recruits, says Statesman prexy Doug Strong. Qualifications for membership include a 2.25 grade point average and outstanding abilities of leadership in two or more areas of student life.

Ol' Placer Miner is in the precarious position of knowing that lots is happening in the week ahead, but being at a loss for much specific information on events of the next few days; our lines of communication broke down somewhat during this past week when most people deserted the campus.

We do know that next Thursday noon sees Western music on tap in the Little Theater. The group is the Wagon Masters from Knott's Berry Farm; one of them is enrolled here at LBSC, but couldn't learn his name.

See, too, where Pi Omega Pi, the Business Education Fraternity, will be meeting in the Soroptimist House from 6 to 11 p. m. on Saturday. Looks like some festivities are on tap, but Joe Rodriguez' group didn't tell us what.

Associated Women Students have a work party scheduled next Wednesday night in the Student Lounge from 7 to 10 p. m., but once again our information on this affair is conspicuous by its absence. Puzzling thing about this one is that Connie Garr is AWS prexy. What's up, Connie? You usually keep us right up to date. Got laryngitis or something?

Only group we could discover listing a valentine party as such was Omega Alpha Delta, women's education honorary group. We think it is Saturday night, but otherwise we're completely in the dark.

Safety Play Scores Goal

I am indebted to J. G. Ripstra and Marty Nelson of Wichita, Kansas, for today's hand. Both the bidding and play are of interest.

Nelson's three diamond response showed a very big hand, so Ripstra marked time by merely rebidding to three spades. Nelson just went to game. He had shown strength and it was up to Rip to go on if a slam could be made.

That is just what Rip did. He bid five clubs to show that ace, whereupon Marty bid five hearts to show control in that suit.

Rip's jump to six spades closed the bidding. Marty did consider the grand slam, but decided against it because he could not be sure that trumps were solid and that there was no diamond loser.

The jack of hearts was opened and dummy's ace held the first trick. Then Ripstra made a simple safety play. He led the deuce of trumps from dummy. When East played the four spot he merely played the ten.

When West showed out, Rip laid down the ace of trumps to drop East's jack, conceding one trick to the king.

This safety play was a sure thing against any combination of trumps. Rip could afford to lose one trick but not two.

With any two-one trump break he automatically would lose one trick with this play. If West had held three trumps, East would have shown out whereupon Rip would have played his ace and then led toward dummy's queen.

Of course the hand would have been lost if West had made a singleton honor and then given his partner a ruff. But that was much less likely than the three-nothing trump break.

She Still Fights the Civil War

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

Every time it gets near Abraham Lincoln's birthday, I get ready for a small tantrum from my otherwise charming wife. It reminds her of how mean the North was to the "little old South."

I turn into a cruel Yankee who just doesn't understand the feelings of a true Southern belle, and there are great recriminations about the terrible things the North did during the War Between the States.

I suppose all this sounds nuts, so let me start at the beginning. My wife and I have been married 10 years. We met in Memphis, Tenn., when I was stationed near there. After the war we moved North — and there weren't many arguments about it.

My wife is given to soft talk and giving the air of a grand Southern lady. But, believe me, I've heard her talking to the grocer when she thought she was overcharged, and there was pure steel in her voice. She also held down a job in an office "up Nohth" for the first three years we were married, and did it very efficiently.

The accent is about three-fourths gone now, until Feb. 12 arrives. Then something about all the observances of Lincoln's birthday sets her off and away we go. She can't see how so many people can possibly like a man who did "that to the South." Things get more than chilly for about a week—they get downright frigid.

I don't suppose this year will be any different from the others, unless you can think of some miracle. What say?
—MAN FROM THE NORTH

DEAR MAN FROM THE NORTH:

One thing I'm not going to do is wind up in the middle of a re-enacted battle of the Blue and the Gray. The first affair was tragic. Since then, some of the scraps about the relative merits of the causes have been funny, but some have been bloody, too.

The important thing your wife ought to realize is that the Civil War was over a long time ago. We're all part of one nation again, thank God, and the more all of us do to keep it that way, the more wonderful it will be.

But I suspect she isn't going to argue along such lines. This probably started out as a gag for her and has grown into a deadly serious thing.

So why not do the one thing she can't argue with (unless you throw in some uncalled-for heckling)? Take her out as soon as you can to a restaurant specializing in Southern food. There's one in almost every town in the North.

Call up in advance and get them to prepare the finest Rebel-style meal they can—cornpone, chittlin's, everything that says "below the Mason-Dixon line."

If she realizes your sense of humor is unimpaired—and if you intersperse a few remarks about how you love her —I'll bet the Rebel yell will melt into sweet nothings before the evening is over.—M. M.

HOW TARTARS DO IT

The College That Builds Champions

By George Henderson

A HUSH FELL over the vast Olympic Games crowd as a young Negro stepped up to the high jump take-off.

Minutes later, amid a terrific roar of applause, the Stars and Stripes unfurled from the tall flagpoles, the band blared "The Star-Spangled Banner" and the name of a new Olympic champion was announced from the loud speakers.

Winner of the high jump at 6 feet, 7 15/16 inches—Cornelius Johnson of Compton College.

That was in Berlin in 1936

"Where is this Compton College?" The question was asked on all sides.

TWENTY YEARS LATER, in 1956, another Compton College Negro athlete, Charles Dumas, topped Johnson's performance at 6 feet 11¼ inches at Melbourne, Australia. He had qualified in Los Angeles Coliseum at 7 feet ½ inch.

This time nobody asked where Compton College was located. Everyone knew. In 20 years, Compton, home of the Terrible Tartars and of the famed invitational track meet, had become known all over the hemisphere.

In its 20-year history, Compton College had sent 11 athletic recordholders to the Olympic Games, held 16 invitational track meets featuring performers from around the globe, won 11 football conference championships and six national junior college gridiron championships.

THE TERRIFIC TARTARS played in six bowl games, four of them in Pasadena, winning five, chalking up a record not even approached by any other junior college in the world.

Swimmers, golfers, bowlers, basketballers, baseball and tennis players—you name the sport—Compton has sent its share of champions into the field. Duke Snider of the Brooklyn Dodgers was a Tartar. The versatile college even sent a hop, step and jump performer to the Clearing record height. Charles Dumas, Compton College athlete and Olympic winner, shows his championship form in the high jump in pre-Olympics tune-up meet.

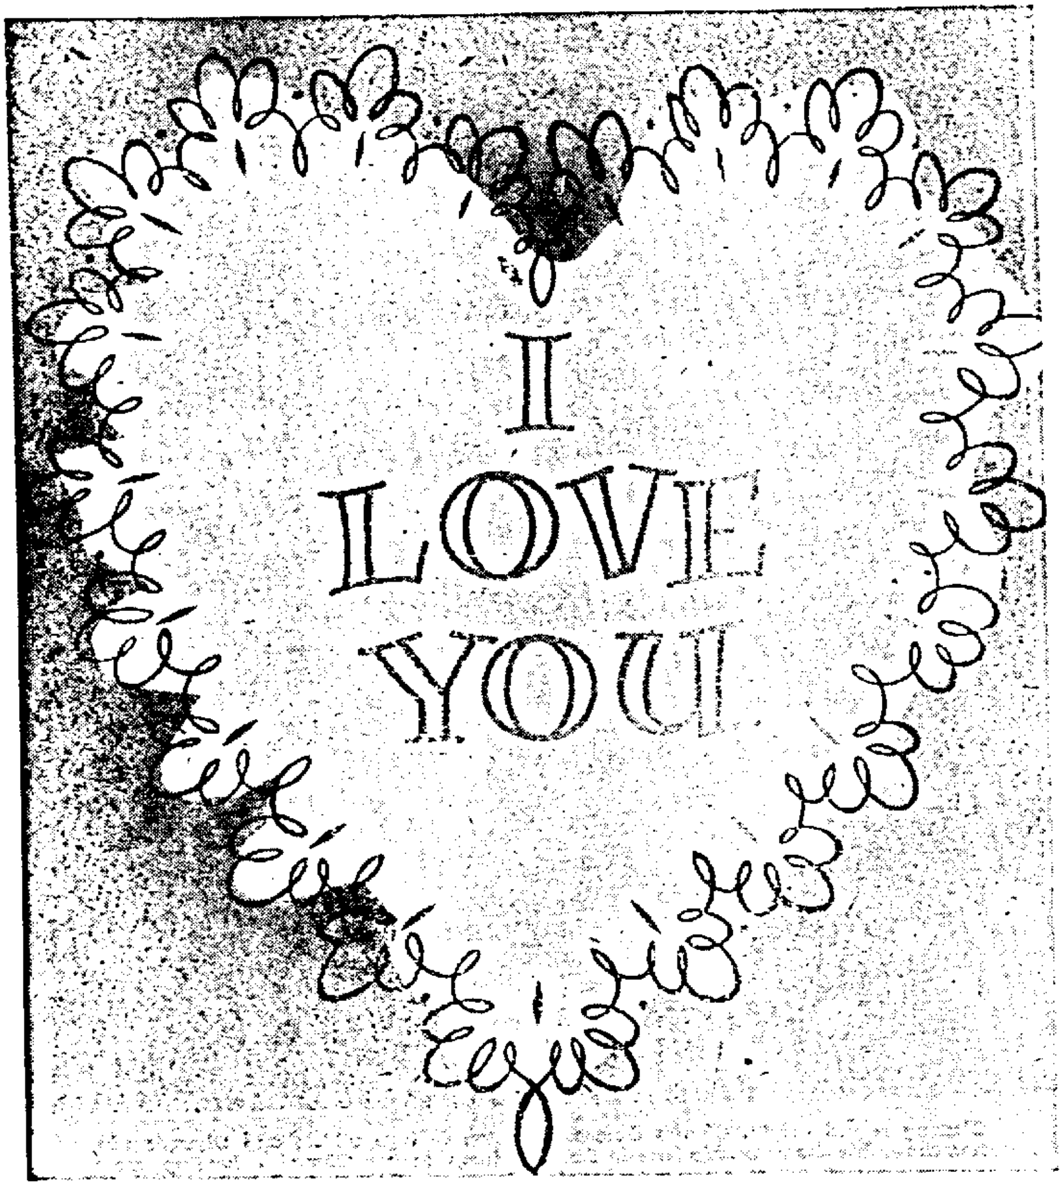
Hugh McElhenny, 49er back, became professional star after Tartar grid start.

Compton College's great football coaching staff includes (L-r.) Ken Carpenter, Tay Brown and Chuck Williams, former stars at University of Southern California.

Cupid's Little Helper



Big business in sentiment is the Valentine industry. Valentines may come and Valentines go, still the most popular sentiment—and best seller—is "I Love You."

By Betty DeWeese

YOUNG PEOPLE in ancient Rome seeking the answer to the eternal query, "Who shall my beloved be?" held an annual lottery to honor their god Pan and goddess Juno. From this lottery they hoped to discover their true love.

Always held in February, this lottery survived through the centuries and historians claim it is the true origin of the day called St. Valentine's.

With the coming of Christianity, Feb. 14 was named in honor of several saints named Valentine. Somehow the lottery came to be held on that day, although historians still scratch their heads over why any of the saints should be associated with it.

BUT LIKE A KISS, St. Valentine's Day wasn't analyzed by our amorous ancestors; they just enjoyed it.

Not every Marcus drew the Flavia of his choice—naturally. He soon discovered that the risk of winding up with his neighbor's homely daughter—via a lottery—could be substantially reduced by sending a love message directly to the girl of his dreams.

Little did the young lovers realize that their "sweetheart sweepstake" had taken the first step toward the establishment of a major industry. An industry that today boasts of modern sprawling 10-acre plants, such as that built in recent years by the Rust Craft Greeting Card Co., Dedham, Mass.

Thousands of words, burning with love, were seen lighting the Dark Ages. Chance, via a lottery, was yielding to choice.

THEN SOME anonymous hero of the Middle Ages found that a billet doux in verse yielded greater returns than a prose effort. Postmen were presently stooping under an annual barrage of doggerel, like the following by Sir Henry Wotton in 1119:

This day Dame Nature seemed in love,
The lusty sap began to move,
Fresh juices stirred the embracing vines
And birds had drawn their Valentines.

An English Valentine dated 1684 was outstanding only for its economy of expression:

Good morrow Valentine
God send you ever
To keep your promise and be constant ever.

Valentines were not yet for sale. They were all homemade, with little pictures pasted on by hopeful lovers. One of the first and subsequently the most popular of all pictures, besides Dan Cupid with his famous weapon, was that of a loving couple seated under a bower of flowers. A church in the distance delicately hinted of the happy day to come. This picture became as standard to the lace Valentine as the Three Wise Men on Christmas cards.

SINCE FEW young people write verse easily, it is no surprise that middlemen arose to aid hopeful lovers. In 1797 a book appeared in England called "The Young Man's Valentine Writer." It was crammed with sentiments of all kinds in verse, arranged according to the sender's trade. The village bricklayer, for example, might wing these words to his damsel:

With mortar and trowel
You know I do no ill,
But a mansion can raise very high.
Then, sweet Valentine,
If you will be mine
You shall have a fine house built by.

and could receive this answer from her, possibly delivered by an 18th Century kid brother pressed into service:

My charmer, my sweet,
I will kneel at your feet,
And to your fond wishes incline;
Your mansion so great,
So charming and neat,
Will please your own Valentine.

She really wasn't poetically gifted. She simply bought a book containing, among other verses, suitable Valentine replies to lawyers, sailors, weavers, glaziers, fishmongers or—lucky girl—bricklayers.

By the 19th Century the famous lace Valentine bearing pretty sentiments was in vogue. Many hearts must have skipped a beat upon receiving this token of love so delicately packaged:

Naught on earth can break the spell
That bends my heart to thee.

LATE IN THE same century the "vinegar" or "comic" Valentine so dear to rejected suitors and other malcontents appeared. Probably the most comprehensive collection of these "missiles" of love has been collected by the Rust Co. for a greeting card museum

For the young lady who cared little for an acquaintance there was available a valentine with a drawing of a penknife—to let him know where he stood. Beneath the title, "A Smart Blade," appeared this rhyme:

If the truth must be told
You cut it all too fine,
You're a smart-looking blade
But no favorite of mine.

If the unfortunate male still didn't get the point, the lady might clarify her position with the valentine picturing a fellow with a red nose, big feet, prominent teeth and uncombed hair. The verse accompanying this sad creature read:

You shouldn't hold your head so high,
You are not such a famous guy,
You only think of pride and self
And ought to go and drown yourself.

The Valentine idea was a little slow in reaching America. It wasn't until the 1840's that Esther A. Howland of Worcester, Mass., decided it was time Americans showed their sentimental side and became this country's first Valentine publisher. She had not misread the American character, for she did a booming $5,000 worth of business in her first year.

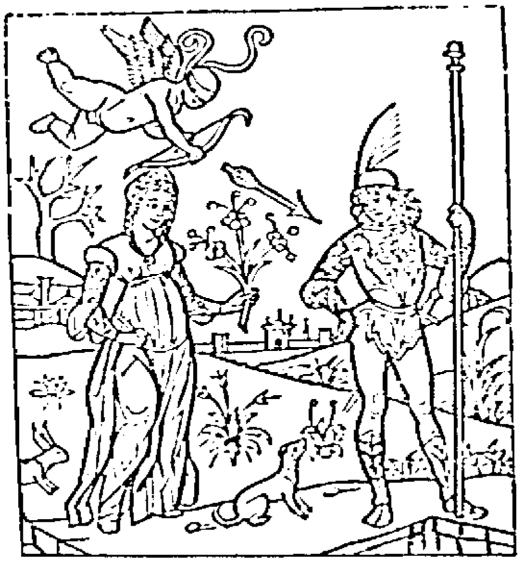
ACCORDING TO the dean of the greeting card industry, Ernest Dudley Chase, vice president of the Rust Co., "Miss Howland, in the business of creating lacy and sweet missives of love, died a spinster at the age of 78." This humorous observation is made in Chase's history of the greeting card industry, "The Romance of Greeting Cards."

Since then the valentine in America has faithfully mirrored the times. During World War I, for example, the colors red, white and blue were widely used. The ages of jazz, swing and be-bop, of bobbed hair and short skirts, of Dior frills and fancies have also been pictorially reflected in the valentine card.

DEALERS HAVE amassed many amusing stories on the human interest side of their retail trade. Perhaps the most oft repeated story is that of the man who buys a 5-cent "wife" valentine and several high-priced "sweetheart" ones in addition.

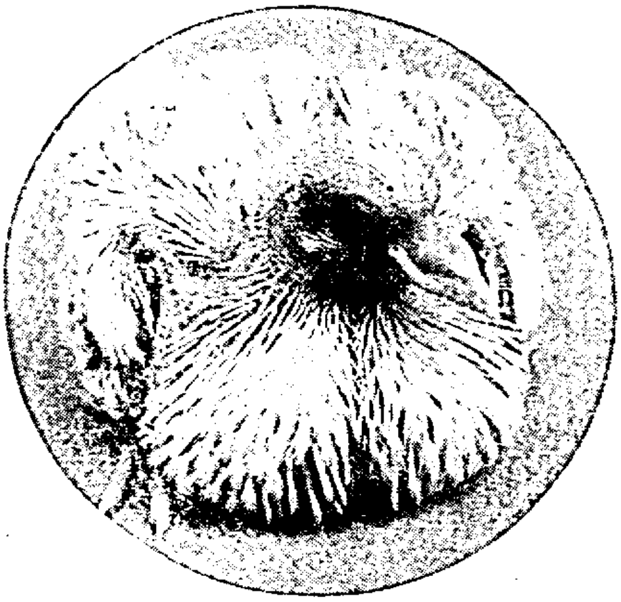
Among the all-time valentine favorites is one involving the young lady who had quarreled with a gentleman high on her "prospect" list. After much deliberation, she bought a $2.50 Valentine and sent it to him. The following year she returned to the store for a "To My Dear Husband" valentine.

Where else can a gal get so big a return on a $2.50 investment?



Some collectors believe this picture to be the oldest of the world's Valentines.

"Mechanical" Valentines have increased in vogue; this one from the early 1800s.



Seven-day-old White King squab. Such birds form basis of ages-old hobby, business of squab-raising, eating.

Hundred-foot rows of breeder pens line each side of the J. Von Horn squab ranch in Van Nuys, one of successful producers in L. A. metropolitan area.

Squab-Dinner Factory

By Jack B. Kemmerer

SQUABS—YOUNG PIGEONS—have been eaten and enjoyed for thousands of years. In fact, breeding of racing, fancy and "eating" pigeons has been both a hobby and a business of millions of people, starting before the dawn of history and continuing to the present day. While history doesn't record when the pigeon was first used as a food, it stands to reason that young, tender squabs were as prized a delicacy in ancient days as they are now.

The French, with their unsurpassed skill in the culinary arts, were the first to specifically [illegible] the breed so as to produce a squab of superior quality. Since that early day, squab raising has been a profitable—and sometimes very unprofitable business for many people.

Squab raising was unprofitable for many people simply because they started a business venture in an extremely unbusiness-like manner [illegible] little or no experience or knowledge of pigeons.

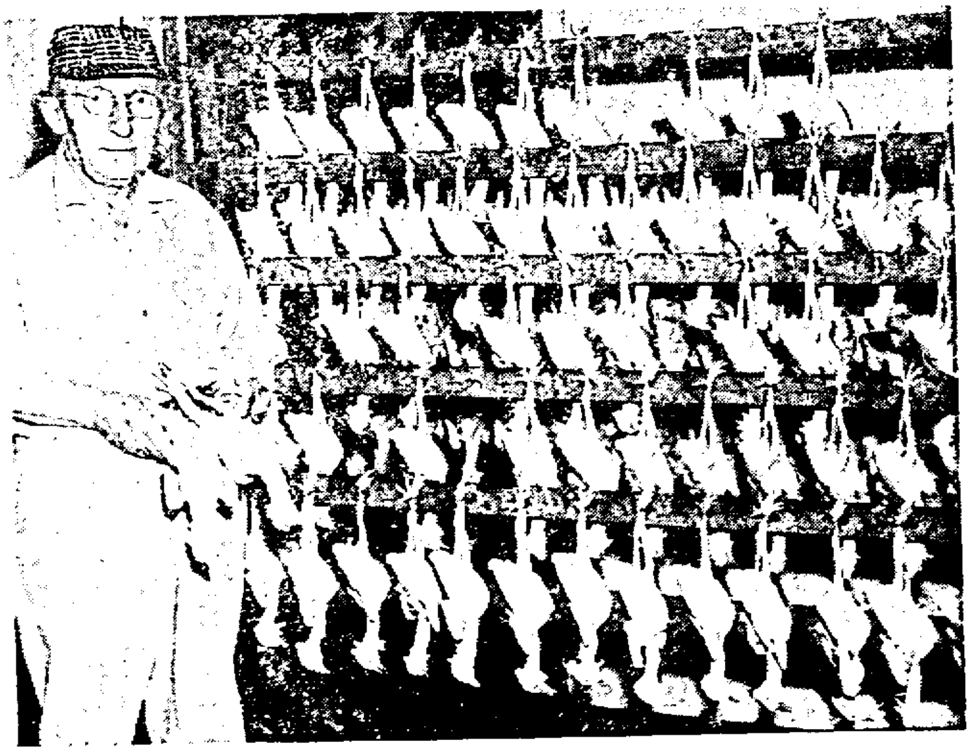
J. Von Horn and his wife, Min, of Van Nuys, are 20-year veterans in the squab business and their modern ranch on one acre of ground is one of the finest in the country.

Squab raising is not a get-rich-quick scheme as many people find to their dismay. According to Von Horn, it's a business where efficient management is probably the one most important thing—along with accurate records of each pair of breeders. Von Horn keeps approximately 1,300 pairs of White King pigeons which produced a little more than 21,800 squabs in 1956, of which 17,000 were sold and the remainder kept as replacements for the breeder stock.

Let's take a look at Von Horn's modern ranch and see how he can sell 17,000 squabs each year from an acre of ground.

Squab at 26 days is held by Mrs. Von Horn. The bird is ready for market and now weighs more than parents.

Each pigeon in a 10-foot pen is leg-banded with nest number. If anything happens, replacement easily made.



All of Von Horn's squabs are New York dressed, meaning that only feathers are removed. They are washed, cooled in water and then put into freezer.

Julie London is the better half of a flipped career story that casts ex-hubby Jack Webb in lesser role.

HOLLYWOOD

She Makes Love With Melody

By James Bacon
Associated Press Writer

THREE YEARS AGO, Julie London was known as Jack Webb's former wife.

Now they sometimes refer to Webb around town as singer Julie London's former husband.

That just about tells the story of an amazing flip of careers since the beautiful Julie and TV's Sgt. Joe Friday were divorced in November 1953.

Then she was just a gorgeous gal with two small daughters and a half million dollar alimony settlement. She had once been an actress, but her singing had been largely confined to the shower.

TODAY SHE IS one of the nation's top female vocalists, and a movie actress much in demand. Her performance as the alcoholic girl friend of a TV idol in "The Great Man" may well bring her a nomination as best supporting actress for the 1957 Academy Awards.

In Las Vegas, her act commands $10,000 a week. Her very first record, "Cry Me a River," sold more than a million copies. Her first album, "Julie Is Her Name," was the nation's top selling album for five straight weeks and wound up seventh for 1956, even in the year of Presley.

Her new album, "Calendar Girl," in which she sings a song for every month of the year is selling even faster. Its cover, depicting Julie in a dozen revealing cheesecake photos, has done the sale no harm. Liberty Records, a little known label, was pushed into a major spot in the industry by her success.

ON THE OTHER hand, there was no hotter property in television in 1953 than Jack Webb. His "Dragnet" battled "I Love Lucy" for the top-rated show, week after week. Then along came rival CBS with "Climax," a drama series that finally cut "Dragnet" out of the Top Ten list. This year Webb produced and directed "Noah's Ark," a series about veterinarians and animal patients. It didn't catch on, and is being dropped.

How does Julie feel about the reverse twist on her — and Webb's fortunes?

"I don't cheer anyone's bad luck," she answers, "least of all the man who is the father of my two girls. Yet, I would be lying if I said there was no self satisfaction. I am only human. There's bound to be some elation.

"I guess any divorced woman would understand how I feel."

JULIE AND WEBB were married for seven years. She was a successful contract player at Universal-International Studios with a number of roles to her credit. Webb worked steadily as a radio actor but was a comparative unknown at the time.

Julie gave up her career to become a wife and mother and Webb zoomed to fame with "Dragnet." When she won her divorce she testified that "Jack was married to 'Dragnet,' not to me."

Webb later married actress Dorothy Towne. Julie has not remarried, although her steady boy friend is composer-pianist Bobby Troup.

Troup, who describes himself as the only saloon pianist with a Phi Beta Kappa key, is the composer of such hits as "Route 66," "Daddy" and "Julie Is Her Name," dedicated to you know whom.

She credits the onetime University of Pennsylvania jazz combo leader for the upsurge of her singing career.

"She used to sing around the piano at home," Troup remembers. "She had an unusual throaty quality about her singing and what's more she hit every note right on the button, more than you can say for most present-day singers. I urged her to try singing but she wasn't too keen about it."

ONE NIGHT SHE and Troup were in an intimate night club off the Sunset Strip so inti-

SOUTHLAND'S SHORT SHORT STORY

Davey's Grin

By Ellen R. Levesque

Illustrated by Clyde Winslow

ANYONE COULD TELL you—that is, if you were interested and bothered to ask—that little Davey could have anything he wanted by just grinning.

His mother stood looking down at him now with positive fear in her eyes. She couldn't—she just wouldn't—give in, not this time.

Thinking back, she knew it was completely her fault for letting him have his way from the start, the very first time he grinned at her. He was such an adorable little guy, his blond curls and laughing eyes seemed to melt her every resistance.

He never cried when he wanted something, not Davey. He'd just grin and there you were, doing his bidding.

THERE WAS THE TIME when he was sick and had to take that awful tasting medicine. He pushed the half-filled spoon up to her mouth—that was when he had first used the "you first, Mommie" grin. Of course she gave in, and golly, that was awful tasting stuff. Thank goodness they were putting more medicine in pill form now.

That illness, by the way, was caused from too much ice cream which Mommie felt she was forced to pay for since the ice-cream man couldn't resist Davey, either, and she didn't want charity.

Then there was the carnival—he wanted to ride the merry-go-round "on a horse all my own." He was so little, and this time he used his "just once, please" grin. As the horses started going around faster and faster Davey let go to wave as he flew by her and Daddy, and there he hung, one foot in the stirrup as Daddy went tearing around the merry-go-round trying to jump on to make the rescue.

WAS HE FRIGHTENED? Not Davey! He just clapped his little hands and chirped, "Wheee!" while Daddy panted and snorted, trying to rearrange his very-mussed up attire.

His "angel" grin was her favorite. She could never resist that one. Davey would use it when he wanted the bowl Mommie had made the cake frosting in, or when he'd bring a stray dog or cat in to be fed.

Then there was the "pleased" grin, that usually meant trouble; like the time when everything had been mighty quiet around the house for a little too long, and suddenly Davey came sliding out of the bathroom with that unmistakable "pleased" grin. His pride was boundless as he took his mother's hand and led her towards the bathroom.

"Davey make cake for Mommie," he grinned.

YES, INDEED, Davey had made a cake, all right. There in the middle of the floor was a beautiful mound of Daddy's shaving lather with several pink and blue candles poking out of the folds, and a ribbon of toothpaste forming the outer edge of the cake plate.

You just couldn't spank Davey. He really thought he had done a bang-up job on his cake and, well—hadn't he?

Today was Davey's birthday. He was three. Mommie had decided that it was time Davey should start growing up. She made a resolution this morning, after the scene on the street car coming to town. He had spotted the long cord hanging by the conductor and he gave her that "just once, please" grin. The first thing she knew Davey was yanking on the cord and the street car started up before all the passengers had boarded. Of course, the conductor didn't have to be quite so rude, but she must start refusing Davey his every want. That was her resolution.

And now as she stood there looking down at him she knew it had to be now or never for he was looking at her with that "you first, Mommie" grin and pushing her towards the chair.

She had brought him up town to get his first "little boy" haircut.

"Davey make cake for Mommie." Yes indeed. Davey had made a cake all right.

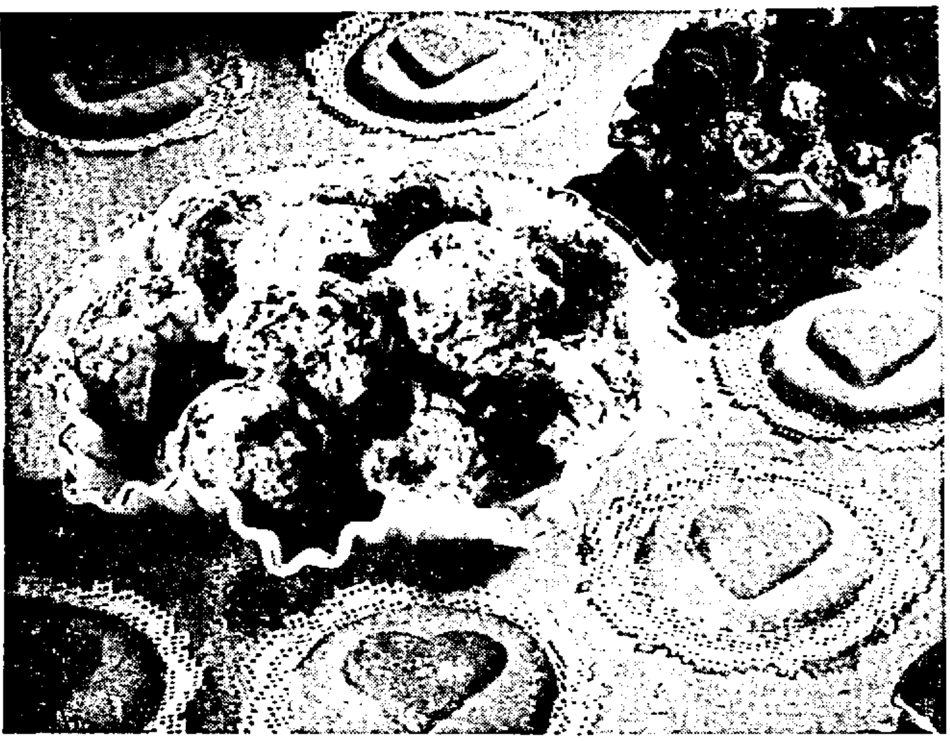
FOOD

Valentine Desserts

By Mildred K. Flanary

Independent, Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor



Easy to make in the refrigerator is Prune - Strawberry Mousse. These fruits combine in delicious blend and make an excellent refreshment for partytime.

FEBRUARY brings us one of the year's best excuses for having a party—Valentine Day, with its sweetheart theme and dainty accessories.

And it's fun to fancy up food and decorate with flowers for the occasion. Ice cream and cookies, an ever-popular combination for refreshments, can be part of the decorations when the ice cream is Prune-Strawberry Mousse.

Strawberries make it pink and pretty, and prunes give nice flavor and color contrast. As an extra special flourish, spoon additional frozen strawberries, slightly thawed, over balls of the mousse and add a few whole prunes for garnish. Make pretty sugar cookies by cutting large rounds with a fluted cutter. Color part of the dough pink, and cut hearts from it. Center a pink heart on each white circle, sprinkle with sugar and bake as usual. Place each cooky on a lacy paper doily, and they look just like old-fashioned valentines.

Prune-Strawberry Mousse

1½ cups cooked prunes
1 (10-oz.) pkg. frozen strawberries
3 egg whites
Few grains salt
½ cup sugar
1 cup whipping cream
1 tablespoon lemon juice

Pit prunes and cut in small pieces. Combine with undrained thawed berries. Chill. Beat egg whites with salt until stiff. Gradually beat in sugar. Whip cream until stiff. Fold meringue, cream and lemon juice into fruit mixture. Turn into refrigerator tray and place in freezing compartment with control set at lowest temperature. Freeze without stirring until firm. Reset temperature control to normal. Makes about 1½ quarts.

Perhaps the following recipes will strike your fancy, also:

Almond Candy Cake

Maple Crisp Topping

1½ cups sugar
¼ cup water
¼ cup light corn syrup
1 tablespoon sifted baking soda
2 teaspoons maple flavoring
1 large sponge or chiffon cake

Filling

2 cups whipping cream
2 tablespoons sugar
⅛ teaspoon maple flavoring
1 cup roasted, blanched almond halves

Combine sugar, water and corn syrup in top of double boiler, stirring until well blended. Boil over moderate heat to hard crack stage (310 degrees F.), until a small amount of syrup dropped into cold water will break with a brittle snap. Remove from heat, and stir in soda and maple flavoring. Stir vigorously until well blended, but not enough to destroy foam made by soda. Turn at once into ungreased shallow pan, about 9 inches square. Let stand without moving until completely cold. Knock out of pan, and crush between sheets of waxed paper to make coarse crumbs.

Split cake into 2 equal layers.

Whip cream until stiff. Blend in sugar and flavoring. Spread about half of cream between cake layers. Spread remainder over top and sides of cake. Cover cake very thickly with Maple Crisp crumbs, and stick almond halves porcupine fashion over top and sides of cake.

Makes 16 to 20 servings.

Family Home That Stays Young

Victorian antiques set the mood for the "parlor" of the Kelly Kirkwoods' home which has never been permitted to become static or out of fashion.

By Eileen Ball

THE KELLY KIRKWOOD home, 3838 Pine Ave., is a family dwelling — a home that has provided continuous pleasure for its occupants for 18 years; but it has never been permitted to become static in the way that some houses do as the years pass. It has never become out of style, cramped or generally overlooked with the passing of time. The Kirkwoods, a family of four, enjoy their home today as much as they did on the day that they moved in.

One important reason for this contentment is the location. Built on a lot that was, for the most part in a semi-undeveloped fringe of Los Cerritos, the neighborhood has continually developed and blossomed into one of the very most desirable residential areas of the city. The trees are tall and gracious now, and the surrounding homes are compatible with their quiet architecture, their immaculately tended lawns.

The Kirkwoods' mutual love of antiques is immediately obvious the minute one steps into the quiet little entry hall with white-and-gold medallion wallpaper. Far, opposite the front door, is a very old table that stands under a mirror with a baroque frame. The wallpaper is bone-white and punctuated with medallions in gold. Suspended from the ceiling is a sparkling light fixture of clear glass in the multi-faceted shape of a star.

FIRST IMPRESSION of the living room is one of deep comfort, great hospitality and livability. Everything in the room is loved - that much is apparent. Nothing has been given "house room" for the sake of showmanship or prestige. There is a feeling of warmth that even the most unobservant visitor must surely sense. The walls are of a pale sage green. Two of them are paneled, one of them including the fireplace. Wide, vertical wood panels run high as the ceiling and are painted the same soft gray-green as the end walls.

Victorian antiques are used for the most part throughout the room. Contrary to popular conception, these are comfortable, easy pieces of furniture to live with. Near the fireplace is a small Victorian wood-framed rocker upholstered in ashes of roses velvet, intricately tufted, beautifully preserved. At the other side of the fireplace is a larger, contemporary chair upholstered in unglazed chintz in an old English hand-print . . . the same fabric that was used for the draperies.

ACROSS THE ROOM from the fireplace is the sofa — a simple, lawson-styled piece covered in soft ashes of roses silk. End tables, which look very antique, are actually faithful reproductions of old pieces that Kirkwood made of carefully selected wood. On the tables stand antique sandwich glass lamps that were converted from oil lamps to electricity. Their shades of pink and pale rose taffeta harmonize nicely with the sofa. Before the sofa is a cut-down Victorian parlor table with its intricately curved, bevel-edged white, marble top conforming to the elegant curves of the base.

room is another marble-topped number, a curved-front chest with ornately carved pulls. Over it hangs a small whatnot shelf of dark mahogany.

Just inside the entry is a quaint arrangement composed of an antique console table, a large, tapestry-covered loveseat and a little green leather lounge chair. The grouping is adequately and charmingly lighted by an old double-chimney hurricane lamp that stands on the console.

THE DINING ROOM is separate from the living room but carries the same color scheme. It, too, has walls of pale sage, defined by a low wainscot. Above this delineation (on the wall opposite the double doors leading from the living room) is a mural of flowers that carries the same dusty rose tones used predominantly in the living room. Standing against this wall is one of Mrs. Kirkwood's most treasured antiques -- a Dutch chest of drawers that is over 200 years old. The fat drawer pulls of clear glass are, in themselves, invaluable. A crystal chandelier hangs over the traditional table to cast flickering lights over this charming room.

The kitchen is, however, the real heart of this house. It has been remodeled a couple of times and added to until now it is a room that is all of these things: sizable, up-to-the minute, and infinitely attractive.

The floor features a blend of soft browns and terra cotta shadings in a linoleum that patterns itself after a basket-weave texture. All the cabinets are of solid, natural colored oak with round oak knobs. Counter tops are pale yellow tile. The ceiling of the kitchen is papered in the same lively lime and turkey red provincial medallion print as are the walls of the dining area, an integral part of the preparation area of the kitchen.

Defining the two and delineating the break between the areas is a change in ceiling slope. That over the preparation area is level; over the dining vicinity it is sloped with natural wood facing and exposed beams. Over the round table that is surrounded with antique tavern chairs hangs an antique angle lamp that has been copper-plated.

WOOD CORNICE BOXES frame the windows that are softened, inside the scallops, with small ruffles of lime and deep red cotton.

A built-in service bar that doubles as a 'partytime buffet stands between the dinette and a service porch that adjoins the den.

Los Cerritos home of the Kirkwoods looks much younger than its 18 years. Proper grooming keeps it that way.

The den-family room is a recent addition to the house, having grown from a small porch that fitted into the "U" formed by the house itself. So skillfully has the remodeling taken place there is little of the "added on" feeling that accompanies so many well-intended projects.

The new room has been paneled in natural mahogany as high as the ceiling which is sloped with exposed beams spanning down to the wall of glass. The latter opens to a bricked terrace. All along one side of the room are built-in cabinets composed of both open and closed storage. Enclosed are television, hi-fi components, records and games. Books and periodicals line the open shelves.

On the wall of the room opposite hangs a framed map, a huge antique print of North and South America showing wagon trails and territories. It is dated 1855. Below it stands a modified wing sofa upholstered in black, brown and white tweed. The carpet for the room is green, beige and brown tweed. Sage green tweedy linen draperies draw across the glass doors.

The master bedroom features a four-poster bed spread with an heirloom coverlet of eggshell that overlays a dust ruffle of rose. Clusters of pink cabbage roses are arranged on white wallpaper. Full organdy tiebacks dress the windows in snowy frills.

THE GUEST ROOM (the Kirkwoods' daughter's before she was married) is similarly furnished with antiques set against a background of complete femininity. Small clusters of Cecil Brunner roses are set within pale grey medallions on the wallpaper. An antique curved-front washstand with white marble top and quaint carved drawer pulls serves as a charming dressing table. The bed is spread with a green and white quilt.

The Kirkwoods' son's room is located at the back of the bedroom wing. Tweed-print wallpaper, natural pine shutters and a cinnamon carpet set the masculine scheme. Twin beds share a wide and good-looking bookcase headboard that Kirkwood made in his workshop. Exceptionally handsome is the chest of drawers of solid maple that was also handmade.

Was Lincoln a Ladies' Man?

ALTHOUGH Abraham Lincoln's reputation as an awkward, bashful swain is authentically established, the innumerable tales surrounding him persist as interesting sidelights. Strange as it may seem, at least 18 females participated in his "love life."

The illusive accounts of Ann Rutledge being Lincoln's only and great love have long been regarded as fantastic. In fact some authorities throw them out entirely. Irrefutable records show that at the time Ann died, she was betrothed to John McNamer, in whose house she was living with her parents. Important as this "episode" may have been, it should not be digested with any more fervor or seriousness than the stories of the other "would-be wives" of Abe Lincoln, say many historical authorities.

Abe's first love was a "covered-wagon" girl. When he was a small boy, according to legendary tales, a wagon broke down near the Lincoln cabin in Indiana. Among its detained occupants was a little girl. Abe took a startling fancy to her. In the years that followed, in fact, he decided that the affection for her was the beginning of love for him. But Polly Richardson and Elisabeth Tully challenged this, Polly saying, "He asked me to marry him, but I refused. I 'spose if I had a'known he was to be President some day, I'd a took him." And Elisabeth echoing dully—"No, he never proposed, but I could tell from his chat he wanted to marry me!" At this time, Abe had just passed his 12th birthday.

ONE OF ABE'S Indiana "sweethearts" known simply as Sarah, was confident she could have married Abe, "if I'd wanted to." When questioned further about her romance with the future President, she hung her head and said: "Well, he took me home from church once!"

Was Abraham Lincoln a ladies' man? History has long list of women who claimed interest in him.

By Helen Johnson

Small things such as Abe's befriending a girl in a spelling match seemed to pave the way to something significant. At least, Kate Roby thought so. But Abe's inherent interest in science rather than her "bleeding heart," caused rebellious Kate to put an abrupt end to the budding romance.

In his hectic days as ferry man on the Ohio River, Lincoln often crossed over into Kentucky. At a husking bee, Caroline Meeker, a fair-faced girl, discovered a red ear of corn. She

Violence in Dixie

WHIT BURNETT

Twenty of the world's outstanding thinkers from various professions reveal the deepest meanings they have found in life in "This Is My Philosophy" (Harper, $4.95). Edited by Whit Burnett, whose previous anthologies "This Is My Best" and "The World's Best" were high on best-seller lists, this new collection is inspiring because it sets the reader to searching for the deep meanings in his own life.

THE SOUTH in the middle of the 19th century was not a place of magnolias, tiny-waisted women in ball gowns, gentlemen with courtly manners, happy Negroes. It was a place of violence and cruelty, lust, hatred and greed, according to Kyle Onstott in his "Mandingo" (Denlinger's, $4.95). "Mandingo" is a huge, "Gone With the Wind" type of book, 659 pages long with every close-packed page steeped in violence.

Onstott says he wrote "Mandingo" under a compulsion to tell of the South as he learned of it, appalled and horrified, from the first-hand, word-of-mouth stories told him by slaves and former masters of slaves. He listened, as a child, to a Negro who boasted of having been a plantation stallion in his youth; to old white men who smilingly remembered interludes with every dark-skinned woman and girl on their fathers' plantations; of Negroes who told about having been seduced by white owners and the sons and neighbors of white owners.

"Mandingo" is Mede, a perfect black specimen brought to breed up the Negro stock of the fading plantation, Falconhurst. The novel is about him; his masters, Warren and Hammond Maxwell; Ellen, a dark-skinned sensuous beauty; Blanche, Hammond's unloved wife. It also is about

Shrine of Faith

By John Ronson

Mission San Rafael Arcangel (above) has been rebuilt on its original site and holds historical collection.

GONE IS THE TUMULT and the terror of Indian raids and Mission San Rafael Arcangel, in modern restoration, stands in peace and tranquillity in the Redwood Empire community of San Rafael, 16 miles north of San Francisco.

Life at the mission was not always so, however, for the early settlement that surrounded the institution pulsed with the activities of some 3000 Indians over whom hung the threat of attack from their wilder brethren living back in the hills. In 1829, a band of 2,000 fierce tribesmen poured down upon the little mission, looting it of all that seemed worth bearing away and carrying off 200 of the mission neophytes into captivity.

BUT STILL greater misfortune awaited the then fairly young outpost of the Franciscan padres who established it in 1817, only 41 years after the American Revolution, as the last, but one, they were to build in California.

In 1834, Gov. Figueroa decreed secularization of all missions in California. San Rafael went into decline and by 1861, the building was in complete disrepair. Remains of the buildings were then torn down and the materials used for the construction of other institutions.

A MOVE to restore the historic structure began in the 1900's and a special committee spent 10 years in research before breaking ground for the restoration in 1949.

Now fully restored, the mission contains a chapel, a sacristy, a visitors' gallery and a historical museum. Objects in the museum are a direct link with the original mission. Here are Indian artifacts, ancient pestles and mortars, the habits worn by the Spanish fathers, the stoneware used by the Indians, ancient adobe blocks and many other articles antedating the Bear Flag Rebellion in 1846, at nearby Sonoma, which eventually brought California under the Stars and Stripes.

THE LAST of the 21 missions in California was established in 1823 at Sonoma, some 25 miles to the north of San Rafael. Gen. Vallejo also set up a post at Sonoma in order that he might keep a watchful eye on Russian colonists on the coast farther to the west. He also built a historic outpost of adobe on a 70,000-acre ranch near Petaluma.

Fort Ross, which the Russians occupied from 1812 to 1841, the Sonoma Mission, General Vallejo's home in Sonoma and the Petaluma Adobe are now State Historical Monuments.

Sky Travel Up

In a report to the American Society of Travel Agents, the International Air Transport Association informed the society that a new world record of 78 million passengers was established for 1954, an increase of 15 per cent over the previous year.

Jackie Carter, Valentine Queen of Long Beach City College, reacts to the dialogue in script during a rehearsal in her radio-TV class at the College.

Queen of He♥s on the Campus

By Don Drury

STILL SOMEWHAT breathless, after a dizzying ride on the Wheel of Fortune for the past few weeks, is Jacqueline Rose Marie Carter. Better known as Jackie, she's the Valentine Queen of Long Beach City College and Southland's cover girl for this week.

And she's bewitched, possibly a little bewildered, but not at all bothered by the following events of 1957 to date: (1) election to the spring semester Associated Student Body Cabinet on the Lakewood campus, (2) selection as a member of Kassai, women's honorary service group, (3) receipt of a Five-Jewel Award, highest honor of the Associated Women Students, (4) receipt of a Viking Award for scholarship and outstanding achievement in school activities, and (5) her nomination as Queen of the Sweetheart Prom on Jan. 24, Southland Magazine cover girl, and Valentine Queen on Feb. 14.

JACKIE, an 18 year-old blue-eyed blonde, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James William Carter of San Bernardino. For the past three years, however, she has lived in Long Beach with an aunt, Mrs. E. C. Walker, at 4136 Gaviota Ave. After attending Polytechnic High School in her senior year, she enrolled at City College and is now in her fourth semester.

Though her recent string of titles and awards is a bit bedazzling, this sort of thing is not entirely new to Jackie. She is, after all, a former Campfire Girl "Mint Princess" (title gained by selling the most mints in her district), and a former 4-H Club member who once won a national Grange essay contest.

Jackie is inclined to give credit for her current interests and successes to her early days as a 4-H clubber, incidentally. Her youthful prize essay, on the topic "How to Be Good Neighbors," is reflected today in what she regards as her favorite hobby—"people." She learned to sew as an 8-year-old 4-H member, has designed and made most of her own clothes ever since, and plans to go into advertising and promotion, with emphasis on fashions.

JACKIE'S COURSE of study at City College also reflects this interest in people—and in the arts of communication and persuasion. An English major, she is also taking psychology courses and radio-television classes.

Her gifts of persuasion have proved useful to her in campus politics (she's now in her second term on the Associated Student Body Cabinet), as social editor of Saga, the school yearbook, and as an officer of Dasahara, women's social club. She is also secretary of the Lakewood campus chapter of Newman Club.

Jackie's other hobbies include creative writing, reading, horseback riding, swimming, dancing, rooting for Georgia Tech (her father played football there) and LBCC athletic teams.

HER FUTURE PLANS include completing her last two years of college at Long Beach State, getting an advertising-promotion job (preferably in the Long Beach area) for at least two or three years, and sometime or other (no hurry) getting married, acquiring a large family, and living someplace where her children can have a "great big dog and maybe a horse to ride." She also hopes to keep up her interest in "politicking" and public affairs.

Here, then, is a cover girl who can cook and sew, and is otherwise domestically inclined; a career girl who wants a career so that, as she puts it, "I can be in the business world long enough to understand my future husband's problems."

This "future husband," whoever he may be, sounds like a lucky fellow. But meanwhile there is serious-minded Jackie's very definite timetable of college studies and business career. Until then, no suitors need apply.

Smartly dressed Jackie also is good designer and sews well. Here, she works on formal for Sweetheart Prom.

College of Champions

Olympic Games in 1948 — Bob Beckus, Hugh McElhenny, star of the San Francisco 49ers professional football team, was a Compton College Little Rose Bowl participant.

What makes Compton Junior College tick? With its 4,500 pupils on its new 80-acre campus, it is little different on the surface from many colleges. The school does not even have its own athletic stadium. It is in a tax-poor, working-class district of about 100,000 persons. There is no "big money" behind its teams.

THE SECRET of Compton's success is simple - it is esprit de corps, community pride and enthusiasm which packs the high school stadium with Tartar rooters even at minor games.

The Hub City's driving community cooperation is not confined to support of the college. For example, Compton has three armories — Naval, National Guard and Air National Guard — whereas many cities of comparable size have none at all. Local boosters "went out and got 'em," a chamber of commerce official explained. For two of the armories the city donated the sites, just to induce them to locate in Compton.

The same robust community force is credited with helping to bring to the South Compton area the multi-million dollar Dominguez industrial district now being rapidly developed; obtained location here of headquarters for the state employment service and the California Highway Patrol on land donated by the city.

So, it is not strange that such a proud community — one of the oldest cities in Los Angeles County — should make sure that Compton gets and keeps the best coaching staff in the country which, in turn, attracts good athletes from all over the United States.

THE TARTAR football coaches Tay Brown and Ken Carpenter — are nationally renowned. Various universities are constantly bidding for Tay's services. Carpenter in 1936 was Olympic Games (Berlin) discus champion. He was a varsity football player at USC.

Herschel Smith, track coach and former USC champion sprinter, is internationally known not only for his coaching of Cornelius Johnson and Charles Dumas, 20 years apart, but for bringing athletes from far-away places to the 26 invitational track meets.

Since Compton has no "big money" backers, how can Tartarville keep its top-flight coaching talent in face of so much competition?

The answer still is community cooperation, enthusiasm of the most sport conscious small town in the country, but above all "the friendly touch."

For example the Tartar Booster Club, composed of professional and small-business men, entertains at a breakfast the press, players, coaches of the home team and visiting teams before each local game. "Morale building" breakfasts are given once a week at which anyone can make suggestions or present "beefs."

THE BOOSTERS, at the end of the season, stage a big awards banquet where the top athletes and coaches in all sports are given trophies. Demonstrating how the community backs these affairs is the city council's action in voting $275 to help pay for the last banquet, with the chamber of commerce also allocating funds.

Charles Dumas, the modest Negro athlete who won the 1956 Olympic high jump, was given a big community sendoff before he left for Australia.

Dumas went through a gruelling ordeal in Melbourne. He jumped for eight hours, trying in vain to attain the record he had made in pre-Olympic trials. On the last jump to which he was entitled, he won the championship.

Dumas frequently has said that when he faced exhaustion he kept remembering the heartwarming demonstration given him and determined not to let his friends down. That is what the Tartar spirit does for performers!

The internationally known invitational track meet became too expensive for Compton College to handle. The community, led by the Compton Junior Chamber of Commerce, got behind the annual event, held $10 dinners to help finance transportation of foreign athletes to Compton. The council, the chamber of commerce and service clubs donated trophies. And the Invitational did not die.

On one occasion the Tartar varsity was on the verge of defeat. Hundreds of rooters formed a "victory lane" at half time, cheered and encouraged the grid men when they trotted through the lane back to the playing field. Compton won.

AMONG THE OTHER athletes that Compton has sent to Olympic Games were George Jefferson, pole vaulter, 1932; four competitors in 1952, being Sim Iness, who won the discus championship; George Brown, broad jumper; Ed Sanders, heavyweight boxer, and Ellsworth (Spider) Webb, lightweight boxer. The other 1956 entrants were Jerome Walters, 1,500-meter runner; Earlene Brown, woman's discus and shotput champion, and Bockus.

Compton has insisted on top-flight athletes on its various coaching staffs. Athletic Director Earle (Goldie) Holmes was quarterback of a victorious University of Nevada team; Tay Brown was an all-American at USC; assistant football coach Chuck Williams was 1937 captain at USC; assistant football coach Thomas Upton, a one-time major league baseball infielder, now coaches the Tartar baseball team.

SOME TIME AGO Compton College faced a crisis. The school was about to lose the use of the high school stadium for Tartar home games.

To the rescue came community boosters, who held meetings and put over a $2,000,000 bond issue. So in 1959 the Tartars are scheduled to play in their own spanking-new stadium.

La Reina Rule, whose column "What Your Name Means" will be Southland feature.

What Your Name Means

By La Reina Rule

IN AMERICA TODAY we find a fusion of names from all over the world. Our nomenclature is not of any single people. Even though we are an English-speaking nation, we are an amalgamation of many races whose surnames, with the exception of the American Indians, have their roots in other parts of the world.

The study of names is fascinating. They are the key that links us to the past, for their interpretation takes us back into the archives of history. From surnames we learn much about our forefathers' occupations, environment and geographical location. Some were idealized heroes. Their names were words of praise for their merits. Our names are derived from the roots of our present spoken languages — English, German, French, Dutch and others. Etymology and philology reveal the sources of our surnames, as well as much personal family genealogy.

THE MEANINGS of tradenames which became family names, such as Weaver, Mason, Carpenter and Smith (blacksmith) are easily understood, but how many know that Baxter began as Bakester, the term for the women who baked the village bread, or that Fletcher depicted the man who put feathers on arrows, and that Eisenhower in its original form meant "iron hewer," an iron miner.

People throughout the world also adopted names describing their village, valley or meadow of residence. Locations on steep cliffs, woodland dells and ferny glens were depicted in surnames and handed down to descendants. Such sources have given us Clifton, Knowles, Dean, Lee and Ford. Others such as the Swedish name Blomquist (blooming branch), Beechwood, Quackenbush (quaking aspen) and Oakwood were taken from trees and blossoms. Perhaps the most interesting of all to trace are occupational names such as Coward (cow-herd), Calvert (calf-herd), Bailey (from "bailiff") and Woodward, a forest warden.

(Editor's Note: La Reina Rule will endeavor to give those of you who write her in care of Southland Magazine a brief analysis of the meaning of your surnames, a condensed genealogy of the family if the data is available, and a description of the family coat-of-arms if one is on record.)

WAS THE GREAT EMANCIPATOR A LADIES' MAN?

slyly slipped it to the tall young man everybody called Abe. This simple incident started tongues wagging viciously.

Julia Evans, a mill owner's fascinating daughter, and Elizabeth Woods were both captivated at first by the towering young man. But "such awkwardness, such big feet, such habits!" Well, they simply couldn't put up with them!

One cold winter in Indiana, Abe happened to be "snowed-in" at the Warnick farm home. This was not an unusual occurrence in the early days. But it started something. The Warnick's had a beautiful daughter by the name of Mary Delland. By the time the blizzard was over and the digging out began, these same gossips had Abe and Mary Delland married. Imagine their consternation when they discovered their silly mistake as the Warnick's announced their daughter's marriage to another man weeks before the storm!

A MISS MARTHA WILSON said she turned down a "formal offer of marriage' to the future President" because of a previous attachment. Likewise, Elizabeth Bromly's reason for not accepting Abe, ran something like this: "Well, I preferred Mr. Isaac Yokum that's why!"

Another girl, vivacious Susan Reid of New Salem, Ind., who believed that true love is the background of all happy marriages, said:

'How could I possibly love anyone as homely, awkward and superstitious as Abe Lincoln!'

At least two others, Mary Frances and Sarah Rickard, claimed to have held a portion of Lincoln's heart in their dainty hands. Their reason for not allowing Abe's name to be supplemented for their own, no one ever knew.

Most of these "Mrs. Lincoln possibilities" may be partly fantastic legends according to many historians. But enough truth radiates around each to make interesting sidelights of Lincoln's love life. After all, human nature never changes. It is only natural that any girl who ever walked by the future Emancipator's side, would make no hesitation in revealing the fact after he became President. And perhaps, even enlarge upon her chances of becoming mistress of the White House.

ONLY ONE YOUNG woman, as far as authoritative sources can ascertain, received a real proposal of marriage from Abraham Lincoln, previous to his engagement to Mary Todd. Her name was Mary, too; Mary Owens of Kentucky. The romance was genuine and Abe courted her for nearly two years. It was a stormy courtship in that each found flaws in the other. But, regardless of their differences, Abe proposed three times. He was rejected each time. Explaining her refusal of these proposals to her many anxious friends, Mary only said:

"Mr. Lincoln was deficient in those little links which make up the path of a woman's happiness." That was all.

BUT ANOTHER MARY, often called the "most maligned woman in American history," saw beyond Abe's rough exterior. This was Mary Todd. Even though she resented Lincoln's slovenly appearance fully as much as the other Mary, it dwindled little by little. She sensed the greatness of the man. She understood his motives. They were finally married, and their marriage proved a much happier one than their friends had anticipated. Contrary to the belief of some, Mary Todd Lincoln had much to do with her husband's immortality. For she sacrificed herself to the Union as truly as "Honest Abe." In many people's minds, this question often arises:

"Would Lincoln have been as great a man would there have been such an Emancipator—if there had been no Mary Todd?"

Mary Todd Lincoln was the woman who finally said "Yes" and married the Great Emancipator.

mate that it was no bigger than a good sized living room.

"If I ever sing in a club, I'd like a place like this," she said. Troup talked to owner John Walsh who figured—and rightly so—that there would be box-office draw in the singing debut of Jack Webb's former wife.

Both Troup and Walsh worked with Julie and when the big night came, she was so nervous that she forgot the words to a couple of her songs. Right in the middle, she stopped and flatly told the audience so.

"The audience thought it was cute," one first nighter recalls. "And everybody started feeding her the lyrics from their tables. It went over big.

HER ENGAGEMENT was a big success, both for Walsh and also for Julie's confidence.

Julie's range is not great but then neither is Bing Crosby's. Her voice is not powerful like Kay Starr's or Judy Garland's but as one well known singer comments:

"Julie has good pitch, she whispers a song—almost makes love with a melody—and has a style so torchy that it reminds you of the late Helen Morgan."

And that's not bad. In fact, in casting the singer to play the late Ziegfield star on the screen, Julie barely lost out.

"THE TWO FINEST tests of all were Ann Blythe and Julie," said Curtiz. "What decided in favor of Ann was the exploitation value of the shock casting. As everyone knows Ann has led a life entirely different from the tragic life of Helen Morgan but Julie's test convinced me that she is going to be one of the movies' biggest stars before long.

"She can sing, act and what a sexy figure," adds Curtiz. "What more can you ask in a movie star?"

Blanche's revenge for her husband's dallying with Ellen, and Hammond's revenge on his wife and Mede.

MORRIS FISHBEIN, M. D., discusses diseases common to man in "The Handy Home Medical Adviser and Concise Encyclopedia" (Hanover House, $2.95), but while his diagnoses of many ailments are helpful to the layman, he does not always suggest home treatments as do authors of some medical books. A glossary of hundreds of definitions of common ills and ailments, however, adds greatly to the value of the "Adviser."

INDISPENSABLE for travelers abroad, and a handy little book to have in the library is "The Italian Vest Pocket Dictionary" (Random House, $1.25), which is the first Italian-English dictionary of any size to be based on American usage. In addition to 30,000 entries, there is a guide to pronunciations.

IN A LARGE VOLUME, attractively designed and satisfyingly illustrated, Harold Sterling Gladwin traces the arrival and progress of man in what is now the western part of the United States in "A History of the Ancient Southwest" (Bond Wheelwright, $8.50). Mr. Gladwin, an archeologist for more than a quarter of a century, gives the layman an interesting, down-to-earth translation of the meaning of the architecture, pottery, stones and bones unearthed from scores of ancient Indian "ghost towns." California is included.

"I BROUGHT LIFE into the whirlpool of force and compelled my enemy, Matter, to obey a living soul" said Lilith in "Back to Methuselah," by George Bernard Shaw. This is the basis of "Creative Learning," a scientological experiment in schools, by V. Sieux and L. J. Maynard (Scientology Publications, London).

Scientology, it is explained, is a western science of the mind and spirit applied to increase individual ability, and according to the authors gifted, troublesome and backward children all improved with its use.

Important in the understanding of scientology is a study of emotions which run from eagerness and exhilaration at the top through the various stages of interest to contentment, indifference, boredom, open hostility (or resentment), anger, concealed resentment, fear, grief.

The writers believe that a main source of aberrations in the human species is traumas implanted in reactive memory when the analytical mind was fused out and they believe that some of these date back to the pre-natal period.

TRAVEL AND RESORTS

AROUND THE WORLD WITH DELAPLANE

We are taking our two small children with us to Europe this summer. Will we be able to get competent baby sitters in London, Paris, Madrid and Rome?

YOU CAN GET reliable baby-sitters in all of Europe's big hotels. In the small hotels, I used to brace the chambermaid. Either she took care of it or had a sister who would. They all seemed good but usually they don't speak English. Kids like it, though. By the time you get home they've picked up some new language.

A friend and I are leaving shortly for two weeks in the Virgin Islands. We are beginning to get qualms about prices as our vacation budget is a somewhat modest one. How can we pare costs?

THE VIRGIN ISLANDS have been getting more expensive in recent years. A fairly plush New York crowd come in for the six-week federal divorce and this has boosted prices. However, St. Croix is less expensive than St. Thomas and just as good. The port is free and you get good buys on French perfumes and Danish silver. The antiques have been pretty well picked over.

I understand Shannon Airport sells cameras. Would chances be good for picking up a Zeiss Contaflex there? We don't want to wait until we get to Germany.

Shannon Airport had a good camera stock the last time I was through. But I don't know whether they would have a Zeiss Contaflex in stock. Better send in fast airmail to Brendan O'Regan, Shannon Free Airport, Ireland. Tell him what flight you'll be on and ask him if he'll have one. You get only a 45-minute stop at Shannon and it doesn't leave much time for shopping.

I'm used to my electric razor but friends tell me I can't use it on my European trip. What do you know about this?

MOST OVERSEAS electrical current is 220 to 240 as compared to our 110. So you have to get a transformer for an electric razor. Though Remington puts out a razor that is adaptable everywhere by flipping a built-in switch.

Our plugs don't fit — they have a different plug for England, France and Australia, that I can remember. Maybe others. However, big hotels have an adapter plug you plug into.

Your mailed questions will be answered (no phone calls). Send stamped and addressed envelope to Stan Delaplane, Southland Magazine, Independent, Press-Telegram, Sixth and Pine, Long Beach 12, Calif.

CAMERA ANGLES

A Day for Hearts --and Snapshots

By the Shutterbug

A SPECIAL DAY always makes an especially good occasion for picture-taking—and this is the month in which St. Valentine has his day. In his honor, there'll be gifts and greetings, party preparations and decorations — the whole wonderful mixture of love and laughter and lace paper that is the heart of Valentine's Day.

For all the friends and loved ones who can't be with you on this day, why not send a little extra thought along with your greeting card? A snapshot or two of the children laboring over their Valentine artwork - a picture of the pink-frosted angel food cake enthroned on the dining room table—a color shot of your living room decorated in the traditional "Hearts and Flowers" theme -- any of these tucked into the envelope together with your Valentine card will add warmth and pleasure to the message of love it carries.

IT'S TRUE that time is short—but photofinishers are people geared to giving fast service. All you have to do is select the snapshots you want to send, take the negatives into the nearest drug store or camera shop, and order the necessary number of prints. These pictures will say "Happy Valentine" for you in the warmest, friendliest way—which is the true spirit of good old St. Valentine himself.

Pictures like these are easy to make, with flash right on your camera, and make a heart-warming addition to the family album as well as providing wonderful snapshots for sharing.

WINNERS of the monthly print competition of the Professional Photographers Assn. of Long Beach were portrait, Bill Coleman, Perry Griffith, Edna Kenny; commercial, Red Schneider, Bill Coleman, Perry Griffith. Judges were Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Hawkins and Elbert Dole.

LONG BEACH Camera Guild will show the 400 top slides of the 20th annual International Salon of the Circle of Confusion in Charles Evans Hughes Junior High School, 3846 California Ave. at 8 p. m. Friday. This colored slide program is open to the public, with no admission charge.

KODAK'S booklet, "Better Snapshots of Your Children" has been revised to include data on use of the newest color and black-and-white films. Illustrated by pictures from the cameras of amateur photographers, the booklet tells how to take the pictures most parents wish of their children. In addition to showing examples of each type of picture, the type of film, camera settings and lighting to be used are given for each. Priced at 35 cents, it is available through Kodak dealers or may be ordered directly from Eastman Kodak Co., Dept. 25, 343 State St., Rochester 4, N. Y. The 35 cents must be in coins and included with the order.

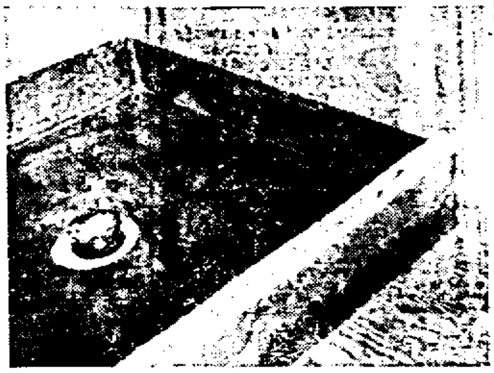
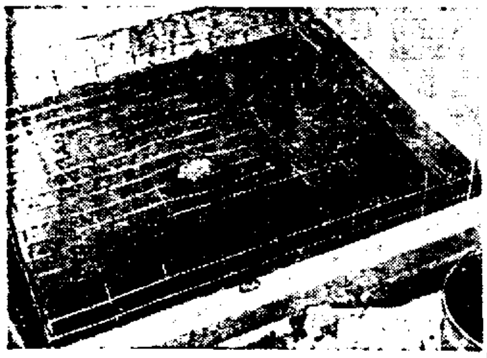
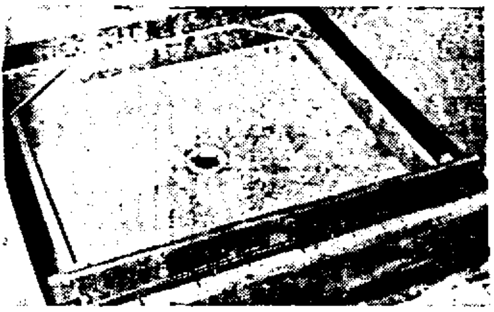
HOW TO Build Shower Floor for Basement Facility or Add to Your Bathroom

1. START MAKING shower floor by soldering heavy lead base to the drain. Any water leaking through concrete floor will then be directed to drain. Lead extends 8 inches up sides. Drain is 2 inches above lead base.

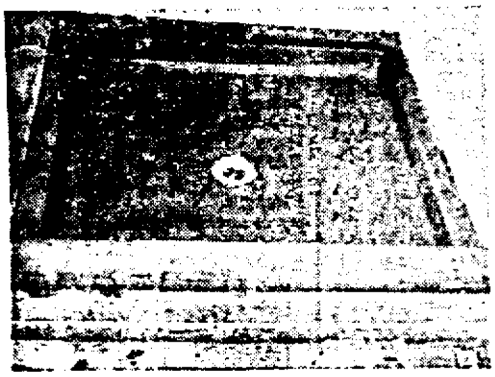




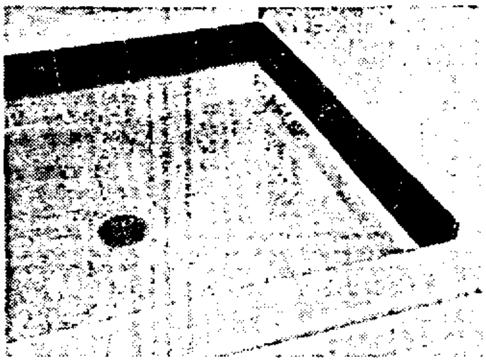
2. PREFORM 2x4-inch welded wire mesh to fit floor. Remove it and pour about 1 inch concrete over lead base. Put in reinforcing mesh and place rest of concrete so it comes to top of drain. Now, smooth with trowel at ¼ to ½-inch slope from edge to drain.



3. AFTER THE base is set, place a wooden frame on the base to support the concrete for 2-inch side sides. Step for the entrance to the shower is made about 6 inches high and 4 inches wide. The reinforcing wire can be shaped to fit around the step so it will be near the center of the concrete.



4. NOW YOU'RE ready for concrete sides. Fill forms so the top edge of the lead pan is exposed. Remove the forms as soon as you can so the curb may be smoothed. A mixture of cement and water will help.



5. THE LOWER edge of the wall covering—plastic tile in this case—should extend slightly below the top of the lead pan. You can paint the concrete a color to harmonize with your color scheme.

PET PARADE

Cats of the Pharoahs

By Eleanor Avery Price

MANY interesting facts stand out about cats. For example, in America there are around 28,000,000 household cats and another unfortunate 2,000,000 wanderers. Approximately 300,000 cats are kept in warehouses, stores, restaurants, factories, wharfs, military bases, and aboard ships. Many receive poor care; others fare very well.

Cats came into being about 40 to 60 million years ago, evolving from Miacis, a weasel-like animal of the Eocene period.

THE FIRST TAME cats were historically recorded in Egypt around 3000 B. C. The Egyptians worshiped cats and built temples to them. They also carved statues of cats and drew pictures of them on their palace walls. They even had a goddess, Pasht, who had a cat head. Such worship – there was a death penalty for anyone who killed a cat possibly stemmed from the fact that cats kept their granaries free of rats.

Descendents of these early-day prized cats mated with the native wildcats to become the common short-haired cats of northern Europe.

IT SEEMS THAT cats arrived in Italy, and possibly elsewhere, carried there by Phoenician sailors who traded them for tin, spices and silks. Greeks and Romans adopted cats and helped spread them through the Middle East and Europe.

As for American cats, the first ones came here with the colonists.

NEXT THURSDAY being Valentine's Day, this week makes an ideal time to tour the several animal shelters in the Long Beach-Los Angeles area and, if possible, to adopt a cat or a dog.

AT THE TRACKING meet in conjunction with the recent Orange Empire Dog Club all-breed show, the only dog to win was a Weimaraner from the Lakewood Dog Obedience Club, Regal-Wunder aus Felsen, U.D.T., known as Rock, owned by Mr. I. B. House, 225 E. First St.

Hurry That Bare-Root Planting

Dual purpose tree—bearing flowers profusely in the spring and fruit later in season—is Saturn peach.

By David I. Gilfillan

TODAY I want to urge each one of you to complete your bare-root planting this week if you can possibly do so. The longer you wait before doing this job, the less chance of success you are going to have after planting.

If you are a new home owner or if you are planning to do a little more landscaping around your place, give some thought to the inclusion of a few fruit and flowering trees.

Speaking primarily to those of you who are newcomers to the Long Beach area (you represent about 90 per cent of our population) be careful about the fruit trees you select for planting, especially stone fruits such as apricots, peaches, plums and nectarines.

To be at their best, these trees must experience a certain chilling period during winter in order to produce any fair amount of fruit. Some varieties will not do well locally while others will be quite satisfactory. A safe rule to follow is to plant the trees you will find at your local nursery.

THE NEW NUGGET apricot should prove to be very popular in this area. It produces good crops of fruit with a minimum of chilling. Other deciduous trees that do fairly well here are the Panamint nectarine, Santa Rosa plum and Meadowlark peach.

If you are somewhat limited for space, the dual purpose or fruit and flowering trees are a good investment.

Latest in this class is the Saturn peach. This dual purpose tree is literally covered with clouds of large, double pink flowers in spring, followed by high quality yellow delicious peaches. Also in this same class is the Daily News 4-Star, a good peach tree that blooms well very early in spring, followed in June with medium-sized white freestone peaches of excellent quality.

IN PLANTING bare-root trees, follow fundamentally the same basic rules as in planting bare-root roses. Make the hole large enough to accommodate the roots without cramping and tamp the soil firmly over the roots.

We find that the root systems on bare-root trees will vary. Some trees have good spreading roots almost similar to the rose while others have shorter roots growing almost straight out from the trunk. Don't think that those with the short roots are not as good as the others. They are.

As with your roses, the important thing to keep in mind in planting trees is to have the soil closely compacted around the root systems. If the roots seem to be somewhat short and growing straight out, it is a good idea to dig the hole large enough to hold the roots and using your spade, throw the soil in around the roots. Be sure that the soil is firmly packed over the roots.

IF THE ROOTS are longer and spreading, prepare a small mound in the bottom of the hole and drape the roots of the tree over the mound, spacing the roots evenly. Incidentally, I never cut the roots on my bare-root roses or trees unless the roots are injured. If the roots are a little too long just bend them around the bottom of the hole.

In planting bare-root fruit trees, the bud or union should be two inches above the surface. This bud, like that of the rose, is easily distinguished. It will be a definite offset four or five inches above the roots.

Fill in the soil over the roots to within three inches of the

DOROTHY DIGS in the garden

By Dorothy Jonson

A program I believe in wholeheartedly is to spread a poultice of humus (steer manure or compost) over the root growing area of the rose bed right after pruning and spraying. This poultice will protect the roses until the time when the new growth is well advanced, because steer manure, particularly, contains from 1 per cent to 1½ per cent nitrogen. This is all the nitrogen your roses need for the time being.

Later, when the roses are further advanced in growth, you can give them their rose food or a commercial fertilizer. By that time, the roses are advanced enough to accept the heavier dosage of nitrogen contained in the commercial foods. Using the proper fertilizer at the right time is an important factor in all gardening. For instance, you should never use any commercial fertilizer high in nitrogen until the time when any kind of plant life has begun to obtain plenty of vigorous new foliage. With roses, I would say not until the stems have developed from four to six inches.

surface. Fill the rest of the hole with water and repeat this three times as the water drains off. Following this, fill in the rest of the hole with soil and finish off by making a small basin two feet in diameter around the tree. It is a good idea to stake the tree until it has become established.

DON'T FORGET DEPARTMENT: Don't forget this is an excellent time to plant balled citrus trees . . . Don't forget you are behind schedule if you haven't pruned your roses. A safe rule to follow in pruning roses is to cut back two-thirds of the growth produced last year . . . Don't forget to spray all deciduous trees immediately with a good cleanup spray if you haven't already done so. . . Don't forget to tell your nurseryman you saw his ad in the Independent, Press-Telegram . . . Don't forget the garden section next Sunday and don't forget that the man who goes to church on Sunday will enjoy his garden better on Monday.

Those Boisterous Cannas

By Bob Gilmore

For massed color effects and where bright tones are desired. plantings of cannas are the last word.

FOR MASSED COLOR effects, where bright tones are desired, cannas will prove ideal. The gay-appearing flowers quickly will liven up dull and monotonous garden scenes. Certain varieties are so boisterous that they may be seen several blocks away. Another interesting feature of the canna is that the leaves may be either green or brown.

Cannas, like many other natives of the tropics, develop massive-sized leaves. About 50 years ago the plants were cultivated almost entirely for the tropical effects of the foliage. The flowers then were of inferior quality, being small and relatively inconsepicuous.

IN SELECTING individual varieties for planting in your garden learn the color of the foliage as well as that of the flowers. One of the most appealing cannas is Mrs. Pierre du Pont. The flowers are quite large and have a rather rare, watermelon-pink shade. The foliage is green and most attractive.

An excellent bronze-leaf variety is Ambassador. It is comparable to Mrs. Pierre du Pont in that both have an extremely long flowering season but the flowers of Ambassador are a rich cherry red, much deeper than Mrs. Pierre du Pont. In addition, Ambassador is quite hardy and an aggressive grower.

Southern Californians like the Los Angeles canna, not only for its name but because of the rosy red flowers and the clear green leaves. Other interesting varieties for this area include: Copper Giant, madder red suffused with rose and contrasting with green foliage; Brilliant, a very bright red canna; Eureka, white with yellow center; President, orange-scarlet, and Wyoming, orange flowers contrasting pleasingly with bronze leaves.

CANNAS SHOULD not be planted in isolated groups. They look best when grown for massed effects although even in narrow borders they will create a glowing show of color. The plants should be spaced from 18 to 21 inches apart. Being sun lovers they demand an open exposure.

Cannas require heavy watering during the summer months. Do not place them too close to other plants as the tropical leaves spread out to a considerable distance. At maturity the plants attain a height of about five feet.

Cannas prefer a deep, rich soil. Excellent drainage is a must as the plants are heavy drinkers but unable to tolerate having wet feet. A good garden loam that has been thoroughly enriched with liberal quantities of well-rotted manure should suffice.

Tips on Gardening

GARDENING TIPS for the week. . . . In Long Beach and environs, the spring planting season starts early in the year. One of the first jobs is the planting of deciduous stock, such as roses, fruit trees and those trees and shrubs that have a dormant season. Starting bare-root stock is a job that must not be delayed.

Even before the actual planting, you should get the soil in good condition. The physical texture of the soil plays just as important a role in plant growing as fertilizer, often more so. The more humus added to the soil the healthier the plants will be. This holds true for ornamentals, fruit trees and vegetables.

One of the most interesting of the new All America Rose Selections is Golden Showers. This novel and superb variety can be grown as a pillar, climbing or bush type rose. The flowers will also prove ideal for cutting.

Keep your pansy bed damp and rich. Pansies react quickly to regular applications of plant food and feeding should be continued fairly regularly during the growing season. The Swiss Giants will prove one of the best types for this area.

Rose Guide Ready

America's favorite "Guide for Buying Roses" is now being distributed to rose-loving gardeners throughout the country.

Each year, thousands of amateur and professional floriculturalists use the pamphlet in selecting the plants they want for spring and fall planting.

The American Rose Society's members rate the performance of new roses which they have grown in their own garden. The guide contains the names, ratings, height, degree of fragrance and color of all these roses which receive fair to outstanding recognition (scale of 6.5 to a perfect 10.0). As an extra service, the society will furnish upon request the names and addresses of nurseries who stock any of the varieties listed.

Write to the American Rose Society, 4018 Roselea Pl., Columbus 14, Ohio, for your free copy of the pamphlet.

HAROLD SOLOMON
A Whale of a Halibut

THEY TOUCH it lightly with a fork. Ah, yes . . . it cuts like butter. They raise a morsel to their lips. Ah, yes . . . it has a delightful charcoal-broiled fragrance. They taste it. Ah, yes . . . it is absolutely scrumptious . . .

That's the way it goes when the patrons at Hoefly's Belmont Shore restaurant, 4911 E. 2nd St., enjoy the charcoal-broiled halibut steak which is among the gourmet sea food items now featured at this famous Southland dining spot. This is not ordinary halibut. It is the thick center cut from a whale halibut, a huge fish which sports happily in the Northwest Pacific. At Hoefly's it is served with drawn butter for only $1.90 on a dinner which includes the following delicacies, assorted chilled relishes; Hoefly's famed tossed salad with choice of dressing; choice of whipped, French fried or au gratin potatoes, assorted breads and choice of beverage.

OWNER IRVING SOLOMON and his son Harold, who is co-host, have also arranged these other sea food treats for their guests: a generous charcoal-broiled "sea food plank" which includes scallops, salmon, the aforementioned halibut, filet of sole and swordfish (all for $2.25); a large planked, charcoal-broiled swordfish steak, ($2.25), and whole, broiled baby Mexican lobster ($3). Numerous other sea food specialties are also offered. All are served with the relishes, salad, potatoes, breads and beverages.

Anyone who dines out regularly knows by now, of course, that Hoefly's is also distinguished for its perfect prime rib au jus dinners ($3.50) and its charcoal-broiled prime Eastern beef steaks. The prime rib is a fascinatingly huge 16-ounce cut. Equally generous and delicious are the 11-ounce top sirloin ($3.75) and the 16-ounce boneless New York cut steak ($1.25).

Bill Clark, a superbly talented pianist, entertains nightly at the piano-bar.

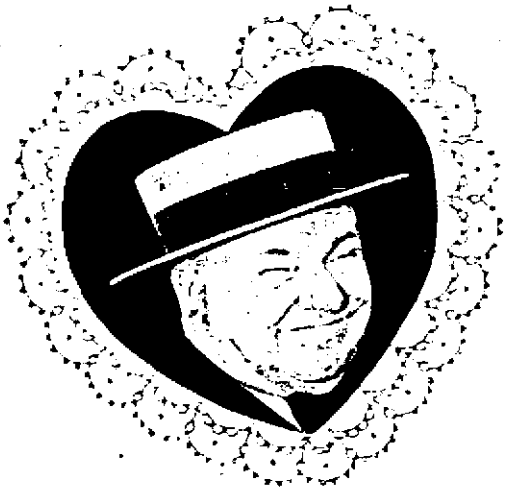
A VALENTINE FROM W. C. FIELDS

by RED SKELTON

THE AUTHOR clowns it up. Currently a CBS video star, he's come a long way since early days in vaudeville.



FUNNYMAN FIELDS, who died in 1946, usually masked his sentimental side.

In my scrapbook there's only one valentine, and it's on the first page. It's not from Georgia, my wife; hers I keep in a special box. It's not from a high-school sweetheart; those I threw away. It's from the late comedian W. C. Fields.

This valentine is a gaudy, old-fashioned job, full of the flowery guff you'd think a guy like Fields would scoff at. But the message written on it makes the card more valuable to me than all the other cards I've ever received.

It came many years ago when I was all but unknown, just a kid from Vincennes, Ind., playing the small towns, trying to make a name for myself in vaudeville. I was stranded in a tiny town in the West, feeling low the way only a performer can when he reaches the unhappy conclusion he should be living in a home and not a trunk.

When I returned to my hotel room that night, the desk clerk told me there was a letter for me. I figured it was from my agent, since he was probably the only person in the country who knew where I was. I opened the envelope and found the valentine from Bill Fields — whom I had never met.

Across the lace, hearts, cupids and arrows he had scrawled, "Happy Valentine's Day. Loved your act. Keep at it." On the other side was a note saying he had been in the audience a few nights before, then this bit of counsel: "Take an old timer's advice and play it safe. Put money in the bank in every small town you play. You never can tell when you'll be stranded and broke."

Suddenly the sun started shining for me again.

I met Fields soon after, and our friendship grew to the point where we became very close. As a kind of gag we began exchanging messages on St. Valentine's day every year. It got to be a custom with us. But the card I'll never forget is the one in my scrapbook — the brightly painted sentimental greeting from W. C. Fields to a kid who felt no one in the entire world knew he was alive. ■

Is there a chance for more money in your future?

Let's see, now – you've been out of school how many years? By now, of course, you have extra income from a few little investments you've wisely made from your savings. Or have you?

Whether you have invested or not, here's a simple check that might help you get more money in the future.

Do you own any common stocks or bonds listed on the New York Stock Exchange? YES ☐ NO ☐

Most bonds promise to pay you interest at a fixed rate and to pay back the original amount of the bond at a specified time. Ownership of stocks makes you part owner of the company. As an owner you may share in profits by way of dividends on your stock...and share in any company growth by way of possible increase in the value of your investment.

Do you know the first four essential steps in making good investments? YES ☐ NO ☐

Paste them in your hat: (1) Use only cash left over after all the bills are paid and family emergencies provided for.

(2) Bear in mind that stock prices can go down as well as up, that a company may not pay dividends and, in our competitive economy, may not grow.

(3) So don't depend on tips – get facts before you buy.

(4) Get good advice from a Member Firm of the New York Stock Exchange.

Have you read our booklet "DIVIDENDS OVER THE YEARS"? YES ☐ NO ☐

If you haven't – waste no time getting your free copy. This basic guide to common stock investment packs in 16 pages a wealth of valuable information. It gives the records of more than 300 stocks that have paid dividends every year from 25 to 108 years, showing which are especially liked by financial institutions, which pay 5 to 6 percent at recent prices . . . and other interesting facts.

It also describes the superbly convenient Monthly Investment Plan, which is such a wonderful help in investing regularly. It enables you to become a shareowner in some of America's most famous companies by investing as little as $40 every three months – up to $1000 a month.

Do you know a Broker in a Member Firm of the New York Stock Exchange? YES ☐ NO ☐

If not, remedy the oversight tomorrow. A cordial welcome and an interesting experience are ahead of you. He will be happy to sit down with you to work out a sensible investment program in keeping with your circumstances. He may advise bonds for you instead of stocks. His job is to help you buy or sell.

Be sure to ask for your free copy of "DIVIDENDS OVER THE YEARS." Or send the coupon right now while it's on your mind. When you can answer Yes to every question your future may be brighter.

Not even rain can stop this man's prayers

LONDON.

Today in England, as in every other country of the world, probably more people hope for peace than for any other single thing. Above you see Albert Roche, a Britisher whose hope finds expression in prayer. He is kneeling on the sidewalk across from 10 Downing St., longtime residence of British Prime Ministers. He has done this every day since New Year's Eve, 1954. In sunshine or snow, London fog or (in the present case) rain, he has offered a prayer for world peace. And so far, at least, the prayer has been answered.

The 'Mad Bomber' scare

What's behind the headlines? What makes a 'bomber' tick? Here's a report you daren't miss

A message to parade readers from Stephen P. Kennedy
POLICE COMMISSIONER OF NEW YORK CITY

TO THE PUBLIC: Should your community get a bomb warning, you can help by remaining calm. Ask others not to call the police unless they have information that might aid in the identification or apprehension of the bomber, i.e., a description of any suspicious character or object in or near public buildings. False calls detract from the police's efforts in looking for the true culprit. They endanger lives. And they violate the law.

IF YOU GET A WARNING: Try to keep the caller on the phone as long as possible, chatting in an innocent way. At the same time, direct someone to call the police — since the call can only be traced while the telephones are connected. Try to remember speech characteristics of the caller, the exact words and intonation of his voice. If you lose the caller, notify the police.

IF YOU RECEIVE A SUSPICIOUS PACKAGE: Don't touch anything. Call police.

● A New York movie audience stands aside as policemen look vainly for a "bomb."

—and YOU

by JOSEPH KAHN

At 4:45 one recent afternoon the switchboard operator at a big New York movie theater plugged in a call. A man's gruff voice shouted. "There's a bomb in the orchestra!" Then he hung up. Police combed the theater, found nothing. Four hours later another call brought them back — again in vain.

On the same day similar tips by the dozens had the police racing around the city to other movie houses, museums, schools and miscellaneous public buildings. Without exception, the tips were false — yet every one had to be investigated.

Meanwhile the bomb-scare fever was breaking out all over. In Newark, N.J., police combed the Pennsylvania Railroad Station for a nonexistent bomb. Seven schools in Hartford, Conn., closed down after false tips. In Plainville, Conn., a hoax sent home 1,700 factory workers. Bogus scares were reported in Dallas, Tex.; Kansas City, Mo.; Wichita, Kans.; Haverhill, Mass.; Tampa, Fla.; Chicago and Philadelphia.

What set off this frightening chain reaction? Could this happen in your town? At what cost? And is there any way to fight it?

Seeking answers, PARADE has canvassed top medical and criminal experts. Bomb scares, they point out, eat up the time, money and energy of government, industry and the public. Worse, they evoke terror and insecurity for large groups of people.

For the most part, the experts say, the latest epidemic can be attributed to front-page stories all over the country about New York's so-called Mad Bomber. Caught a few weeks ago after a 16-year manhunt, the alleged culprit — a Waterbury, Conn., toolmaker — admitted planting 31 bombs to "get even" with a New York utility company. But his actions touched off various mentally and emotionally troubled citizens, some homicidal, some hoaxers, some only prankish.

It doesn't take much to fire up sick minds looking for any easy way to gratification. The bomb scare is made to order for them. It's simple to copy and hard to detect. All that is needed is 10 cents for a phone call. Then, like magic, the warped individual (man or woman, though more often the former) feels powerful and all-knowing. Momentarily, at least, he imagines his frustrations and grudges are gone, and he sits back to gloat over the fuss he created.

or woman, though more often the former) feels pow-

Is there a Mad Bomber in your town?

It is possible. However, people who actually construct and plant bombs are rare. The anonymous caller who says, "I've put a bomb in your church" (or wherever) is a hoaxer nine times in 10. Either way, psychiatrists say, he is first of all unhappy. A normal, happy, responsible person doesn't need such a form of expression and is fully aware of its destructiveness. The bomber — real or hoax — is probably immature and unstable, disappointed in himself, his home life and his work — a failure.

"He is a weakling who wishes he weren't," explains Dr. Irving Sands, psychiatrist of the Press Reference Committee of the Kings County Medical Society of New York. "He is usually too cowardly to discharge his aggressive tendencies actively, so he'll find a way to get satisfaction without risk."

As a rule the hoaxer doesn't have a police record. He isn't an overt law-breaker. But he's not likely to be on your club's membership list. He's not a mixer, seldom attends church, sticks pretty much to himself.

He is very sensitive, extremely suspicious and convinced nobody likes him. He probably holds down a menial job and his working habits are inconsistent. The fellows at the shop may refer to him as a "queer duck." At home he's a poor father and a poor companion to his wife — if he's married at all. He often can be found sitting in a corner reading a comic book of the Superman type, one in which he can "see" himself. In short, he spends much of his time in a dream world.

A Matter of Degree

Many people fulfill this description, and are not hoaxers. But psychiatrists are willing to bet that when a hoaxer is apprehended, he will fit pretty snugly into this mold.

Incidentally, he is not psychotic — that is, he has not lost contact with reality. He differs in this way from the person who actually places a bomb. It's a matter of degree. The hoaxer is less emotionally disturbed and mentally sick than the psychotic person — but he may develop into one.

The hoaxer's trouble stems from his childhood, doctors believe. Then, or later, he didn't get the affection he needed. Gradually his feeling of not being wanted became a full-grown hostility toward society.

There is a good chance, too, that he may be sexually perverted. This does not mean that he would be an overt homosexual, but that he is disinterested in women and never reached the heterosexual stage of development.

"He is questioning his virility," explains a psychiatrist attached to Bellevue Hospital's Psychiatric Division. "He makes a call because that's his way of asserting himself. In the case of a woman hoaxer, Freud would say she is showing her envy of men by being aggressive. When she gets a lot of men running around looking for a bomb, she is fulfilling a hidden desire."

When a bomb hoaxer chooses a particular place to "blow up," he does not necessarily make his choice by design, the psychiatrists agree. He probably has been brooding for a long time. Then he passes a theater or a railroad station and suddenly decides, "This is it." It just happened to be the right moment to trigger his emotional sickness. If he were to make a threatening call to the mayor of your city, it might not mean he had anything against the mayor, but that the mayor represented hated authority to him at that instant.

A grudge-carrying hoaxer, on the other hand, may have a real antagonism against something or someone. He may believe he is being persecuted. He may have, for example, hatred of autos, due to something that once happened to him (or that he imagined) — so he puts his bombs in garages.

SOURCE of one scare, this sock-wrapped pipe was found in a subway.

There are other types of bomb hoaxer. A mean one is the drunk whose inhibitions are removed by alcohol. A well-adjusted intoxicated person would not play such a "joke." Only a disturbed person would resort to this when his subconscious takes over.

The attention-getter will threaten to blow up a building because he wants to be in the limelight. He is a showoff and an exhibitionist. He is insecure and, like the hoaxer, he probably hungers for affection.

Cranks are a variety of pest that may jump on the bomb-scare bandwagon, but generally they confine themselves to sounding off about everything under the sun. Basically insecure, they are irritable and critical. Letter-writing is a usual release for them.

Pranksters join in bomb scares because it's the fad of the moment and they think it's all a big joke. Immature school kids, looking for a one-day holiday, are the major offenders. Psychiatrists maintain, however, this type of thrill-seeking, authority-provoking behavior may indicate disturbance and, therefore, these children should be examined — and treated if necessary — rather than simply punished.

For the police, bomb scares have always been a headache. "We treat every call as if it were the real thing," says Sgt. Peter J. Dale, head of New York City's bomb squad, the nation's biggest and busiest. "In most cases, the person who has set a real bomb isn't going to warn you. But there's always the chance that someone has found out about a bomb who wants to remain anonymous for fear of reprisal."

Foreign consulates are always getting bomb threats. "They come in waves," explains Sergeant Dale. "Whenever a hot issue comes up, you can expect a call from some crank." Bomb threats haunt persons in the public eye. When eight Soviet clergymen visited this country last summer, their departure plane was delayed four hours while police searched the plane and baggage because of a false tip.

Three Things to Remember

Not long ago Gov. G. Mennen Williams received a bomb threat at his home in the state capital at Lansing, Mich. The caller twice warned the Governor's wife that a bomb was hidden in the building. Mrs. Williams took her three children to the home of a friend while police made a thorough but fruitless search.

What can you do to reduce the danger of a bomb scare in your town?

1) Don't shrug off crackpots or cranks as harmless. A Bellevue doctor has this advice: "A person who does not behave normally should be watched closely by friends and relatives. He may need a doctor's help." These individuals don't recognize their own problem, but if they can be convinced that their trouble is within themselves, treatment and eventual relief are possible.

2) If there's a bomb scare, try to keep it quiet. Publicity, many experts feel, can help set off hoaxers and cranks.

3) When a hoaxer is caught, the case should be headlined from beginning to end in order to discourage imitators. "We are dealing with timid personalities," Dr. Sands explains. "They are fearful of detection. Once they realize they can be caught, it may act as a strong deterrent." ■

BARRAGE plants a wet kiss on grimacing Miss Kamp. Now 3½, he'll be making stud money for 7 or 8 more years.

RICH DOG

This boxer earns $300 a week to go with his blue ribbons

NEW YORK CITY.

The not-so-smooth smoocher above is Ch. Barrage of Quality Hill, a boxer who's a favorite to win at least one blue ribbon at the Westminster Kennel dog show, opening tomorrow at Madison Square Garden here. According to the object of his affections, handler Jane F. Kamp, Barrage may yet put to rest the popular notion that dog-show winners lead pampered, useless lives.

As today's cover shows, Barrage brings home the usual dust-catching trophies. But for his owners, Mr. and Mrs. Jouett Shouse of Washington, he also brings home something more useful: cold cash. He brings it home, in fact, to the tune of $300 a week.

HANDLER shines up Barrage's coat with special brush glove.

The money is paid by other owners anxious to have a champion like Barrage father a litter of champions. Barrage's stud fee — $150 — is the highest among boxers, equaled only by two or three other champions.

He's rated a top catch for two main reasons: 1) the record of his sire, Bang Away of Sirrah Crest, who retired a few years ago after winning more best-in-show ribbons than any other dog in history; 2) his own magnificent appearance, which recently won him four best-in-show awards in seven days and so far has let him win 55 working-group firsts in 59 tries. (Today's cover shows what Barrage can rack up in just three weeks.)

He's been led to most of these awards by Miss Kamp, 28, a professional dog handler. Wherever she goes, so goes Barrage. When he's appearing at a show, he's quartered with her in her hotel room. Objections? "Only," snaps Miss Kamp, "at third-grade hotels. The best ones never object."

She's been handling Barrage for two years now, finds him "sweet and affectionate" despite his menacing look. During most of the first year, she taught him how to stand and walk in the ring. But now, she says, there's no more to teach him. "Just like human beings," she says with resignation, "show dogs perform only as well as the mood they're in." ■

Is it true what they say about ATHLETES?

• Weight lifters, like Paul Anderson, are muscle bound.

by DR. PETER V. KARPOVICH

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

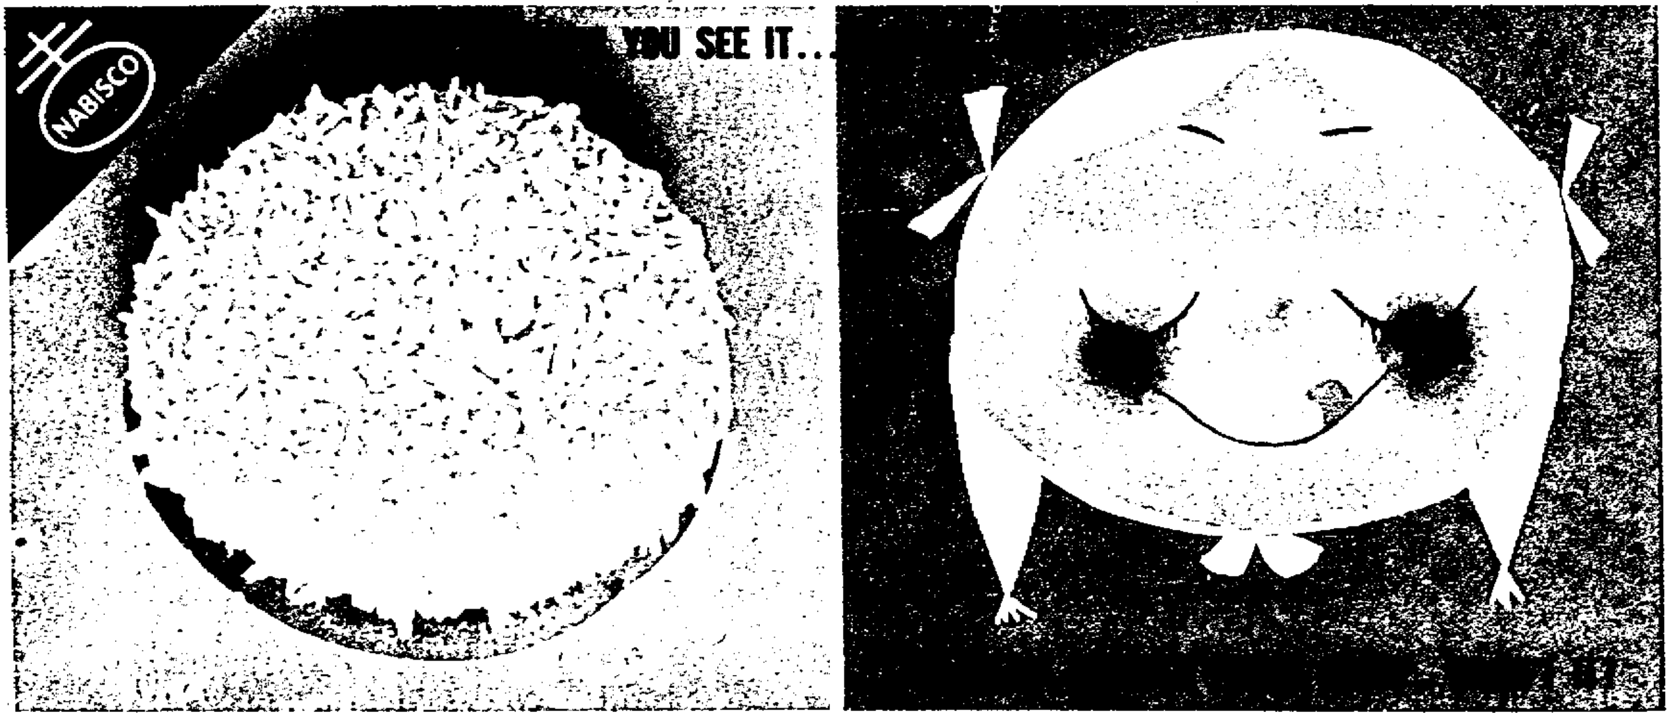
Do you accept the captions above as true? Most people do. But they're wrong.

For years, I too was convinced that weight lifters were muscle-bound men who could never play basketball or other sports requiring nimbleness. So, when our college was visited a few years ago by two champion weight lifters, I decided to have some fun.

After they had amazed the audience by lifting huge weights, I smilingly asked one of them to do another "stunt": putting one hand behind his back and scratching between his shoulder blades.

The weight lifter stared. He didn't know muscle-bound men can't do this simple act. Then he calmly reached back and scratched between his shoulder blades. The audience roared at my expense.

But the episode made me think. I decided to run some experiments to find out whether weight lifters really were muscle bound. I've also looked into other notions about sports that everybody accepts—just because "it's so."



WHY STOP THE FUN WITH ONLY ONE? THEY'RE PURE NABISCO COOKIES!

NABISCO FANCY CRESTS. Better because they're heaped with the FLUFFIEST marshmallow of all—and lavishly sprinkled with tender, moist, shreds of cocoanut.

NATIONAL BISCUIT COMPANY®

Athletes, like this Russian girl, tend to die early.

Aided by assistants and physiology students here, I've run thousands of tests, the results of which have been published in professional and research journals, including The Journal of the American Medical Association.

The findings show that these things are just not so:

Weight lifters are muscle bound.

We tested 600 men between 18 and 30. Half were weight lifters, half were not. We had all 600 do the same exercise — turning a handle on a certain machine; the faster a person can turn such a handle, the less muscle bound he is.

The typical weight lifter, we found, turned the handle 24 times in 5.4 seconds. Non-weight lifters took 5.6 seconds, indicating that weight lifters actually are less muscle bound than you or I.

Warming-up always helps performance.

Not so, according to our tests. It's true that throwing a baseball or shooting a basketball before a game helps the athlete (because by practicing the motions to be performed in the game, he sharpens his coordination).

But the vast amount of running and calisthenics done before some sports — like basketball, track and football — seems just a waste of time.

We experimented by having track men run 440 yards and trained bicycle riders pedal stationary bikes for the equivalent of 100 yards and one mile. Each man performed "cold" and after warming up. There was no lameness nor sign of injury after performing "cold." And warming-up didn't improve their times.

Athletes die sooner than non-athletes.

A report recently published by Michigan State University investigators substantiated earlier reports, especially those of Dr. Louis Dublin. They checked up on former athletes at the school, compared them with an equal number of non-athletes. From the number of deaths among each group, they determined that the life expectancy of athletes was 65.9 years. Expectancy for non-athletes: 65.9 years.

Athletes don't "ruin" their hearts, either, the researchers found. About the same number of athletes and non-athletes had died of heart disease.

Rubdowns "pep up" athletes.

Before a race, most runners insist on a rubdown. In our experiments, rubdowns proved useless.

We gave massages to five runners on Springfield College's track team, then clocked them for a quarter-mile run. On another day, we gave the same five boys a superficial massage (they thought it was the real thing and so felt peace of mind), then timed them again.

Result: The times on both days were almost exactly the same. Two of the boys, after the real massage, turned in their best times of the season. But another boy, without either massage or warm-up, smashed Springfield College's record for the quarter-mile run.

Weight lifters are dumbbells.

"A broad back and a weak mind" is a line that must come into almost everyone's mind as he watches a weight lifter picking up 100-lb. weights.

To find out how weak the weight lifter's mind really is, we compared the grades of 392 student weight lifters — at Springfield College and other schools — with the grades of the rest of the students at those schools. Again a surprise: The non-weight lifters averaged C, the weight lifters B.

Training tables keep athletes stronger.

That's what many a small-college coach has long thought as he envied the big schools which feed their players thick red steaks and other special dishes. Yet men from different nations become champions on radically different diets, governed mostly by national tastes. There isn't any special diet for athletes. A recently published report by Harvard doctors presented a good summary on this subject. The doctors indicated that the value of a training table is mostly in the players' minds.

So long as the players eat a well-balanced diet, said the doctors in The Journal of the American Medical Association, they're just as strong as the players eating specially prepared dishes at a training table. A lot of red meat, for instance, doesn't alone give strength; in actual tests, it was discovered that vegetarians have about as much strength — no more and no less — as meat eaters.

But the legend will persist that training tables go hand in hand with winning teams. Sad to say, despite all the scientific studies that should demolish them, myths about sports apparently never die — or even fade away. ■

LINCOLN'S Last Birthday

He was 56—and an act of mercy was his gift to a Southern lady

by PHILIP VAN DOREN STERN

EDITOR'S NOTE: Mr. Stern, a noted historian and author, has written several books and numerous articles about Abraham Lincoln. He now is working on a history of the end of the Civil War. In this story he has woven together some of the known facts about what was happening on February 12, 1865, into narrative form.

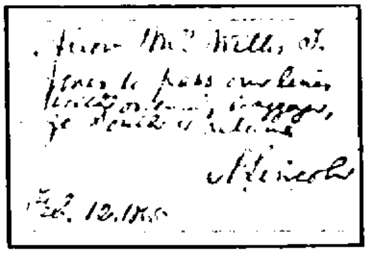
It was his 56th birthday, and he felt old for his age. Circulation in his long arms and legs had been getting poorer—especially in cold weather, and this had been an unusually severe winter. Sheridan had telegraphed to say that the snow was a foot deep in the Shenandoah Valley, bringing all military operations in that area to a standstill. It was cold in Washington too, with snow on the ground and ice on the Potomac. The sky was heavily overcast, with occasional snow flurries filling the air.

The man who stood looking out of a window on the second floor of the White House was used to snow and cold weather. His mother often told him about the bleak winter's day on which he had been born in a one-room cabin in the Kentucky hills. He had seen lots of snow in Indiana, where he grew up, and later in Illinois.

It was quiet in the White House, for this day was Sunday, and the usual office seekers and petition bearers were missing from the lower halls. Only on Sundays did the Lincolns have the house to themselves. The President was glad they were being left alone because it was an important time in their lives. Yesterday their eldest son Robert had been commissioned as a captain on Grant's staff, which meant that he would be stationed at Army headquarters at City Point, Virginia. This was only a day's journey from Washington, and Robert's doting mother was pleased that her son would be near to her, even though she dreaded his being so close to the front.

Grant had been in Washington during the past few days to testify before the Congressional Joint Committee on the Conduct of the War and had just returned to City Point, taking a dozen Congressmen with him. It was a good idea, the President thought, to let the men on this investigating committee see what war was really like. Too many of them seemed to think that it was a sort of glorified debate, in which the loudest and most vehement words could win battles.

The peaceful solitude of the quiet Sunday afternoon was abruptly disturbed when the President's manservant, Billy Slade, knocked at the door to say that former Postmaster General Montgomery Blair wanted to see the President. Since Blair lived across the street from the White House, he sometimes dropped in at odd hours or on Sundays to discuss matters of personal interest.



A. Lincoln

Feb. 12, 1865

PASS Lincoln gave Mrs. Jones to "go South & return" through Union lines now belongs to William Townsend, Lexington, Ky.

Blair came from a distinguished and politically powerful family, which, like Lincoln's, had its origins in Virginia and Kentucky. A few weeks before his recent re-election, Lincoln had regretfully had to ask Blair to resign his post in order to keep peace in his unruly Cabinet. Much to everyone's surprise, Blair, instead of resenting what Lincoln had done, continued to be one of his staunchest supporters and worked hard to get him re-elected. As a result, Montgomery Blair, out of the Cabinet, had an even greater hold on the President's affections than he did when he was one of his official advisers.

Blair was almost as tall as Lincoln, and there was an engaging smile on his pleasant, smoothly shaved face when he came in to wish the President a happy birthday. They talked for a while about the recent peace conference with the Confederates at Hampton Roads, which Blair's illustrious father had helped bring about. The conference, unfortunately, had come to nothing, and the war with its mounting losses and relentless woes had to be carried on to the bitter end.

Request Made

Blair had a favor to ask. It was for a Kentucky lady who had written to Lincoln requesting permission to pass through the Union lines. Her name was Mrs. Willis F. Jones, and she was, Blair hastened to point out, a granddaughter of Judge Robertson of Lexington, a man Lincoln knew.

Lincoln nodded. He remembered her letter. It was among the heap of papers on his desk. Mrs. Jones wanted to visit the grave of her husband, a Confederate major killed at Richmond.

He wanted to grant Blair's — and the widow's — simple request; but he wasn't sure it was the right thing to do.

He thought about it, looking at the snowflakes striking the darkening window. It was warm here in the White House, but in the trenches around Petersburg and Richmond it was bitter cold, and the snow would make life even harder for the soldiers.

He hesitated and then said, "During the past few months — ever since Christmas, in fact — I've been issuing too many passes. And I've been too easy on deserters and soldiers who neglect their duty or who fall asleep at their posts.

"Besides, I've been trying to cut down on the number of such passes I issue. I'm trying to limit myself to one a day. I have already today commuted one death sentence and issued one pass — oddly enough to a Kentucky woman. I've exhausted my quota for today."

Blair smiled and said, "This isn't an ordinary day. It's your birthday. You can afford to issue one more pass just to celebrate the occasion."

Lincoln searched through the papers until he found Mrs. Jones' letter. He put on his spectacles and read the letter through, studying each phrase. "I see that she promises to bring the major's manservant North and set him free. That's good. I hadn't noticed that before."

"She'll do it, too," Blair said. "These are good people. Just because they fight on the other side — Well, we ought to know. We both come from Kentucky."

The President rubbed his face thoughtfully, then made up his mind. "All right, Blair. I'll do it. I shouldn't, but I will. I suppose one more pass won't make much difference."

Request Granted

He took out a card and wrote the few necessary words:

> Allow Mrs. Willis F. Jones to pass our lines with ordinary baggage, go South & return.
> Feb. 12, 1865 A. Lincoln

Blair put the pass safely away in his pocket. "Thank you, sir, and a very happy birthday. I'm sure I speak for Mrs. Jones, too, in wishing you many more happy birthdays to come."

The President bowed and walked across the room to the window. It was too dark now for him to see anything. "Many more happy birthdays," he murmured wonderingly as he heard Blair close the door softly behind him. And then the man who had just two months and three days to live stared into the black night outside. ■

Today's big medical story

NEW HOPE FOR DIABETICS — A PILL

by ROBERT P. GOLDMAN

Here's the biggest advance in years for many victims of diabetes: a drug that can do away with needles and injections of insulin

For 1,500,000 Americans with diabetes and an estimated 4,750,000 more who are fated to develop the disease, there's good news. A new anti-diabetes pill, taken by mouth, promises to replace insulin for a large percentage of patients.

Since late 1955, 1,200 U. S. doctors have tested Orinase, the drug from which the pill is made, in controlled studies of more than 12,000 patients. The verdict so far: Orinase can lower blood sugar in up to 75 per cent of treated diabetics. These people can put aside syringes, needles and insulin. They no longer need routine daily injections to live normally (though some severe and complicated cases still will need insulin at times).

Before you rush to spread this news — the best for diabetics since 1921 when insulin itself was discovered — consider these facts:

Orinase still is in the experimental stage. You cannot buy it. Doctors do not yet have it for general use. There is only a limited supply for test purposes. In other words, don't get the idea that a diabetic yet can ask for — and get — Orinase from his doctor.

The Upjohn Co. (Kalamazoo, Mich.) producer of the drug, has only 20,000 50-pill bottles of Orinase per month for test purposes. And that amount obviously is sufficient for a handful of diabetics. However, prospects are that Orinase will be available for general use in the near future.

What Diabetes Is

Discovery of the drug, like many other great medical advances, was made by accident. It stems from research in France 15 years ago — on typhoid fever.

To understand how that led to the present use of Orinase, you need to know a little about diabetes. Briefly, it starts with the pancreas, one of the body's master glands. When the pancreas fails to produce enough insulin to prepare blood sugars for energy release, diabetes can result. The exact reason still is unknown.

When the body is deficient in insulin, it seeks energy by "raiding" other body resources, such as protein and fat. This ratus to sterilize needle, alcohol and cotton to swab skin at injection point.

causes severe weight loss and general sluggishness in the diabetic. In addition, he complains of great thirst and sugar appears in his urine. If insulin is not given, he is likely to go into coma. Death can follow.

In short, when a diabetic injects insulin into himself it substitutes for what the body itself fails to produce. Such insulin replacement permits the diabetic to live normally, although he must watch his weight and the amount of food he eats.

Back in 1942 French scientists, experimenting on typhoid fever with chemicals related to sulfa drugs, stumbled onto the fact that one such chemical lowered blood sugar. The war virtually halted European medical research. After the war, however, German scientists continued the earlier French studies. Tests with patients were begun. Slowly it became apparent that the sulfa-related drug could replace insulin injections in carefully selected patients.

In November, 1955, Orinase was tried on the first group of American patients. Today the drug, which differs from its sulfa-cousins in that it cannot knock out bacteria infections, is being hailed as a medical milestone.

One great advantage of Orinase is that it produces few unpleasant side-effects. Yet there are sound reasons for the cautions of doctors and the Upjohn Co. concerning the drug.

First, long-term study is vital to determine just which diabetics can benefit from Orinase. It has been found that most children, comprising about 5 per cent of all diabetes cases, cannot be sustained on the drug. They must continue on insulin.

In addition, persons who develop diabetes between the ages of 15 and 40 tend to do poorly on the drug. That is, after the drug is given, they continue to "spill" sugar in their urine. When that happens, insulin injections must be resumed.

However, 75 per cent of all diabetes appears after the age of 40. It is in this vast group that most of the candidates for Orinase treatment appear.

At the same time, even among "adult onset diabetics" there have been treatment failures. Some of these patients must continue to rely on insulin. In any case, diet restriction still holds. And the doctor always must decide whether to use Orinase on a given individual.

"This Is Great"

How and why Orinase works on the majority of adult cases is unknown. Some doctors feel it stimulates the pancreas to produce more insulin. Others feel that somehow the drug removes a chemical block in the body permitting better utilization of insulin.

Whatever the reason, it is unimportant to patients such as one treated at New York University-Bellevue Medical Center.

A 53-year-old business executive, he had been on insulin for more than a year. After three months of taking Orinase, all he could say was: "Boy, this is great — popping a couple of pills in my mouth every day rather than having to stick myself with a needle!" ■

PARTY FRANKS

½ teaspoon salt
1⅓ cups water
12 frankfurters (about 1½ pounds)
2 tablespoons prepared mustard
1 can (10½ oz.) cream of mushroom soup
¼ cup chopped parsley
2 tablespoons grated onion
2 tablespoons chopped pimento
⅓ cup grated sharp cheddar cheese

Combine rice and salt in boiling water. Mix just enough to moisten all rice. Cover and remove from heat. Let stand 13 minutes. Slit frankfurters lengthwise and spread cut surface with mustard. HOW TO MAKE NUTTY 'ROBIN HOODS' for place cards

You will need shelled Brazil nuts, almonds and filberts. Use Brazil nuts for body and legs, held together with small slivers of wooden picks and airplane glue. Use a pin to make holes in the nuts; insert slivers; add glue; join, pressing together gently. Slice almonds in half lengthwise and join to the body to form arms. A filbert makes the head. The point of a wooden pick makes the nose. Draw in eyes and mouth. Cap is made from cut gumdrop. The bow is a twisted paper clip held with tape.

KNOT TYING can mean a foul-up—unless you're a Boy Scout.

Are you as smart as a boy scout?

by ALAN COXHALL

This is Boy Scout Week. Since the movement began, 47 years ago, more than 26,000,000 Americans have been members, lived by its famous code. Today's quiz, with a nod from the National Council, Boy Scouts of America, matches your scouting knowledge against any tenderfoot's, tests your memory if you once were a Scout. (Girl Scouts can try their hand, too.) Correct answers rate 10 points each (and all parts have to be right to score). A score of 60 is passing. If you get 80 or more, you deserve to be a scoutmaster. If you flunk, you'd better bone up on the Handbook, but you still get a Scout salute for trying.
